Police Must Repay Wages For Working Two Holidays

The correction of a 20-month-old clerical error has started a serious dispute between members of the Hoffman Estates Police Department and village officials.

The dispute, which surfaced Monday, began with a letter to the police from Village Manager George Longmeyer informing them the village will deduct pay received for two recent holidays from their paychecks Friday.

Charging police harassment and an anti-police attitude on the part of Mayor Frederick Downey, representatives of the Fraternal Order of Police said the decision is arbitrary and violates the village's own employee policy.

Pay received for working on the Fourth of July and Memorial Day will be deducted.

THE DEDUCTIONS will cost some men as much as $120, but will average from $75 to $100 per man. It is estimated the deductions will be about $50 for each of the holidays the men worked, depending on each man's rank and length of employment.

According to Downey the deductions will be made because a previous error had given the men money instead of compensatory time off, which he said police are supposed to receive for all overtime work except time spent in court.

However, FOP representatives cite a village administrative order of November 1970, which states all village employees shall receive seven paid holidays each year. The order also states "positions established work hours involve shift scheduling will receive an 'in lieu' of holiday compensation as compensatory time off or payment at the employee's hourly rate."

Downey contends because police are salaried personnel they are entitled to only the compensatory time off and not additional pay for working the holidays.

THE FOP REPRESENTATIVES said the policy leaves room for an option, but no one has ever asked the police what they want, either the time off or the pay. The letter from Longmeyer also states the decision for time off rather than pay was reached during a contract negotiation session.

This statement was strongly denied by the FOP, who said overtime or holiday compensation has never been a topic of negotiations in recent years. The FOP is recognized as the official bargaining agent for the police department.

FOP representatives said they would agree to taking time off instead of holiday pay in the future, but to take back money already received is unfair and arbitrary.

"It appears that the mayor is going out of his way to cause a rift with police," one officer said.

Downey said that he has no anti-police attitudes and denied that he was trying to harass the police.

THIS LATEST dispute represents the second time in recent months the FOP has expressed dissatisfaction with the mayor.

In May, salary negotiations were broken off after the Mayor, village board and FOP failed to come to an agreement over salary increases. The new salary was approved by the village board, but FOP never accepted the new contract.

The FOP is scheduled to meet this evening to discuss the latest development. It had planned to consult state and federal labor departments for advice in the matter, but it was learned Tuesday none of the agencies has jurisdiction because the dispute involves a municipal agency.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert said yesterday he was generally aware of the problem, but added he wanted to study the situation before commenting on its legality.

A spokesman for Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott said Scott's office would research the problem, but added it is questionable whether the attorney general has jurisdiction.

Most Police Get Extra Cash

While a major dispute over holiday compensation seems to be shaping up in Hoffman Estates, a survey of other communities in The Herald area has disclosed only one other community gives its policemen compensatory time off instead of cash for overtime work.

Police in Schaumburg receive time off for overtime work. But police in Elk Grove Village, Wheeling, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect and Hanover Park all receive payment for overtime and holidays that they work.

The information on the holiday pay was compiled as part of a general survey of police salaries and working conditions made by the Schaumburg Police Department last year.

In most cases, the departments pay their men time and a half for work over forty hours. However in Mount Prospect and Des Plaines regular salary is paid for all overtime work.

In all cases listed, the overtime pertains only to the rank of patrolmen, sergeants and detectives. No overtime pay is given for the rank of lieutenant or above.

Sounds Of Music Set At Vogelei

The music of "Hello Dolly," "Man of La Mancha" and "Sound of Music" will fill the Vogelei Recreation Center Thursday evening as the Best Off Broadway Players present a musical variety show.

The 90-minute program, which is free, will begin at 8 p.m. It is being offered as part of the Hoffman Estates Park District's summer concert series.

Besides selections from popular musical comedies, comedy sketches and rock music by The Group Celebration will also be presented.

The recreation center is at 650 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

Natalie Ferguson of Hoffman Estates is producer of the show.

Handicapped Recreation, Swimming

by STEVE BROWN

Cooperation between two area park districts has resulted in a recreational and swimming program for about 25 emotionally and physically handicapped children in Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village.

The program was originated by Jeff Fox of the Schaumburg Park District and Rich Ludovissy of the Elk Grove Village Park District. Both said they had been approached by other park officials to start a large scale program encompassing many communities, but they felt the traveling distance made such a program prohibitive.

"We would have lost too much program time with the transportation," Ludovissy said.

ONCE A WEEK the children enrolled in the program are taken to either the indoor pool at Elk Grove or to the Schaumburg Park District's community center for a recreation program.

A donation, made in response to a Herald article, allowed the Schaumburg Park District to purchase play apparatus especially designed for handicapped youngsters.

"Most of the activities center around developing motor skills," Fox explained. He added there is some thought to continuing the program during the regular school year. This is only the second year for a handicapped recreation program in

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Jack Anderson, offering humble apologies, retracted his report that Sen. Thomas Eagleton had been arrested several times for drunken and reckless driving. After a 45-minute meeting with Eagleton, Anderson conceded his report had damaged the Missouri senator's short-lived vice presidential candidacy, and said he could not verify his charges.

Sen. George McGovern is reported considering six prime candidates in his search for a running mate to replace Eagleton. Insiders say the list includes Larry O'Brien, Sargent Shriver, Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey, Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie, Wisconsin Sen. Gaylord Nelson and Idaho Sen. Frank Church. Sen. Edward Kennedy repeated his rejection of the second spot on the Democratic ticket.

In the first legislative test of one of McGovern's principal campaign issues, the Senate defeated his proposal to cut the defense budget by $4 billion. The vote was 59 to 33.

The House refused for the second time in a week to work out a compromise with the Senate over differing bills that would increase the minimum wage.

The House Rules Committee took away from the Judiciary Committee and sent to the House floor a proposed constitutional amendment to ban racial busing. The rules committee declined to take similar action to dislodge from the judiciary panel President Nixon's legislation proposing a one-year moratorium on new court busing orders.

The World

President Nixon's special peace envoy, Henry Kissinger, conferred privately in Paris for the 15th time with North Vietnamese negotiators; the White House announced. Both U.S. and North Vietnamese peace delegations kept a complete silence about the session.

Diplomatic reports reaching Britain said an elite unit of the Egyptian army attempted to overthrow President Anwar Sadat two months ago. Diplomats said about 1,000 commandos took part in the abortive rebellion May 25.

An eight-member "family," including three children, asked for asylum in Algeria after hijacking a Delta Airlines jetliner from Florida to Algier and collecting a record million-dollar ransom.

Boris Spassky accepted challenger Bobby Fischer's offer of a draw after 29 moves in the ninth game of their world championship chess match, enabling the American to maintain his two-point advantage in the contest.

The War

U.S. Navy planes bombed a shipyard in North Vietnam's major port city of Haiphong for the first time, and the allies' Bien Hoa airbase outside Saigon received its heaviest Communist shelling of the war. The base houses 2,250 Americans.

The teachers plan...

... and the students work on the house near Lake Geneva.

'Student Carpenters' Build A House

by WANDALYN RICE

No house has ever gotten as close attention from a group of carpenters as has Chester Sponder's summer home near Lake Geneva.

The house, in the Abbey Springs condominium development, was built by 12 students from Forest View High School in the district's first in home construction.

As the students worked last week to finish their project to the tune of rock music blaring from a radio, they devoted time to details. Two boys spent more than 20 minutes hanging a bedroom door to make sure it was just right.

By the time the students finished Saturday, the major carpentry was done, and Sponder from Park Ridge, needed only to do finishing work. The house should be finished by late this month.

THE STUDENTS, supervised by Forest View teachers James MacDonald and Grant Winsauer, spent eight-hour days on the project and their nights at a church camp near Conference Point, Wis. Sponder paid for materials, room and board for the students and the lot on which the house was built.

"Once we're finished, we will have the house appraised and then we can look at our bills and see how much money we saved," MacDonald said. He estimated that Sponder spent $20,000 on materials.

The project began last fall as a brainstorm by MacDonald and Winsauer. They found a willing client and their class set about designing the house.

Some of the students had taken earlier classes in mechanical drawing; others had taken wood-working, but all the students worked on both the design and building of the house, MacDonald said.

"They designed to the client's wishes. They originally came up with four designs. This house is almost exactly like one of the designs, except we had to eliminate the basement," he said.

THE ACTUAL construction proceeded smoothly this summer, the teachers said, with only 1½ days delay because of weather. The biggest problem at first was the muddy roads leading through the development to the building site.

"We prefabricated the walls in 24-foot sections and then hauled them up here by truck," MacDonald said, "but the roads were so muddy, the truck sank and it took two 'cats' to pull it out."

The students quickly threw themselves into their work, he added, and those who had taken wood-working before he taught the others.

"It's fantastic to watch kids who've never had a bit of wood-working learn to work at almost the same level as the kids who had it," MacDonald said. "It's a real pleasure to work with kids like this because you can really see how much they've learned."

The job has not been only work for the boys, however. At the camp they have found time in the evenings to play golf, go boating and generally relax.

"The really surprising thing is how much energy they have at the end of the day," Macdonald said. "Also because the kids are living together for 24 hours a day, I think they've learned a lot just from that."

AND THE TWO teachers are already looking for a project for next year. They plan to have 20 students in their class in the fall and to take 12 of them somewhere to build another house during the summer.

"I'm hoping we can build in this area again," MacDonald said. "We have been asked to build on the lot right across the road here."

But some of the persons who have seen the students work have bigger ideas. MacDonald said. "One guy wanted us to build 18 condominiums for him and said he would build us a factory where we could do it."

Scott Zanard and Mike Bruns pay attention to detail.

ALTHOUGH THE FARE was 10 cents more for a shuttle train as usual. Area businessmen, showed little concern over the rate increase, but were displeased with the possibility of service cutbacks by the rail line.

'Ho Hums' Greet C&NW Fare Hike

by DOUG RAY

Everyone knew about the rate hike, but few were concerned. What's a dime to suburban commuters?

Bob Webb, a bespectacled accountant, leaned against a railing awaiting the 8:38 a.m. Chicago and North Western (C&NW) shuttle yesterday. Along with hundreds of suburban commuters, he had paid an extra dime for the Chicago round trip.

"I basically don't object to the rate increase if they provide the same service," he said. "The cost of everything is going up."

Frank Cerza of Rolling Meadows agreed as he sat inside the station bidding time before the train's arrival. He defended the 5 1/4 per cent fare increase which went into effect yesterday.

"If they need the money, then that's the way it is," Cerza said. "Just because they're government regulated is no reason why they can't increase fares."

THE HORDE OF businessmen who daily ride the C&NW showed little distress over the extra ticket costs. They lauded the C&NW service and said they are willing to pay for it.

Richard Morris came to Arlington

Heights from New York and says he appreciates the service more than most of his fellow commuters. Chicago has the best rail commutation to and from the suburbs," he contends.

"They're cleaner and run more often than New York's rail network. I hope they can somehow make this line pay for itself."

And Lowell Christy, who has been a regular at the Arlington Heights stop since 1954, "back in the days of steam engines," shrugged his shoulders when asked about the jump in fares. He will stay with the rail line but hopes they "don't overdo a good thing" by continuing to spiral the cost of commuting by rail.

"I certainly won't abandon the train and driver," said Bryan Coughlin of Palatine. "There's nothing you can do about the rates. Nobody likes it but did you ever try to park in the loop?"

COMMUTERS AREN'T disgruntled about the added cost, but they are concerned over the possibility of the railroad cutting its service to the suburbs.

For commuters such as Larry March of Arlington Heights a service cutback would be critical. "I have no choice but to ride the train. My wife needs the car," he said. "The train now is convenient and worth the price."

An elderly man at the Arlington Heights station yesterday morning said he recalls when it cost 55 cents to ride the C&NW to Chicago. "But that was years ago," he added.

Today the price one-way from Arlington Heights is $1.40. Palatine commuters pay $1.50 one-way.

As the train screeched to a halt in front of the waiting commuters, two green-clad conductors opened the doors and escorted passengers up the steps.

"No we haven't heard a word of grumbling about the price," said one of the conductors. "But I'm sure they don't like it either."

Meyer Won't Run In 3rd District

by KEN KOZAK

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has finally revealed that he will not be an independent candidate for a 3rd district seat in the Illinois State Legislature this fall.

Meyer also said he has not yet decided

Schaumburg Girl Is In Teen Ager Event

Jo Ann Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Ryan, 1710 Syracuse Lane, Schaumburg, will represent this area in the Miss Illinois Teen Ager Pageant Friday and Saturday in Harvey.

Jo Ann attends Schaumburg High School, where she is active in student council, track, baseball and ecology action.

She is being sponsored in the competition, which judges girls on scholastic achievements, civic contributions, poise, personality and appearance, by McArthur Realtors, Schaumburg.

The winner of the state pageant will appear in the nationals in Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 23-26.

Campanelli To Give $500 Scholarship

The presentation of a $500 college scholarship will be made today by representatives of Campanelli Construction Inc. to Frank Pirak, a June graduate of Schaumburg High School.

The scholarship will be presented by Mrs. Carol Abuzzesi of Roselle in the memory of her husband, who was killed in a construction accident while working for Campanelli.

This is the first year the scholarship will be presented. Each year it will be presented to a Schaumburg High School graduate who comes from a home with just one parent.

if he will endorse the regular Republican candidates, Donald L. Totten of Schaumburg and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights, against whom he ran his unsuccessful maverick candidacy in the March primary.

Apparently the decision not to run was made over the past several months, but Meyer did not announce it until last weekend when he conferred with "Republicans from different areas." Meyer refused to reveal the identities of the people he talked with over the weekend, but it is probable that they included the area mayors who backed his unsuccessful primary bid.

"I talked with people over the weekend," he said, "and told them I had taken on too many commitments" to take on a candidacy in November.

IN THE LAST few months, Meyer said, he has "taken on extra personal work with the feeling that I wouldn't be campaigning in September and October. If I had made it in March I wouldn't have taken on that extra work."

In March Meyer finished third in the primary behind Totten and Macdonald. In that contest, his first foray beyond local politics, Meyer pulled about 25 per cent of the vote running without the endorsement of Republican township political organizations.

Meyer said he does not know yet if he will endorse Totten or Macdonald.

"I haven't been asked to yet," he said, "and I don't know if I will or won't. I have had no contact with (Republican) township leaders with the exception of Bernie Peterson." Peterson is Republican committeeman for Palatine Township.

Meyer feels his endorsement will be sought, and expects the matter to come up shortly when he meets with Palatine Township leaders on the subject of dissolving Palatine Township governing agencies.

REGARDING HIS political future, Meyer said he will "take things as they come," as far as any future candidacies are concerned.

Resident Takes Mosquito Situation Into Own Hands

A Hoffman Estates resident is contemplating action which could result in the village's disannexation from the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NMAD).

Richard Regan, who is chairman of the village's plan commission but would be acting only as a private citizen, said Monday he will seek legal advice on remedies to what he termed lack of service by a taxing body.

A resident of 153 N. Woodlawn, Regan said NMAD has fogged with chemicals to kill mosquitoes in his area, but has not fogged on his side of the street. When he called NMAD to learn why, he was told it is because homes on his side of the street are too close to the village of Schaumburg, said Regan.

Schaumburg currently is involved in a legal suit, in which NMAD is contesting the validity of a Schaumburg village ordinance prohibiting fogging with malathion and other toxic chemicals.

Schaumburg recently enacted an emergency clause in the ordinance, asking NMAD to fog, because of a high level of mosquito population. NMAD refused to comply with the request, unless Schaumburg either repeals the ordinance or grants it exempt status. Schaumburg thus far has not done either one.

HOFFMAN ESTATES officials have complained to NMAD about infrequent fogging in only a few areas of the village, and none at all in others. They were told NMAD would not fog the entire village until it received a village map from Schaumburg, to ensure fogging crews did not stray into Schaumburg. Hoffman Estates offered NMAD a map of its own and since then NMAD has fogged parts of the village.

Regan commented on the suggestion of Schaumburg's Mayor Robert O. Atcher when his constituents complained about NMAD — that they file a class action suit demanding either service or a refund of tax money. A suit would take too much time and might have little chance of success, Regan said.

What Regan proposes likely would require an act of the state legislature, he said, but if it succeeded it would bring responsibility for implementing pesticide programs to a local level, which he feels would be more responsive. Regan added he still would favor state laws on what types of pesticides could be used, and restrictions against harmful chemicals.

The first step is to determine if disannexation is legally feasible, said Regan. If it is, he then plans to solicit support from other persons, both in his own village and in other communities, to form a committee to initiate action.

Multicon Gets Temporary Dalehouse Liquor License

Multicon Properties, Inc., received a temporary liquor license to operate the former Dalehouse Restaurant Monday night, over protest and charges of conspiracy by Multicon's competitor for the license.

The license was granted by Mayor Frederick Downey, acting in his capacity as liquor commissioner. He appeared to base his ruling on a preliminary finding by Cook County Chancery Court Judge James J. Mejda granting possession of the restaurant to Multicon. The ruling was cited by Village Atty. Edward Hofert at the opening of the continued hearing.

Atty. David Chaimovitz, representing Twinbrook Investments, Inc., renewed charges he initiated June 3 that Multicon has had prior knowledge of the outcome of the liquor commission hearing. Twinbrook also applied for the license, and the hearings opened in April to determine which firm should be licensed for the restaurant premises.

"Should any wrongful action take place tonight I will hold village officials personally liable, as well as the village," said Chaimovitz.

HE URGED Downey to wait until after Aug. 14 to rule in the hearing. Judge Mejda is scheduled to finalize his ruling then, after hearing oral arguments in the suit filed by Twinbrook to contest Multicon's repossession of the building last November.

"You'd be mighty embarrassed when this is reversed," suggested Chaimovitz. When asked how the granting of a temporary license could injure Chaimovitz's client, he alleged it would indicate "a partaking by the village of Multicon's conspiring to prevent our possession." Chaimovitz said Multicon is a large developer, "contributing much to the village." But, he added, "this commissioner sits here in principles of justice, and not in principles of monetary gain to the village."

Downey responded he did "not appreciate the threats you have made against the village of Hoffman Estates. The village is not intimidated by threats of lawsuits," he said. He added Chaimovitz' threats against him "personally," did not bother him "in the least."

Prior to Downey's ruling, Hofert asked Multicon's attorney, Louis Lehr, how much delays of the legal suit and in receiving the license had cost the firm.

LEHR REPLIED Multicon was losing $500 daily, over a 90-day period, or thus far roughly $45,000 because it has been unable to operate the restaurant. When Multicon reopens the structure, it will operate under the name Hilldale Restaurant.

In ordering the temporary license, Downey stipulated Multicon would have to return it immediately should the final court ruling favor Twinbrook. The stipulation had been agreed to by Multicon earlier in the hearing.

Chaimovitz predicted Judge Mejda would reverse his ruling, and grant possession of the building to Twinbrook. The judge "either ignored or forgot about major testimony in the trial," said Chaimovitz, and he threatened to correct the judge through an appeal should Mejda rule in favor of Multicon.

Denial Won't Halt Shell Bid

Last week's denial by the Hoffman Estates Zoning Board of Appeals of a special-use permit for Shell Oil Co. to build a service station on the southeast corner of Higgins and Barrington roads will not affect litigation by Shell to force the village to grant the permit.

The litigation, before the Circuit Court of Cook County for about six months, aims at declaring the village's zoning invalid. The land is zoned for business. Shell contends that the village has deprived the company of its right to use the property for "its highest and best use."

Edward Hofert, village attorney, said the village prefers the land to be used for light manufacturing or a research center because of its access to the Tollway.

Shell contends a service station is a proper use for the land and cites as evidence the Standard Oil station across the street. It also asserts there are no nearby residents who would suffer.

Shell has a contract to purchase the land for $180,000 from Irving Rootberg if it receives the special use permit.

Negotiations Parley Set

guage, but the board has refused, saying the items should instead be placed in the board policy manual.

In the association newsletter association officials explain they want the guarantees in the contract because violations would be subject to a district grievance procedure and "the law will enforce a contract but will not enforce board policy."

Seger said the board will not consider placing the guarantees in the contract precisely because it will open the items for grievance. Instead, he said the board is willing to set up faculty-administration committees on any problem to try to work out a solution.

Seger added that he does not believe the board's position will change, even if teachers at the Aug. 22 meeting uphold the association's position. "The board's position is very strong," he said.

While working to strengthen their own program, Fox pointed to the idea that other park districts might want to start cooperative programs.

"Instead of spending a lot of money and time in scheduling and transportation, we feel we are getting a well-balanced program for this group," Fox said.

Ludovissy said some of the expansion plans for the program might include a cooperative venture with Kirk Center in Palatine for a full day a week, probably Saturday, during the regular school year.

The two sides have not begun to discuss possible salary increases for the 1972-73 year, but both sides have presented proposals.

The board has proposed freezing the base pay and paying teachers now in the district the increments called for in the present contract. The teachers have proposed a small raise in the base and increases in the distance between steps for experienced teachers.

SEGER SAID HE hopes the two sides will begin discussing the financial issues in the contract because "we're not really that far apart on those issues."

Verdonck said he still hopes the two sides can resolve the issues between them before the beginning of school, but added that he expects teachers to return to classes on time whether or not the contract is settled.

Education Today

'Publish Or Perish': How Worthwhile?

by WANDALYN RICE

One of the fringe benefits of being an education writer for any newspaper is the fact that the title automatically puts a person on the mailing list for a myriad of educational journals.

Sometimes, in fact, I look at my mail and wonder when educators find the time to educate — they are all so busy writing for journals.

Some of the articles are informative and worthwhile, certainly, and if they were not published educators would be thrashing around on opposite ends of the country trying the same experiments with no idea of results from other areas.

BUT ONCE in a while, an article comes along so patently worthless that I begin to muse on why anyone even bothered.

A case in point (and you suspected I had a case in mind, didn't you?) is an article in the summer edition of Illinois Schools Journal, a publication put out by Chicago State University.

The article, titled "Student Attitudes and Success" by a professor at the school, reports the results of a study carried out on 1,000 students in a vocational high school. The students filled out a questionnaire designed to measure their attitudes toward school and the results were correlated to their achievement — whether they were good students or bad students.

The results will, I'm sure, prove no surprise to anyone with a passing knowledge of human nature.

The good student, according to the study, had a definite goal in mind for his education, liked the school and teachers and "tends to be realistic about the good and bad points of the school."

The bad student, on the other hand, "seems to be one who is less certain about the reasons he is attending school, and he is not particularly ambitious to do very well. He does not feel that he is accepted by the school and his teachers."

THE ARTICLE IS, mercifully, fairly short and fairly readable as it discusses these less than earthshaking revelations. It ends with an uplifting statement about how educators should be given acceptance and respect to "make school a place they want to attend."

The major question is — why would any reasonably intelligent college professor (and I assume the man is reasonably intelligent because he can put English sentences together in a generally coherent fashion) want to waste his time on a study like that one?

The only answer is that this study, like so many put out by colleges, must be an example of the "publish or perish" syndrome. The poor professor must be under the gun to produce a quantity of publications to satisfy his boss and is turning to anything that is quick and easy to do.

This would be fairly harmless except for a footnote to the article that reads, "This research was supported by funds from the Chicago State University Organized Research Committee." In short — he actually spent MONEY doing the research.

THE "PUBLISH or perish" idea has been widely and effectively attacked from many quarters as a prime example of wasted academic motion. This seems to be one example of it.

And the sad part of it is that in one sentence in the article, the professor actually comes up with a sentence that may be the basis for a more useful study. The sentence is, "One possibility to consider is that the negative attitudes toward school stem from negative attitudes of the school toward low-achieving and poor-attending students."

Now, wouldn't it be interesting to do a study of teachers' attitudes — to find out what kinds of kids they hate and what that means to the kids?

Well, at least it would be more interesting than a study telling us that bad students dislike school.

But it might take longer — and our poor professor-author needed something in a hurry. And he needed something on which he could predict the outcome. Poor guy.

Small Claims Court Not Available To Suburbanites

A new small claims court established by the Cook County Circuit Court is not generally available to suburban residents, the Herald learned this week.

The new court, set up in the 1st Municipal District in cooperation with Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, is limiting its services to cases involving residents of Chicago or incidents occurring in the city of Chicago. It began hearing cases in June.

The new court is unique in the metropolitan area because it allows persons with disputes involving less than $300 to argue their own cases under a special trial procedure in which rules of evidence do not apply and the judge assists the complainant in presenting his case.

The court makes it possible for persons to take small losses that would not be worth the fees of an attorney to court for themselves. It costs only $9.50 to file suit in the court.

BUT THE NEW court is not generally available to suburban residents who have disputes with the neighbors or businessmen in their own or adjacent suburbs.

Either the complainant or the defendant must be a resident of the 1st Municipal District of Cook County Circuit Court or the incident precipitating the case — such as the signing of a contract or an accident — must have occurred within that district, spokesmen for the Clerk of the County Circuit Court and for the Illinois Attorney General's Consumer Fraud Division said yesterday.

The 1st Municipal District boundaries match those for the City of Chicago.

Northwest suburban residents generally live within the 2nd or 3rd municipal districts.

The 2nd Municipal District, with its headquarters in Skokie, includes the communities of Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling in addition to most North Shore suburbs.

THE 3RD MUNICIPAL District, with headquarters in Niles, includes Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect and Schaumburg in addition to other communities.

Although civil cases involving claims up to $15,000 can be filed in the second and the third district courts, there are no special "small claims procedures" with lower fees or in which attorneys are allowed.

Although many suburban residents do plead their own cases in the local courts, the services of an attorney are generally needed to properly fill out the forms for filing the suit.

Contend Information 'Privileged'

Panther Lawyers Oppose Testifying

CHICAGO (UPI) — Three Black Panther attorneys subpoenaed to testify in a hearing that has interrupted the trial of Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan argued yesterday they should not be forced to take the stand.

The three said information which the Black Panthers had given them was privileged under law and they could not divulge it. They asked that the subpoenas be quashed and the hearing be discontinued.

Defense attorneys argued that the Panther lawyers had some information that was not privileged and should be forced to testify. Circuit Court Judge Philip Romiti said he would rule on the matter today.

IT WAS THE SECOND consecutive day that subpoenaed witnesses have tried to stop the special hearing and resume the Hanrahan trial. The hearings began last Thursday after four statements purportedly made by Black Panthers were found in the files of attorney Jonathan Hyman.

The hearings are being held to determine the authenticity of the statements, in which the Panthers admit firing shots and handling weapons during the Dec. 4, 1969, police raid when Panther leaders Mark Clark and Fred Hampton were killed.

The statements conflict with testimony the Panthers gave to a county grand jury that subsequently indicted Hanrahan and 13 other law enforcement officers on charges of conspiring to obstruct justice after the raid.

ATTORNEY David Scribner of New York City, one of those subpoenaed to testify, argued that the hearings endangered the privileged attorney-client relationship.

Scribner said he and Hyman are representing Panthers who survived the 1969 raid in a $16 million damage suit against the police raiders. The suit is now pending in federal court, and he said if he turned his records over to the Hanrahan attorneys as requested in the subpoena, it would violate his rights and those of his Panther clients.

Romiti concurred that the subpoenas were too broad, and said Scribner had raised "substantial questions" about the hearing. "This court intends to give it some careful consideration," he said. Attorney Donald Stang, who allegedly obtained a statement from Panther Louis Trueblood shortly after the raid, joined in the motion with Hyman and Scribner.

Convention Nominating Judges Unconstitutional, Scott Says

Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said Tuesday that nomination of judges by political convention or by political committees violates the new state constitution.

Scott issued the opinion in response to a request by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie concerning a bill passed by the Legislature allowing nomination of judges within 90 days of a general election.

"The sole purpose of that provision," Scott said, "is to allow partisan political committees to name the party candidates for judicial office at the election on Nov. 7, 1972."

"While that purpose is not explicitly stated on the face of the bill," he said,

"it is implicit under the circumstances existing at the time the bill was introduced and passed by the General Assembly."

UNDER THE NEW state constitution, Scott said, "judges are not to be nominated by party conventions. Filling vacancies in nomination by party committees is comparable to nomination by convention, and also prohibited."

Scott said the only method for filling judicial vacancies under the present constitution is by Illinois Supreme Court appointment.

Ogilvie refrained from signing the bill pending an opinion from Scott.

Middleton Case Motions Denied

Two motions filed on behalf of Des Plaines physician Dr. James G. Middleton were denied in Cook County Criminal Court Monday.

The motions sought to vacate a 5-to-10-year prison sentence for Dr. Middleton and sought a new trial for him.

Dr. Middleton was convicted Feb. 3 of deviate sexual assault and aggravated battery.

He remains free on $25,000 bond pending an appeal of the two denied motions to the Illinois Appellate Court.

Dr. Middleton was convicted of drugging one of his former women patients and then committing a deviate sexual act on her.

But Programs Remain Inadequate

America's War On Hunger Expands

A recent report from the Department of Agriculture reveals that about 11.5 million Americans now are getting food stamps from the government.

Except for a few extremely poor people, these stamps aren't given away free. Recipients are charged according to their ability to pay. But even those who pay top scale for food stamps get a bargain.

They can use the stamps at any participating grocery store to buy food worth far more than they paid for the stamps.

In addition to the 11.5 million Americans getting stamps, about 3.5 million are receiving packages of food distributed by the Agriculture Department. Each of the nation's 3,000 counties has the right to choose which program it prefers to come under.

The two food distribution programs together are supplementing the diets of 15 million hungry people. That is an all-time high and it represents an increase of about 8 million persons since 1969.

BOTH PRESIDENT Nixon and his Democratic challenger, Sen. George S. McGovern, are likely to claim campaign credit for this rapid expansion of the war against hunger in America. And both can make a case.

The increase took place under Nixon's administration. But it was forced largely by McGovern's special Senate Committee on Hunger.

Until McGovern's committee got on their backs, bureaucrats in the Agriculture Department tended to view food distribution programs primarily as a way of aiding farmers by getting rid of commodity surpluses. Feeding the hungry was, at best, a secondary consideration. Now it has become a primary objective.

While Nixon and McGovern debate who's entitled to credit for improvement of food programs, they may also exchange accusations about who's to blame for the fact that the programs still are grossly inadequate to the need.

THE LATEST Census Bureau report on family incomes shows that about 25.6 million Americans are living below the official "poverty line." It seems logical to conclude that if we have more than 25 million poor people, and only 15 million are getting food assistance, some 10 million are going hungry, unheeded and unhelped.

Efforts to expand existing food programs to reach these people haven't gotten very far because of the assumption, which has prevailed widely for the past two years, that Congress soon would enact a welfare reform bill that would give poor families cash grants and eliminate the need for food stamps.

But it now appears that welfare reform is so deeply mired in political controversy it has little chance of enactment this year.

Meanwhile, those 10 million poor people who are left out of existing food programs will just have to stay hungry.

You may have wondered how we can understand the complicated circuitry of hundreds of different TVs and radios. It is because we belong to an electronic service that gives us the complete data on thousands of radio and TV circuits. And each month new ones are sent to keep us up with the industry. Color, black & white, AM and FM, stereos, record changers, auto radios, tape equipment and recorders. Specific details, descriptions and replacement information is included for all electronics.

This kind of data enables us at Landwehr's Home Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, to do a faster servicing job with complete accuracy—even the very old sets like the 1952 model that a customer wanted serviced for sentimental reasons. Before I joined the Payroll Savings Plan all I could save was string.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5 1/4% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 1/4%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970.

with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Stick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with string.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a good way to save.

'Sgt. Hack Wants You'

New Recruiters Pushing 'New' Army

by JAMES WINT
 CUYAHOGA FALLS, Ohio (UPI) — America's "new" army is using new methods to recruit volunteers and the champ of the new recruiters may well be Staff Sgt. David H. Hack.

He has his own slogan: "SGT. HACK WANTS YOU," a variation of the famed "UNCLE SAM WANTS YOU" posters first used during World War I. T-shirts with the Hack slogan are being distributed throughout the country. Earlier this year Hack, 32, a native of Louisville, Ky., distributed 40,000 "UNCLE SAM WANTS YOU" posters.

And sloganeering is only the beginning of Hack's gimmicks for attracting young men into uniform.

It all started when the sergeant drew an Army reprimand early this year for not getting a single recruit his first two months on the job here. This was quite a blow to a man who for three years had been the top recruiter in the Akron area, and in the month of March, 1970, was named the top recruiter in the country.

HE MOVED INTO the former recruiting office of the American Nazi Party in this small Akron suburb in December, 1971.

"For the first two months we were open," Hack said, "not one person came in to sign up."

The Army has an objective of four enlistees per month for all its recruiters. Hack failed to meet that objective the first few months in his new location and the Army reprimanded him in writing, citing "incompetence."

Hack put the letter under a piece of clear plastic on his desk and then went to work.

He had some posters printed up and personally handed them out. In another effort to attract youths, he had a super painting job done on his personal car — a 1960 Corvette — including handpainted scenes of paratroopers in action, stars, and red and blue racing stripes. He had the Uncle Sam poster stenciled in full color on its hood.

In still another move, he ordered a white jeep and had extensive painting and customizing done on it. The jeep was so impressive it served as a pace car for a big race at a local stock car track, and it will be on exhibition at the Ohio State Fair.

"We're trying to let everyone know where we're at," Hack said. "That's what it's all about."

"SO MANY PEOPLE think what you tell them is a bunch of baloney. They believe their neighbor who was in the Army in 1942 about brutality and dehumanization. It isn't true."

"Whenever we talk to people they believe us," Hack said. "That's a major portion of the ballgame."

Hack, a handsome, blond six-footer, has some convincing proof of his credibility. This month, one of the 25 persons indicted in connection with the May, 1970, disturbances at Kent State University joined the Army through Hack's efforts.

"Two and one-half years ago," Hack said, "this man was the most anti-military person you'd ever want to talk to. He's still not gung-ho 100 per cent, but he has enlisted."

"The reason is a friend of his told him I'd give him the straight facts and I would back up everything I said. He enlisted in the Army guaranteed to go into the medical field and to Europe."

Hack's methods combine the traditional and the new. He visits nearby campuses, as most recruiters do, but also stops at fraternities and sororities.

"I DRIVE AROUND in my Corvette," he said. "I have open discussions in my office every Thursday night and if a guy wants to call me at 2 o'clock in the morning and come over to my house and talk, that's all right too."

"It's a lot of fun and it's something I've been trying to do ever since I've been in the Army. If we can have people trying to make it a better Army, that's what I want."

Word of mouth, the fancy car and jeep and extra hours on the job have created a recruiting boom here. One person heard about Hack in Texas and came here to sign up.

"They're really concerned about the future," Hack said of his recruits, "but they're tired of baloney."

"I don't think and I don't preach that everyone should join the Army."

Eagleton Affair Handled Badly

For the first time in American history, a candidate for vice president of the United States has been withdrawn after receiving the blessing of the man he would serve and the party which had endorsed him.

It is regrettable that Sen. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri was forced off the Democratic ticket because the controversy surrounding him centered on the words "mental illness," which this country should be able to deal with rationally by this time.

The truth, which must not be overlooked, was that mental illness — despite the headlines — was never really the issue. The issues were those of candor — between the presidential nominee and his running mate — and of the way in which the presidential nominee picks his running mate.

With the demise of Sen. Eagleton as the vice presidential nominee, the question of why he did not inform Sen. McGovern of his past medical history becomes moot.

The question of how Sen. McGovern handicapped Sen. Eagleton with so little firsthand knowledge of his qualifications will remain with the presidential nominee, whomever he now chooses to share the ticket.

Already, thousands of words have been written — and volumes will be forthcoming — about the effect of The Eagleton Affair on the outlook of mental patients struggling for return to useful lives, on the process of selection of the vice presidential candidate, on the propriety of the search into the private life of a public candidate.

Undoubtedly, some persons in mental therapy, clinging to the goal of restoration to normality, will be discouraged to witness the fate of Sen. Eagleton. But, realistically, the question of one seeking the office of Vice President of the United States cannot be equated to the question of someone, enduring the same difficulty, who does not aspire to similar office.

The question of propriety is as moot as is now the question of Sen. Eagleton's capabilities for the office he sought. No one can seriously declare that the press — or the opposition party — should not explore to the fullest the background and the qualifications of a man who would be "a heartbeat away" from what remains the most critical political office in the world today.

There remains the question of how the vice presidential candidate is selected. There will undoubtedly be a series of proposals forthcoming for reform of the system under which the man who is selected by his party for president then huddles with advisers to select a running mate overnight.

Much can be said in favor of giving the presidential nominee more time in which to make his selection.

But the fact cannot be avoided that a man seriously considering a bid for the presidency should be amply prepared to declare his running mate when the time comes.

This is where Sen. George McGovern was obviously lacking, and this is where ultimately The Eagleton Affair must be laid on his doorstep.

Free Press Failures

While political parties have a great responsibility in selection of candidates for public office, the free press of the United States has no less a responsibility in fair and accurate reporting of this process.

It is admittedly discomforting for newsmen to point out that there have been two major failures in that responsibility by persons identified with the press in the current election campaign.

The outstanding example is that perpetrated by nationally celebrated columnist Jack Anderson, who charged in the wake of disclosure of Sen. Eagleton's history of mental illness that the senator also had a drinking problem.

Anderson, whose national reputation intensified the seriousness of his charges, later apologized for broadcasting a story for which he finally admitted he had no firm evidence.

Rather than repairing the damage he had inflicted, however, he compounded his injustice to the senator by stubbornly refusing to retract so-called "facts," which, by his own definition do not exist until they can be proven.

While not connected to The Eagleton Affair, another lapse in press responsibility was the so-called endorsement of Sen. George McGovern by the American Newspaper Guild, originally a trade union of working newsmen, but now a conglomerate labor organization embracing a majority of members who have nothing to do with the gathering or reporting of news.

The Guild's "endorsement" was engineered by its national president, one Charles Perlik of Buffalo, N.Y., and it has been a source of embarrassment to working reporters throughout the country who strive to maintain objectivity in their coverage of political matters.

Neither Jack Anderson nor the American Newspaper Guild represent the greater number of press representatives in this country who are acutely aware of their responsibilities. But the actions of both have branded the press in the minds of many as both partisan and irresponsible.

The facts which caused the removal of Sen. Eagleton from candidacy for the vice presidency were not created by the press, and the reporting of them by the national media can be viewed as nothing less than fulfillment of its responsibility to inform the American people.

The monumental effect which the pervasive news coverage of modern days has on the fate of individuals and political parties, however, is amply illustrated by The Eagleton Affair.

That impact magnifies the obligation of the national press to be accurate and impartial. Two loud voices among us have failed their colleagues, and the people.

Bruce Bioassat's Column

Careful VP Selection Missing

by BRUCE BIOSSAT

A glaring lesson of the Thomas Eagleton affair is that, despite all pretense to the contrary, we still don't pick our vice presidential nominee with the necessary great care and thought.

After John F. Kennedy was assassinated, many shocked politicians in both parties were heard to say that this tragedy underscored the need to choose vice presidential prospects not for short-range political value but strictly on their qualifications for the White House.

Whereupon Sen. Barry Goldwater, in naming New York Rep. William Miller as his running mate less than a year later, seemed to offer in explanation only this: "He gives Lyndon Johnson fits."

And Johnson himself, picking Sen. Hubert Humphrey, was reported to be less concerned with Humphrey's established talent and experience than with heavy pressures from the Democratic party's liberal wing.

Humphrey's 1968 choice, Sen. Edmund Muskie, came out of a typical pressure-cooker situation, with the bleary-eyed presidential nominee and his bleary-eyed advisers hastily weighing prospects. At the time, Muskie seemed a wise selection. But his faltering response to the demands of the 1972 campaign raised grave doubts.

President Nixon in 1968 did in fact take more time in choosing. He had sifted names for weeks, and had actually chosen Spiro Agnew at least 10 days before the Republican convention at Miami Beach.

Yet, curiously, he felt it necessary to go through the accepted charade of appearing to choose his men by listening to volumes of last-minute advice.

Furthermore, Nixon's judgment was heavily political. Agnew was seen as a "bridge candidate," a man with a northern urban background but bearing a conservative strain pleasing to the South. The feeling that George Wallace could not make Agnew a target was not a small consideration.

So now we come to Eagleton, another product of high-pressure haste, culled from a list of 30 names.

The senator says he might have told history but that he did not have time to think on that "hectic day." McGovern's campaign manager, Gary Hart, says it took nearly a week to assemble all the details of all Eagleton's record of hospitalization and treatment for nervous exhaustion and fatigue.

These utterances can only be put down as confessions of laxity. Any observer knows that the California delegate credentials challenge put the McGovern forces under great strain in the final days leading to his nomination. But it does not make sense that they did not detach one or two able men to sift out vice presidential names and investigate, with deliberate care, the top choices.

It is a simple fact that the United States government does a vastly more thorough job of investigating the backgrounds of top and even middle echelon personnel for the federal bureaucracy. Some key positions lie vacant literally for months while the checking agencies grind slowly through the records.

By contrast, we seem generally to select men who might be asked to lead the nation with not much more care than some might use in picking a dinner companion.

On the afternoon of July 13, when he was chosen, Thomas Eagleton was only a hazy figure emerging from the fog of a steam bath. There can be no alibis for such fuzzy choosing.

The Public's Issue

Chemical Curbs Needed

Rachel Carson may not have realized at the time, but when she wrote Silent Spring in 1962 she started a small revolution.

Whether Silent Spring marked the beginning of the ecology movement is problematical. It did, however, begin the publicized battle against the pesticide pollution of our world.

Today, Clay Brown of Palestine continues the battle. As past president of Pollution and Environmental Problems (PEP) and as a village trustee in Palestine, he would seem to know what he's talking about.

by CLAYTON W. BROWN

One of the quietest unpublishized wars taking place in our world is the chemical war with our environment. Politics, intrigue, propaganda and brainwashing are some of the weapons being used to influence people that the way to a fuller happier life with a manicured weed free lawn and bug free patio is to do it the "easy" way by spraying whatever is bothering you with the latest poison being offered on your grocery store shelves. This allows you more time to play your favorite game of golf on an immaculate course that for your pleasure has been inundated with herbicides, insecticides and fungicides.

Who is telling you that you're not leading the normal suburban life if you have weeds, crabgrass or insects living in your shrubs? The advertising companies hired by the chemical companies whose main purpose is to show a profit regardless of its product's effect on our environment. The average consumer feels confident that, when he buys one of these poisons, it has been thoroughly tested and approved by the government for public use. This is not the case. The government bases its findings only on data provided to them by the manufacturer. Attempts to put controls on the use of certain pesticides has gone down in defeat as a result of powerful chemical lobbies. The very act of the Environmental Protection Agency to control the use of DDT was challenged in the courts by the chemical companies. The worldwide evidence of its impact on our ecological system had no bearing on their consciences. They demanded that the EPA do its own testing with taxpayers money in order to prove it hazardous. The position of these companies is that they will continue to sell these poisons until proven they are harmful. Why shouldn't they be obligated to prove by years of testing that they are harmless before being allowed to put them on the market? The deadliest of these chemicals, like Dieldrin, Parathion, Chloridane, etc., are promoted and available over the counter in stores but are outlawed in most European countries including Germany which created most of them as derivatives from nerve gases invented in World War II.

Rachel Carson was the first to warn the world of the destruction to our environment taking place as a result of chemicals being introduced into our ecosystem. Most of the world heeded her advice except her own country where she was ridiculed by chemical companies or those under their domination. She was accused of standing in the way of "Technical advancement." Years later we have accepted the fact that she was right and other qualified scientists have taken up the cause only to have their warnings fall on deaf ears or to be ridiculed as "mad scientists" and "old ladies." Who's listening?

All chemicals used by homeowners in and around their yards are partially carried off in rains into the storm sewer systems that empty into the creeks, rivers and, ultimately, lakes. How much impact this has on our environment cannot be measured, but it's there. Look at any swift flowing creek or water falling over a dam and watch the detergent foam float along. Where did it come from? The insecticides, herbicides and fungicides are there but you can't see them.

One thing is certain, there is no more water on Earth today than when it was created. Your drinking water comes from either a well or lake and many well water systems in this country are already contaminated by these chemicals and others are showing traces. While the suburbs are looking forward to obtaining water from Lake Michigan, the Four States Lake Michigan Conference Report indicates there is contamination of the water by chemical compounds used in the spray control programs for pest insects. In the meantime the chemical companies continue to manufacture their products, promote the convenience of their use and label them "safe."

Who has the power to end this war? You, the consumer can play a big part. Many retailers now carry chemical products on one shelf with organic and biological controls on another. Merchants and manufacturers constantly adjust to consumer trends. By rejecting dangerous chemical products whether in liquid, granular form or mixed in with your favorite fertilizer you can bring about change. I mean you, who continues to buy these products with the thought that it's O.K. for me since everyone else isn't. The price of convenience today will be paid for by your children in the future.

Mosquito Spraying: 'Thoughtless'

Did you send your child outside to play on the morning of July 17? If you live in Hoffman Estates, perhaps that was not such a good idea. Mothers warn their children about the dangers of playing in the street, wandering too far from home, or talking to strangers. I wonder whether they warned them about the dangers of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District spraying truck. It drove past our street at 10:30 that morning. There were seven children playing outside. Since it was a windy day, the spray drifted towards us.

Malathion, the chemical used in the mosquito spraying program, is an organophosphate pesticide which is poisonous to warm-blooded animals, including humans. It will take years to determine the ultimate effects these organophosphates will have on man and the environment. According to the Illinois Audubon Society: "The use of chemical poisons usually guarantees that the community will need pesticides year after year since the chemicals kill the natural predators of the mosquito and this favors the mosquito in the long run."

The method used by NWMAD presently is misting (fine spray). According to the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service: "Fogging and misting are best done in the evening just before or just after dark when mosquitoes are most active and when atmospheric conditions are such that the fog will remain near the ground." It is bad enough that spraying has to be done at all. Why must people be forced to shut their windows at night in fear of the spray coming into the house? It has been learned that the NWMAD will begin spraying during the day and on weekends! Think of your children inhaling and absorbing the poison. Highly allergic or asthmatic children and adults become very ill if exposed to Malathion.

Who is responsible for this thoughtless spraying? Is it the driver who sprays without regard for the children and adults who are outside their homes? Is it the managers of the mosquito spraying program who admittedly do not investigate or concern themselves as to the effects on humans or the ecosystem? Or is it we, the residents (and newspaper editorials such as the one which appeared in the Herald on July 20th, Mosquitoes' Revenge), who condone and request the spraying, believing that these managers (and the chemical companies they support) know best about these things and have our best interests at heart?

We, as taxpayers and citizens who want to breathe unpoisoned air, must demand that more environmentally sound ways be found to eliminate the mosquito. If you do not want your house or its surroundings sprayed, phone the NWMAD and say so.

'Teacher Power Has Local Value'

Were I inclined to be nasty, I would subject the last paragraph of your editorial, "More Teacher Power," to semantic analysis, for the absurdities presented there are seldom paralleled in the dreary annals of hometown journalism. Instead I shall point out that locally the most significant results of growing teacher power will be:

— Emphasis on reducing class size so that youngsters can receive more individual attention — Pressure to reduce the homeowner's taxes through a) Proper assessment practices (Remember Arlington Track) b) Increased state funding c) Increased federal funding — Insistence that the schools provide an equal educational opportunity for all children, including slow learners and gifted, rich and poor, whites and Chicanos.

Why would anyone object to that?

Business Today

by JOHN M. WILLIAMS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The airlines, trying desperately to make up some of their losses, have reached into the goodie bag and are offering everything from strolling minstrels to "Dracula tours" to get people on board.

With recession-inflicted losses well into the hundreds of millions of dollars during the past two years, airline executives are reaching far afield to get out of the woods.

Typical of the airlines' new promotion campaigns are a series of tours and "in-flight happenings" offered by Eastern, American, Pan American and United airlines.

Eastern, for example, is pushing a concept called "the wings of man versus the wheels of man." Company executives hope the promotion, designed to capture part of the vacation market which normally travels by auto, will result in sales approaching $10 to $12 million.

"EIGHTY-FOUR PER cent of the families who take vacations go by car," said Maurice Kelley, Eastern vice president. "It would increase our business four fold if we got it all, but we'd be happy with only a few per cent." Kelley said Eastern is aiming at middle income families, with one or two small children.

Included in the plan are car rental facilities at the destination, babysitters for the kids and other benefits all aimed at making "the experience at its other end" that much more enjoyable. Hite results so far have been "excellent," according to Kelley.

United, the free world's largest commercial air carrier, is wooing the new businessman to increase sales.

According to Colin Murray, a United regional marketing manager, the promotion is aimed at "where it is, tomorrow."

"We split our promotion and advertising between the pleasure and business travel," he said. Included in many United flights are a variety of "in-flight happenings" with guitarists, caricaturists and wine tasting experts aboard to entertain passengers.

AMERICAN AIRLINES, which reported a 1972 six-month loss of $7.2 million for the same period last year, is confident that "intensive sales campaigns can stimulate airline business."

Thomas J. Ross Jr., American vice president for passenger sales and advertising, said, "Last year, for example, we started a full-scale promotion to the West Coast called 'California Wholesale.' Surveys told us that the promotion generated some 7,000 more transcontinental passengers than we would otherwise have carried. That translates into more than $1 million of additional revenue."

American currently is promoting a "Fall for New York" tour, a Utah skiing package and a selected campaign designed to attract youths, blacks and businessmen.

IF WINE TASTING, guitarists, a wider selection of movies and family tours aren't enough to indicate the airlines' aggressive pitch for renewed profits, a special Pan American tour to Europe would dispel any doubts.

For $935 Pan Am will fly you to Transylvania and give you an 18-day tour of the fabled stomping grounds of "Count Dracula." Pan Am public relations men swear the tour is legitimate and say enough interest has been spurred to set aside space for 16 tours of 15 persons each. "Now there's something that's off the beaten track," a spokesman cracked.

All told, the advertising campaigns are costing many millions. But, executives contend, the results will be worth the effort.

Bell Declares: 'Equal Opportunity Employer'

Illinois Bell Telephone has joined American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in stating that the Bell Telephone companies are "fully committed" to equal employment opportunity. They said the companies have been "unjustly maligned" by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The Bell system's views were stated in reply to testimony filed with the Federal Communications Commission by the EEOC last December. That testimony charged the Bell System with discrimination against women and minority groups.

AT&T filed testimony yesterday before the FCC. In a summary memorandum, the company accused the EEOC of "hyperbole of monstrous proportions." It said the EEOC is trying to fit Bell employment policies to a "faceless, statistical world" which ignores the realities of the labor market.

DESPITE THESE factors — and contrary to the EEOC's allegations — the Bell companies have a good record in utilizing women and minorities, and have developed specific programs that provide for even greater progress in the future, AT&T said.

Examples of this progress, according to Jack B. Gable, Illinois Bell's vice president-personnel, include the following:

—The number of blacks at Illinois Bell has almost tripled in the last 10 years, from 5 per cent to 14 per cent.

—Blacks in Illinois Bell's management have increased from less than 1 per cent to 5 per cent in the same period.

—Women make up 52 per cent of Illinois Bell's work force and 38 per cent of its management ranks.

—More than 300 women have moved into jobs traditionally held by men, such as telephone installer and frameman, and 69 men have become operators.

"We fully agree," said AT&T witness John W. Kingsbury, "that the Bell System, as well as all American industry, should be unequivocally committed to the elimination of discrimination on the basis of race, religion, sex, or national origin in its employment policies."

In its zeal in trying this case against the Bell System, Kingsbury said, "the EEOC has failed to recognize that the primary reason that the Bell System exists is to provide communications service to the American public, not merely to provide employment to all comers, regardless of ability."

In his testimony, Gable said the Bell Tel Training & Work Center on Chicago's South Side trains and places about 100 formerly unskilled people each year in regular jobs with Bell System units.

Illinois Bell struck a blow for women's rights in 1970, he said, when it initiated a successful lawsuit against the state to overturn an archaic statute which limited women to an eight-hour day. The law had restricted women's eligibility for a number of higher-paying jobs requiring overtime work.

Personal Finance

by CARLTON SMITH

For every family, young or old, the current scale of Social Security benefits plays an important role in financial planning. Every calculation concerning the family's security program, or insurance needs, has to begin with the disability or survivorship benefits available under Social Security.

All benefits — these with them — are subject to the 20 per cent increase effective in September, and younger wage earners should be aware of the extent of the increased protection now afforded in case of the breadwinner's disability or death.

The amount that is paid to any individual — for any Social Security benefit, retirement or otherwise — is determined by that individual's history of earnings. There is a formula for determining your average yearly earnings, stipulating which years are taken into account. If in each of these years you earned at least as much as the Social Security "wage base," you qualify for maximum benefits.

THE WAGE BASE is the amount subject to Social Security tax. It was $3,600 back in the early '50s, after which it rose in steps to $6,600 by 1966 and to $7,800 last year. (It's now $9,000, and scheduled to rise to $12,000.) If you earned that much or more, in each of those past years, you have the highest possible average yearly wage, for calculating Social Security benefits, and would receive the maximum monthly payment.

A worker retiring this year, for example, who's always earned at least as much as the "wage base," would qualify for a monthly retirement benefit of $259.40 as a single person, or $399 for a retired couple.

That figure — the single worker's retirement benefit — is the one from which other Social Security benefits are derived. A disabled worker's benefit is the same as his retirement benefit — and a younger man, with shorter history of higher earnings, will sometimes receive more than any 65-year-old retiree can qualify for.

Survivorship benefits for the widow with children under 18 again are determined by what her husband's retirement benefit would have been in the year of his death. The young widow receives 75 per cent of this "primary insurance amount," and a child's benefit is also 75 per cent of the "PIA." On such combined benefits within a family, though, there is a ceiling of $480 as the "maximum family benefit."

THERE IS A wide gap between these maximum benefits and what the average Social Security recipient actually receives. Here's what the Social Security Administration says the average payment will be, after the 20 per cent increase:

For a single retired worker, $162, as against the $259.40 maximum.

For a retired couple, about $271, as against the $399.10 maximum.

For a widowed mother with two children, about $306, as against the $480 maximum.

Thus, the protection the wage earner or his family can count on, in case of his disability or death, varies widely according to the individual's history of earnings. For your own security planning, it's important to know what it is. And it's not difficult to determine; ask the people in your local Social Security office how to go about it.

Diplomacy: Easy As Falling Off A . . .

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Each year, according to the National Commission on Product Safety, "thousands of injuries and hundreds of deaths occur as a result of falls from ladders."

This is truly a deplorable situation, not only from the standpoint of the unfortunate victims but also for the fact that it makes America look bad in the eyes of the rest of the world.

Let us say, for example, that some of our top space technicians are meeting with a group of Soviet space technicians to coordinate the forthcoming joint mission.

As the session gets under way, the Soviets note that one of the U.S. technicians is missing. They are told he could not attend because he hurt himself falling from a ladder.

THE SOVIETS exchange quizzical glances under raised eyebrows, a sign that they are beginning to have second thoughts about the venture. And small wonder.

A rendezvous in space requires a certain amount of mutual reliance on each other's capabilities. And falling off a ladder, apart from the pain it causes, does little to inspire confidence in one's technical proficiency.

Or suppose a foreign trade delegation arrives in this country prepared to place millions of dollars in orders if sufficiently impressed by America's industrial expertise.

They are greeted at the airport by an engineer on crutches. "It's nothing," he says in response to queries about the cast on his leg. "A little fall from a ladder, that's all."

We Americans, of course, find nothing intellectually stigmatic about falling off ladders. We know that many of the best brains in the country have done it. It happens in the best of families.

WE MUST remember, however, that other countries may view it differently. In Hindu philosophy, for instance, it is reasoned that since climbing a ladder does not require great mental capacity, falling from a ladder implies a certain lack of acumen.

Our propensity for falling off ladders is particularly disheartening to underdeveloped nations that look to America for leadership. It sort of shakes their faith in the free enterprise system.

For these reasons, I wish to commend the General Services Administration for publishing a new consumer booklet that explains the fine points of ladder-climbing, particularly as they relate to the law of gravity.

If properly disseminated, it could go a long way toward restoring U.S. prestige in other parts of the globe.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Today's hand shows another form of the "grasshopper disease." South went right up with dummy's ace of hearts. This wasn't a waste of a high card but the next few plays were. He proceeded to draw trumps with three leads. Then he went after the spades, but East was unkind enough to show out on the third lead and South had to use dummy's last trump to ruff a spade.

Now South needed a club finesse to bring home 13 tricks and when it lost, the grand slam went with it.

South could have got a lot more mileage out of his high trumps if he had seen their possibilities. At trick two he should have ruffed a heart in his own hand. Then two rounds of trumps ending in dummy would have allowed him to ruff dummy's last heart with his own last trump.

A club to dummy's king would have put him in dummy to lead a third round of trumps and pull East's last tooth. It would also allow him to discard his jack of clubs.

After this start he could go after spades. There would be one trump left in dummy to ruff the fourth spade and the last two tricks would be won by declarer's ace of clubs and fifth spade.

Where did the extra trick come from? By making six trump tricks instead of just five.

More Women Are Smoking

by MONICA WILCH

"You've come a long way, baby," affirms the ad for a well-known cigarette aimed at the female market.

But what the liberated female smoker has achieved is the dubious distinction of equaling men in rate of lung cancer and heart disease, according to Roger Schmidt, executive secretary of the National Interagency Council on Smoking and Health.

Schmidt charged recently that cigarette manufacturers have "taken advantage of the women's liberation movement and directed extensive advertising campaigns at women." The equating of cigarette smoking with women's lib has consequently diluted the impact of health warnings on women, according to Schmidt.

"Because of an increasing fear of death from heart attacks and lung cancer, men are quitting cigarettes at a faster rate than women," he said.

FROM 1965 TO 1970, American Cancer Society statistics indicate, the number of male smokers dropped 10 per cent while female smokers decreased by only 2.5 per cent. In 1970, 31 per cent of women 21 and over were cigarette smokers, while one of every three women over 18 smoked.

However, in 1970 a record 534.2 billion cigarettes were sold, and 1972 sales figures topped that figure by more than 2 per cent — despite the fact that since January, 1971, cigarette advertising has been banned from TV and radio, and tobacco companies have reportedly reduced their total advertising budgets by 30 per cent.

If, as the Cancer Society states, 29 million persons have quit smoking since the health scare made headlines, there must be at least another 29 million taking their places in the ranks of smokers.

WHILE MIDDLE-AGED men who fear heart attacks may be the ones who are quitting smoking, young people are taking up the habit.

According to Aaron Spitzer of the Chicago office of the Cancer Society, "More teenagers than ever before are smoking."

He attributes the trend to the "greater freedom they have now. Many high schools even provide special smoking lounges for them."

While 66 per cent of girls who are seniors in high school smoke, and 75 per cent of the senior boys, the habit has even penetrated down into grammar schools. Spitzer said one out of five girls and one out of four boys in the fourth grade smokes.

While there remains a certain amount of controversy over just what physiological effects can be laid squarely at the feet of cigarettes, the medical authorities pretty much agree on this much: Smoking a cigarette causes the heart to pound an extra 15 to 25 beats per minute, raises blood pressure 10 to 20 points and deposits carbon monoxide (the odorless and lethal gas that comes out of your auto exhaust) in the blood, all of which produces strain on the heart that can cause illness or death.

IN ADDITION, cigarette smoking deposits carcinogenic (cancer-causing) residues in lungs, stomach, kidney, bladder and other organs, which is estimated to be the cause of one out of four cancers. Smoking is also the leading cause of emphysema, another disease which destroys the lungs.

Women who smoke during pregnancy endanger their unborn children as well as their own health, according to medical authorities both here and in Great Britain. Studies in the two countries have indicated that smoking mothers have more premature babies, more miscarriages, more stillborn infants, smaller babies and more retarded children.

Moreover, smokers often inflict not only discomfort but illness on non-smokers around them. According to Spitzer, the air in a smoke-filled room is "worse than industrial air pollution" because it contains some of the same pollutants — carbon monoxide, sulphur dioxide, etc. — in higher concentration.

HE SAID THAT cigarette smoke has the same effects on a non-smoker breathing it as on the smoker — such as restricted breathing and faster heartbeat — only in less concentrated form. However, he added, persons who are highly allergic to smoke and those who are prone to troubled breathing or have heart problems can actually become ill from others' smoke.

While Americans seem not to be overly impressed by the health warnings attached to cigarettes, they must now consider the risk to their physical appearance. Women — and men — who fear the onset of facial wrinkles and who are waging war with moisture creams may be fighting a losing battle if they smoke.

Dr. Harry W. Dantell, an internist in Redding, Calif., has conducted studies of 1,004 smokers since 1967 and has concluded that both men and women who smoke develop more and deeper facial wrinkles, and at a younger age, than non-smokers. He reported in a medical journal in 1971 that smoking is even more likely to cause "crow's feet" around the eyes than outdoor exposure.

DR. DANTELL also found evidence that smokers' wrinkles in later life are deeper than those of non-smokers even if the person only smoked when he was young.

As if the effects of natural tobacco aren't bad enough, a chemist associated with the Nader Center for Study of Responsive Law in Washington reported in March, 1971, that tobacco contains potentially harmful additives. Dr. Albert Fritsch charged that the "non-tobacco ingredients" in cigarettes and cigars include, among other things, ceramic and asbestos fibers, both of which are known to cause lung cancer. (Asbestos workers have a lung cancer death risk approximately eight times as high as the rest of the population.)

The validity of these charges is difficult to pin down — and corrective action impossible — since tobacco products are not regulated by any governmental agency.

BUT ALL OF THIS is largely academic, since from all indications, few people are frightened into giving up cigarettes.

Asked if she worried about her health, one smoker replied, "I should — but I don't."

For a while, stop-smoking clinics popped up in many hospitals, but most have faltered. According to a spokesman at Northwest Community Hospital, several such sessions were held there three years ago, but "attrition was high." And a survey conducted afterward indicated that "few of the participants had permanently stayed off cigarettes," the spokesman said.

The reason for the failure?

"You have to want to quit," the spokesman said. He noted that "many persons came in with a negative attitude. They used the clinic as an excuse to say they had tried everything, and then continued smoking."

WOMEN, IT SEEMS, have an even more difficult time quitting than men. Several explanations are offered by the experts. Charles Althatter, project coordinator of Smoking Research in San Diego, says it's because women had to break social barriers to begin smoking, and also because "they smoke to control their anger."

Perhaps more plausible is the reason pointed out by Spitzer — that women tend to gain weight when they quit smoking, so they take it up again. The spokesman at Northwest Community Hospital said many women seemed to have "withdrawal" symptoms that resembled pregnancy, including nausea, headaches and nervousness.

When you ask people why they smoke, you hear the same reasons over and over in various forms: peer pressure (my friends smoke), nervousness and the social crutch (at a party, what do you do with your hands if you're not holding a cigarette?) One psychologist has chosen the first cause as the best point of attack, and logically, he is aiming at youth.

Dr. Eugene E. Levitt of Indiana University declares that "there is no real hope" for persuading older smokers to quit, but he believes teenagers can be so persuaded — by other teenagers. It would be peer pressure in reverse: Your friends don't smoke, so you don't smoke.

DESPITE A BUILDUP of health warnings over recent years, cigarette sales continue to shoot upward. An increasing number of the buyers seem to be women, as more men quit the habit.

Planned For Women's Groups

Press Clinic Dates Set

Paddock Publications is in the midst of planning its ninth annual newspaper publicity workshops for presidents and publicity chairmen of all northwest suburban women's organizations whose news is published on the women's pages of the Herald.

The dates are Thursday, Sept. 7, and Friday, Sept. 8, just prior to the busy fall club season. This gives publicity chairmen a knowledgeable approach to their duties for the year.

Thursday's (Sept. 7) session will be held at the Plum Grove Club in Plum Grove Estates, Palatine, and Friday's (Sept. 8) at the Northwest Suburban YMCA on Northwest Highway, Des Plaines. The two have been chosen for their central locations among the many suburbs served by Paddock Publications. Women may attend whichever workshop is most convenient as the sessions are identical.

BOTH WILL be held from 9 to 11:30 a.m. with a coffee 'n roll break at mid-morning.

Mrs. Marianne Scott, women's editor, will again conduct the workshops which include discussions on copy preparation, deadlines, submitting copy, writing publicity to interest others, use of names, importance of accuracy and an explanation of Paddock publicity policies.

Of special interest, according to Mrs. Scott, will be a presentation by her assistant, Dorie McClellan, on good and "bad" publicity pictures. This is a part of the chairman's job which is least understood and is most valuable in getting good promotion for the club's activities.

Tips will be given on procedures in arranging for pictures, the subject matter, the timing of advance photos and other information concerning pictorial publicity.

A PADDOCK photographer will be present to show slides on the effective use of pictures.

Other members of the women's staff will also be introduced during the early part of the workshop.

Many inquiries have already been received regarding this year's dates. Letters have just been sent to current club presidents whose names are on file in the women's department. Those clubs which are not updated are still welcome to send their representatives.

Attendance is by reservations so that comfortable seating can be made for all.

Club presidents and publicity chairmen may make their reservations by calling Paddock Publications at 394-3300, Ex. 233. In Des Plaines, they may call Dorothy Oliver at 297-0833.

PADDOCK WOMEN'S editor Marianne Scott will tell it like it is at ninth annual publicity workshop for presidents and publicity chairmen of area women's organizations. The dates are Sept. 7-8.

Economic Parity Their Goal

by GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new organization for women has as its credo: "The dollar bill is neither male nor female."

But there's discrimination all around us on what a woman gets for her money, says Wendy Rue.

Miss Rue, president of her own company, is the organizing force behind the National Association of Female Executives (NAFE). "We're for women's parity (parity) not women's lib (liberation)," said NAFE's executive director.

Miss Rue said her research showed that as of 1970 there were 1.4 million women earning more than $10,000 a year. That represents a multibillion dollar market and "a lot of spending clout," she said.

Eligibility for NAFE is that the woman earn $10,000 or more yearly.

BUT MISS RUE contends that the woman executive isn't always given the opportunity to spend her dollars to the fullest extent.

It is the male executive who can use corporate discounts, get a break on car rentals, hotel rates, group insurance rates, get bank loans without a lot of fuss and just in general stretch his dollar further, she said.

"Why," Miss Rue asked, "should a guy earning $8,000 a year and owning a little house out in Queens have a better chance at a credit card than a female with the same earnings?"

"Why should any woman earning $10,000 a year be asked by a banker to have her husband co-sign a loan for her, or a real estate broker refuse to consider her a prospect unless she's married?"

NAFE, SHE SAID, intends to pressure groups who aren't giving women economic parity. "Look at the credit card business," said Miss Rue. "It's 90 per cent male-oriented — women like as not are add-on members."

NAFE also wants banks to take a long second look at borrowing power of female executives for a new set of standards based on earnings, length of employment and credit rating; only, she said, eliminating the "male-oriented ratings up to now."

Members will be advised of their "dollar power and how to join together to use it," she continued. But she hopes NAFE's efforts will help assure ALL such practical things as pasting up a year's supply of trading stamps or getting rid of the duplicates in what must surely be the world's largest collection of drinking cup lids from McDonald's.

The children, on the other hand, have higher horizons. Our second-grader dreams of making thousands of dollars for charity on his Muscular Dystrophy carnival, while our college junior schemes to finance a camel caravan across the deserts of Morocco while she can still fly there at youth fare rates. True, if wishes were camels, we'd all take a ride, as the old saying almost goes.

But at least these ideas require no more effort on my part than an occasional vague "We'll see, dear." Now every youngster, unless he has a negative IQ or a rare faith in human nature, translates this, correctly, as "over my dead body," but it does avoid confrontation. And, above all, action.

BUT THEN START the rat race and those endless car pools. All too soon, you find yourself faced with two or more non-negotiable demands. For instance, one youngster's playing in a crucial Little League game on the same evening another's starring in the playground program's production of "Peanuts." You may be a good man, Charlie Brown, but you can't be two places at once. Or else your younger son is leaving for church camp only one hour after the older comes in from a New Mexico Boy Scout camp, and you sit and pray the Amtrak train's on time. Not because they'll be heart-broken not to see each other, but because your Boy Scout has the family's single sleeping bag, which his brother now needs.

(And that poor sleeping bag, by the way, won't be out of use long enough for a good airing until fall. You decide you'll use your trading stamps to escalate your family to the affluence of Two-Sleeping-Bag status. If, that is, you can ever catch a child long enough to help paste up the stamps.)

Meanwhile, you grope to cope with camp physicals, dental appointments, school checkups, shots and all the other miscellaneous maintenance projects you have to sandwich in somewhere. And somebody always needs a haircut, though coercing any male somebody over 7 into getting one is an ordeal in itself.

AND I HAVEN'T even mentioned the family vacation trip yet. Mostly because I can hardly bear to think about it since ours still lies ahead: too many miserable expressway miles ahead at the probably jam-packed gates of Disney World.

In these revolutionary days, I truly think we need a new kind of liberation. We have women's liberation, gay liberation, children's liberation, golden-agers' liberation. But who's doing anything about emancipating Good Old Mom? Instead of scheduling and chauffeuring endless summer activities for many children, wouldn't it be simpler to set up rest and recuperation centers for the mothers of America?

I'd love a week of peace and quiet with no car to drive, no shorts to mark, no sandwiches to spread, no costumes to improvise and no programs to applaud. Naturally, I'd prefer a luxury motel with pool and air conditioning. But I'd settle for a primitive rustic retreat if they'll forget the family plan. What's more, I'll promise to bring along my own sleeping bag. Even if I have to paste in all those trading stamps myself.

Speaking Of...

Good Ol' Summertime

by KAY MARSH

Isn't summer supposed to be a happy time of lazy loafing, leisurely hammock reading and easy living in general?

Well, I don't know about you, but the myth missed this year at our house. I, like every other mother I know, am now on my second pair of track shoes, trying to keep up with multiple kids' multiple activities. There's a traffic control sheet on the kitchen bulletin board, an overload on the washing machine's electrical circuit, a frazzled expression on my face, and heaven knows how many more miles on the old family station wagon.

As for hammock reading, I haven't even had time yet to figure out who all those people are that the Democrats nominated for vice president. But if a woman ever does get it I just hope her kids are grown, or else that she has a full-time live-in summer babysitter. Preferably one with her own transportation, not to mention everybody else's.

THE FIRST WEEK or so, after school's out is usually a kind of idle idyll. We all pause to catch our collective breath and mentally plan the summer's projects. Admittedly, mine lean toward er's starring in the playground program's production of "Peanuts." You may be a good man, Charlie Brown, but you can't be two places at once. Or else your younger son is leaving for church camp only one hour after the older comes in from a New Mexico Boy Scout camp, and you sit and pray the Amtrak train's on time. Not because they'll be heart-broken not to see each other, but because your Boy Scout has the family's single sleeping bag, which his brother now needs.

Meanwhile, you grope to cope with camp physicals, dental appointments, school checkups, shots and all the other miscellaneous maintenance projects you have to sandwich in somewhere. And somebody always needs a haircut, though coercing any male somebody over 7 into getting one is an ordeal in itself.

A Tale Of Romance And Rings

Suzy
Harrington

Victoria
Schilling

Claire

Scaffidi

Seniors at Trinity University in San Antonio, Texas, are engaged and planning an Aug. 19 wedding.

The bride-to-be is Suzy Harrington, daughter of the C. Bennett Harringtons of Dallas. Her fiancé is Michael Patarozzi, son of the junior Frank Patarozzi of 360 Hiawatha, Buffalo Grove.

Michael is a graduate of Wheeling High School.

Victoria Lynn Schilling of Mount Prospect is engaged to James E. Sincell, son of the John T. Sincells of Winnetka, and plans a Dec. 9 wedding. Victoria is the daughter of Mrs. Rose Schilling, 1207 Fern Drive, and the late Rudolph Schilling.

A graduate of Forest View High School, the bride-elect attended Harper College and now works for Elk Grove Answering Service. James attended Southern Illinois University and is in manager training for Kentucky Fried Chicken in Highland Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert DeTogne of Waukegan are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Claire Louise, to William S. St. John, son of the Eugene St. Johns of 1126 N. Walnut Ave., Arlington Heights.

The wedding is planned for Nov. 26. The couple met at Western Illinois University where Claire is a senior. Her fiancé graduated from Arlington High School and attended Wisconsin State University at Whitewater before transferring to Western Illinois. He will graduate there this month.

A Conant High School graduate, Judith Ann Scaffidi, is engaged to Michael Warren Melvin, son of the Kenneth Melvins of Bartlett. They will be married in fall '73.

Judith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Scaffidi of Hanover, Park, are announcing the wedding plans.

Judith works for Crane Co. in Carol Stream, and her fiancé, a graduate of Elgin High School, works for Eagle Food Store in Carpentersville.

Married On Simpson Campus

Smith Memorial Chapel on the Simpson College campus in Indianola, Iowa, was the setting for the July 22 candle-light nuptials uniting Rebecca Jean Moore and Jack Scott Nebel.

Rebecca, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Dale Moore of Crete, Ill., and Jack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Nebel of 203 S. Kennicott, Arlington Heights, wrote the service for their 5 o'clock double ring marriage ceremony.

Music was provided by Robert Burns, professor of music at Simpson, who played the organ, and Dawneen Nebel, Jack's sister, who sang.

Rebecca's gown of imported organza was topped by a bodice of Chantilly lace, accented by crystal beading and tiny seed pearls. Crystal pleated fluting edged its high neckline and the long fitted sleeves of Chantilly lace. There was a deep Chantilly lace border on the skirt and attached train, and her headpiece was of the same lace trimmed in pearls and crystals with a three-tiered silk illusion veil.

THE BRIDAL bouquet contained white stephanotis and pink Sweetheart roses.

Debra Moore of Crete served as her sister's maid of honor. Sandra Brende of Oak Park, Mrs. Barbara Beals of Chicago Heights, Mrs. Lynn Kellum of St. Louis, Mo., and Deborah Lewis of Park Forest were bridesmaids.

They wore identical gowns of soft pink organza fashioned with fitted bodice, high neckline and short puffed sleeves accented by white Venice lace. The skirts had a deep flounced hem. Their matching pink picture hats had white satin streamers, and each attendant carried a colonial bouquet of pink daisies, lavender miniature mums, blue bachelor buttons and baby's breath.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Scott Nebel

Jack was attended by Stephen Devine of Grinnell, Iowa, as best man. Groomsmen included his brother, Randal Nebel of Arlington Heights; a cousin, Gary Nebel of Arlington; Joseph Mueller of Arlington; and Daniel Kellner of Lake Forest.

GREGORY MOORE of Crete, the bride's brother, and Jed Willoughby of Des Moines, Iowa, ushered.

Two cousins of the bride, Carol Collins of Waseca, Minn., and Nancy Annan of Clarinda, Iowa, attended the guest book.

The guests included Rebecca's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Annan of Clarinda and Harold Moore of Booneville, Iowa, and the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Albert Nebel of Arlington Heights.

After a honeymoon trip to the Lake of the Ozarks in Missouri, the couple will live in Indianola where Jack, a '68 graduate of Arlington High, will finish his senior year at Simpson this fall. His bride was graduated from Simpson this summer.

Prospect Pair Wed On 'Anniversary'

Three years ago to the day that they began going steady, Cynthia Kay Vogt and William Clyde Hugo were married in St. Raymond Catholic Church, Mount Prospect. The bridal pair and their families live in Mount Prospect, the Eugene L. Vogts at 306 S. Lancaster and the William C. Hugos at 112 N. Emerson St.

Both Cynthia and Bill attended Prospect High School and Harper College.

For the 3:30 p.m. Nuptial Mass the bride wore a gown of silk organza and Florentine lace. The high-necked bodice and narrow sleeves were trimmed with the lace, and the raised waistline fell into an A-line skirt that had a hemline of lace. Tiny satin bows accented the throat, cuffs and waist.

THE BRIDE wore a Juliet cap of organza and lace, touched with seed pearls, and a three-tier butterfly veil. She carried white roses, daisy pompons, stephanotis and lilies of the valley in a cascade arrangement.

Her attendants were gowned alike in printed organza in shades of green, yellow and apricot. The raised waistline was accented with deep green velvet-ribbon. The girls complemented their gowns with large-brimmed hats of soft yellow trimmed in deep green ribbon and a yellow illusion veiling.

Dian Vogt, the bride's sister, was her maid of honor. She carried apricot daisies and roses tied with green streamers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Karen Worcester, Arlington Heights; Sally Yoder, Mount Prospect; and Thomasine Vogt, another sister of the bride. Their bouquets were of white daisies and yellow roses.

SIX-YEAR-OLD Jean Marie Landbeck of Oakbrook came down the aisle as flower girl, dressed identically to the adult attendants and carrying a white basket filled with yellow and apricot daisies. John Vogt, 7, the bride's brother, was ring bearer.

At the altar with the groom were Jim Mizialko as best man and Rick Wittmeyer, Les Worcester and Ted Vogt, brother of the bride, as groomsmen. All are Mount Prospect friends of the groom.

After the wedding there was a reception for 200 guests at the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines. The newlyweds drove to the east coast during their week's honeymoon.

Cynthia graduated in nursing from Harper and works at Skokie Valley Community Hospital. Bill graduated in applied science at Harper and is employed at the Jewel Food Store in Palatine.

Dear Dorothy I'd like to ask you two questions about cucumbers. Someone told me they were fruit. If so, how come they're called vegetables? Also, do you have a company style recipe for using cucumbers in salad form? My neighbor is kind enough to keep us supplied with cucumbers all summer long. — Mrs. Robert B.

True enough, the cucumber is a fruit, a member of the melon family, but inasmuch as it's always served as a vegetable it's considered one. Here's a different type of dish called Cucumber Shell Surprise. I think it's delicious. First hollow out the cucumber shell, saving the "meat" and dicing it into cubes. Combine the diced cucumber with a little finely grated onion, some chopped tomato and slivers of green pepper. Then mix with sour cream flavored with dill. Be sure everything is thoroughly chilled before spooning back into the shells.

Dear Dorothy: Here's an idea my 12-year-old son came up with. He was having difficulty cutting a pair of jeans to make them into shorts so he tried the small hand grass clippers. He cut the jeans in no time flat. — Mrs. Jesse Spencer

Dear Dorothy: To remove soap residue from faucets, apply white vinegar, let set, then rinse with warm water. — Mrs. C. O.

Dear Dorothy: When cooking out-of-doors, I immediately take the grill off after the food has been cooked and lay it on a piece of newspaper on the grass. It is then covered with more paper over which is poured some water that has had some dishwasher detergent added to it. When ready to wash, you'll find the grease and gunk comes off easily. After the grill is clean and dried, I rub it with cooking oil and cover with a plastic wrapper. — Mrs. J. M.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Padock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Ms. Ruckelhaus Champions Women At GOP Convention

by HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jill Ruckelshaus may sometimes be called "the Gloria Steinem" of the Republican party, but she thinks the women's lib leader has gone a little far.

Housewives should not be likened to prostitutes, the wife of William Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said in an interview.

"Ms. Steinem, a friend of mine, must have been reflecting on something she feels deeply," Mrs. Ruckelshaus said in possible explanation of the remark. "There are plenty of things that are frustrating in marriage."

Mrs. Ruckelshaus, 35, a native of Indianapolis, Ind., joined the National Women's Political Caucus last April, but already she is playing a leading role on its council as one of the few Republican members.

SHE BECAME interested in the "movement" after making a speech at a conference on women's rights at St. Mary's college in Vermont. She said she found the "feeling of womanhood was sensational" in the room with students and older women comparing notes on how "we really have been taking it all these years."

She admires and gets along fine with Steinem and the other feminist leaders, including Betty Friedan and Congresswomen Bella Abzug and Shirley Chisholm. But she said her comparison with Steinem is not apt because "Gloria has an aura about her that I don't have."

She admitted "there is a little jockeying at the top" now among the leaders of the movement — all of them Democrats. "There are so few of us that they don't see us as any impediment," she said referring to her GOP label.

A SPEECH WRITER for Mrs. Anne Armstrong, co-chairman of the Republican National Committee, Mrs. Ruckelshaus will conduct a seminar on women's issues at the GOP convention in Miami Beach this month. "We want to raise the consciousness of women," she said.

She believes President Nixon "already has made a record" in selecting women for top appointments and added, "I think his commitment is really sincere."

As a representative of the caucus, she will testify in favor of an abortion plank in the platform but adds, "I'll be surprised if it makes it."

Gala '70 Raises $25,000

A capacity crowd of well over 800 attended the seventh annual Gala, a benefit for Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. The benefit was held July 22 at the Marriott Motor Hotel.

More than $25,000 was raised. Funds from the Gala will be used to aid patients served by the hospital clinics and to provide assistance for other patients unable to pay.

"We are deeply grateful for the sponsors who underwrote the costs of Gala '72, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lotz of Park Ridge and the A. D. Johnson Foundation of Chicago," said Mrs. Martin Bengtson, general chairman. "This means that all proceeds go directly for the project. We are truly grateful for this support."

With Gala '72 more than $150,000 has been raised to aid the hospital and the community it serves. The Gala is a joint project of the Service League, medical staff and Men's Association.

OVER THE YEARS the Gala has been instrumental in providing numerous additional services for hospital patients. In 1971, funds were used to provide a mobile image intensifier which is being used for things such as implanting pacemakers, locating foreign items which children have swallowed and a wide range of other diagnostic uses.

Other projects have included a pediatric intensive care unit, an educational television system and automated laboratory equipment.

The crowd of more than 800 were entertained by comedian Johnny O'Brien and singer Jeanne Steel, and danced to the music of the Hal Kartum Orchestra and the Jimmy Gross Band.

Gown Is 'Something Old'

The fabric in Cynthia L. Brown's wedding gown was "something old" but it was made for the bride just before her marriage on July 8 to Patrick Michael Kelly.

Cynthia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton W. Brown, 506 W. Glencoe Rd., Palatine, wore an old-fashioned gown of embroidered organdy which her grandmother, Mrs. Erich Gross of Port St. Lucie, Fla., made from material that Mrs. Gross bought on the Isle of Pines when Cynthia was a baby.

Patrick's family, the Frank Kellys of 13 Beech Dr., Schaumburg, also contributed to the sentimental touches in the bride's attire. The bridegroom gave her an antique cameo pendant that has been passed down through several generations in his family and as "something borrowed," Cynthia carried Mrs. Kelly's white Bible.

THE BRIDE and groom exchanged vows and rings in a 10:30 a.m. ceremony in Holy Ghost Church, Wood Dale. Later there was a buffet brunch at the Black Fox in Rolling Meadows for 80 guests.

Cynthia's bridal gown was fashioned with a scoop neckline and puffed sleeves that were banded tightly at the upper arm, elbow and wrist. Her elbow-length veil was held in place by a beaded headpiece that resembled a large flower. She carried white daisies, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Her four attendants wore gingham peasant-style gowns in pastel shades topped by white eyelet aprons embroidered with hearts. They wore matching gingham bows in their hair and carried baskets of daisies and baby's breath.

MAID OF HONOR was Julie Larson of

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Kelly

Rolling Meadows, who appeared in green gingham. Bridesmaids were Becky Brown, the bride's sister, wearing pink; Barb Loss, Palatine, wearing blue; and Lynn Kelly, the groom's sister of Bowling Green, Ky., in yellow.

Robert Aspley of Bowling Green, Ky., was Patrick's best man. Eric Brown, the bride's brother; Jerry Kelly, Lake Zurich, uncle of the groom; and John Madden, Schaumburg, ushered.

Ring bearer was the bride's 10-year-old brother Adam.

A week in Manitowish Waters, Wis., was the newlyweds' choice for a honeymoon. They are now back and living in Schaumburg. Cynthia works for Illinois American Finance Co., Hoffman Estates; Patrick is with K-Mart Enterprises in North Aurora.

The bride is a '69 graduate of Fremd High School and attended Harper College. Her bridegroom attended Western Kentucky University.

Bridal Couple Met Far From Home

Janet Hjeltn of Mount Prospect and her bridegroom, Charles Kevin Long of Long Island, N.Y., met a long way from home in Atlanta, Ga. She is a first grade teacher there and her husband is with the local accounting office of Texaco.

The couple were married July 8 in Arlington Heights Evangelical Free Church at 4:30 in the afternoon. Janet's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hjeltn of 317 N. Eastwood Ave., Mount Prospect, hosted a reception immediately afterwards in the church hall for 200 guests. Charles is the son of the Charles Longs of Long Island.

The bride's sister Barbara was her maid of honor. Bridesmaids included the groom's sister Pat, the bride's cousin, Karen Richards of Elmhurst; Mrs. Robert Miller, Joliet; and Anne Binkley and Mrs. Bill Eisenhardt, both of Atlanta.

THE GROOM chose his brother Ken as best man, while another brother, Tom Long, was among the ushers. The other four attendants were Steve Segal, New York City; Paul Helwig, Rhode Island;

Bill Eisenhardt, Atlanta; and Ray Richards, Elmhurst.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white silk organza gown with high neckline, short puffed sleeves and a chapel train. The Empire bodice was narrowly tucked and trimmed with seed pearl appliques. Janet's fingertip veil was attached to a Swedish crown of seed pearls.

Her bouquet was composed of phalaenopsis orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

THE BRIDAL attendants were all gowned alike in a blue floral print with scoop neckline, short puffed sleeves and Empire bodice. The girls all carried colonial bouquets of blue carnations and daisies.

After the buffet reception at church, the newlyweds left for a honeymoon in Hawaii.

Janet is a graduate of Prospect High School and Northern Illinois University. Her husband has a degree from the University of Rhode Island.

'Starting Seeds' Is Garden Topic

"Starting Perennial Seeds" is the topic of a workshop-demonstration to be presented Tuesday, Aug. 8, by the Chicago Horticultural Society at the Botanic Garden, Edens Expressway between Dundee and Lake Cook Roads. Programs will be presented at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

Directed by Botanic Garden staff members Glenn Park and Carl Quastoff, visitors will learn proper techniques in starting a perennial garden by propagating plants from seeds. Methods of planting will be shown and the handling of young seedlings explained. Participants in this program will plant their own seeds, with expert instruction, and have these available for their home gardens.

Reservations for this program may be made with Mrs. Fran Whitin, Chicago Horticultural Society, at 332-2868.

NORTHWEST COMMUNITY
Charles Randall Gerstung II is the name chosen for the first-born son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Randall Gerstung, 622 S. George St., who arrived July 23. His birth weight was 8 pounds 9 ounces. Grandparents, all Mount Prospect residents, are Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Van Riet and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Wallace. Fred Van Riet of Mount Prospect is the baby's great-grandfather, and Mrs. Robert Bolland of Wheeling, his great-grandmother.

Jean Lynn Newman arrived July 26, the first child for Mr. and Mrs. Delbert J. Newman, 437 Bluebonnet Ln., Hoffman Estates. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William E. Dickson of Palatine and Mr. and Mrs. Victor F. Newman of Springfield, S.D. Jean Lynn weighed 7 pounds 9 ounces.

Donald Requa Searing's birth July 26 made first-time parents of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Searing, 713 Penny Ln., Buffalo Grove. His birth weight was 7 pounds 8½ ounces. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Searing of Lincolnwood and Mrs. Yolanda Morris of Skokie.

Michael Ian Johnson was born July 26 to Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Johnson, 1234 Allison Ln., Schaumburg. Their first child, Michael weighed 6 pounds 10 ounces. He is a grandson for Mr. and Mrs. Irving Schlansky of New York City and Mrs. Carl Johnson of Chicago.

Peter Evans Thomas weighed in at 9 pounds 10 ounces when he was born July 8 to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Thomas of Arlington Heights. He is the first child for the couple, who live at 2230 Goebbert Rd. Grandparents include Mr. and Mrs. William O. Thomas, Mrs. Bertha Craig and Pete Craig, all Arlington Heights residents.

Deborah Ann Gold, third child for Mr. and Mrs. David Gold of 115 Gentry Rd., Hoffman Estates, arrived July 25. Their first daughter, she weighed 6 pounds 14 ounces. Michael David 3, and Daniel Adam, 1½, are Deborah's two brothers. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Hilda-gard Hall of Hoffman Estates, Russell S. Hall of Chicago and Mrs. Evelyn Gold, also of Chicago.

Michelle Lee DeLuca joined the John DeLuca family of Elk Grove Village July 26. Her birth weight was 6 pounds 4 ounces. The DeLucas, who live at 105 Crest Ave., have one son, Patrick, 2. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Neil of Cochranton, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Sam DeLuca of Bloomfield, N.J., are the grandparents.

Scott William Joyner's arrival July 28 added a third son in the John P. Joyner Jr. household at 1122 Bradford, Schaumburg. The family already included two boys, Michael, 10, and Larry, 4, and one girl, Susan 4. Scott's birth weight was 7 pounds. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kaese and Mr. and Mrs. John Joyner, all of Chicago, are the grandparents.

ALEXIAN BROTHERS

Michael Steven Rottman, born July 26 to Mr. and Mrs. Theodore J. Rottman Jr. of Wood Dale, is a new grandson for Mr. and Mrs. Victor H. Krueger of Mount Prospect. The Rottmans have another son, Jeffery John, 2. Michael weighed 8 pounds 3 ounces at birth. The Rev. and Mrs. Theodore J. Rottman of Elmwood Park are the other grandparents.

Catherine Ariene Zajicek arrived July 18, the first child for Mr. and Mrs. Dean A. Zajicek, 1115 W. Elm, Arlington Heights. Her birth weight was 6 pounds 6 ounces. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orland C. Zajicek and Mrs. Thelma Butler of Arlington Heights and Seth Butler of Palatine.

Jon Mathew Isley's birth weight was recorded at 7 pounds 12 ounces on arrival July 26. The second son of Mr. and Mrs. George Isley, 1862 Stockton Dr., Hoffman Estates, he is a new brother for Scott Anthony, 2, and a grandson for Mr. and Mrs. George Holoubek of Muscatine, Iowa, and Mr. and Mrs. David Price of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

LUTHERAN GENERAL

Tracy Louise Dorn is a new sister for Jonathan, 9, and Amy, 18 months, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Dorn, 523 Estate Dr., Buffalo Grove. Tracy was born July 14, weighing 7 pounds 10 ounces. The youngsters are grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Sleight, Montgomery City, Mo., and the Rev. and Mrs. Herbert L. Dorn, St. Louis.

Personality From Grandma? Nurses In Special Cancer Program

by ROBERT STRAND
STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Under a developing "grandmother effect" theory, your personality was inherited from your mother and your maternal grandmother. Father had little to do with it.

Inspired by research with plants and rats, the theory was tested in a study of 98 families by Dr. Paul Insel, a research psychologist at Stanford University Medical Center.

A previous 15-year study by other researchers has indicated that personality differences can be observed in the first months of infants' life.

They can be classified as easy to get along with, slow to warm up or generally difficult to be around. Evidence suggests that these characteristics do not change as they grow up.

"Those qualities were identified too early to have been caused by the environment, so they were probably inherited," Insel says.

HE BELIEVES these character predispositions are passed on either by a biochemical process occurring in the womb, or by cytoplasm contributed to the cell by the female alone. In either case, the male line would have no hereditary effect.

The cytoplasmic inheritance is thought to be responsible for the grandmother effect theorized in some plants and animals.

The cell of a snail is believed to come from the cytoplasm rather than the cell nucleus. Certain personality characteristics, produced in rats in stress experiments, turned up in their grandchildren.

Insel's 98 families, including 588 individuals, live in London and were given a variety of tests.

On a scale for psychoticism significant correlations were found between sons, mothers and grandmothers. The correlations between daughters and their maternal lines was less striking, and Insel speculates the effect is masked by female metabolic or hormonal changes.

ON SCALES FOR neuroticism and extroversion the patterns were less clear but similar.

"I conclude that psychoticism, extroversion and neuroticism are either genetically or biochemically determined, but not to the exclusion of the social climate," Insel says.

Thus, in science's continuing debate over the relative influence of heredity and environment on personality, Insel does not rule out interaction with environment.

His critics argue that Insel's findings can be explained by close contact between the child, mother and grandmother. Insel replies that if association was a main factor, fathers would show higher correlations than the maternal grandmothers.

While fathers lack fundamental influence over personality, Insel found in his study that they do heavily influence the political, religious and moral attitudes of their children.

INSEL HOPES OTHER researchers will test his theory on primates, although he says the experiment would be expensive.

He himself seeks to undertake a new study, this time with three generations of a large number of families, each of which contains both natural and adopted children.

by GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The names they hold out carry the invisible message of hope. For hope is what it's all about where a special group of student nurses has been working this summer.

The nurses, 25 in all, are part of the American Cancer Society's (ACS) work-study program for collegiate nursing students at New York's Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases. The program is in its third year.

"What I believe is what's already been said, where there's life, there's hope," said Katherine Hopkins, 21, a Boonton, N.J., girl who will graduate next June from the Wagner College School of Nursing in Staten Island, N.Y. "Most of the patients I worked with believe they're going to live."

"I HAD TO develop a whole philosophy of hope," said Kathleen Dietz, 20, a New Yorker who will graduate next June from Boston College. "But I started working with cancer patients at an age where it probably was easier for me." She'd been a weekend and summer volunteer since her sophomore days in high school.

What Miss Dietz revealed further in an interview was that three of her grandparents had died of the disease. When she graduates, she will specialize in nursing cancer patients and hopes to return to Memorial.

Hope is what the American Cancer Society holds out to the victims of what is the nation's second greatest killer (heart and other circulatory diseases are number one).

ACS says more and more patients are walking out of the hospital — an estimated 1.5 million persons cured. ACS counts as cured those free of all symptoms of the disease five years after treatment is finished.

ITS PROGRAM of work-study for collegiate nursing students also went on this summer at Roswell Park Memorial Institute in Buffalo, the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston, and the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md.

Some of the students, like Miss Dietz and Patricia Funk, who will graduate next year from Northern Illinois University School of Nursing in DeKalb, want to specialize in cancer care. Others like Miss Hopkins aren't sure yet whether they'll go into general nursing or specialize.

Whatever their futures, the young women all must feel as Miss Hopkins puts it "In this type of duty, you have to develop a lot in yourself, how to cope with your own emotions. I know that I grew up a lot this summer."

YOUTH IS HOPE, but it takes a special kind of youth to do this special type of nursing. The girls found it hard to put into words the qualities. But you don't run away.

"There is so much you can do to offer friendship," said Miss Funk.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The Carol Burnett Show," the best all-around variety program on television, will start its sixth season in the fall for CBS. Among the guests so far scheduled for the new season are James Garner, Pearl Bailey, Melba Moore, Sammy Davis Jr., Carl Reiner, Tim Conway, Carol Channing, Steve Lawrence, Edie Gorme, Bernadette Peters and Jim Nabors. The last, who has been the guest on the opening show for five seasons, again will do the honors on Sept. 13.

Patrick Macnee, the Scottish actor who became so well known to American video viewers through his role as the debonair leading man of "The Avengers" series, is the new star of Broadway's long-run suspense play, "Sluth."

ABC has scheduled for Sept. 10 a 90-minute entertainment special saluting television's 25th anniversary. Many of the early stars, some of whom are still around, such as Bob Hope, Lucille Ball and Dinah Shore will appear. Some may think that this is jumping the gun by a year, preferring to date the beginning of big-time, regularly scheduled video from the fall of 1948.

The good word is that when "Bonanza" begins its new season in NBC in the fall, the original theme music in its pristine state will be reinstated. There has been a less effective theme, incorporating fragments of the original, the past couple of seasons.

'Way Back

NEW YORK (UPI) — Television resulted from a number of inventions dating as far back as 1894. Field testing of the "tube" began in 1936. This year, there are about 98.6 million television sets in use in the United States alone. Fifty-two per cent of them are color.

After The Flood

Rapid City Picks Up The Pieces . . .

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

RAPID CITY, S.D. — Ken Smith clung desperately to the sagging telephone pole after shinnying halfway up. In the mid-night darkness, he saw the building torn off its mooring and swept down rampaging Rapid Creek, gone mad like an animal in a nightmare. Everything he'd worked for — $20,000 worth of machinery and tools in his auto body shop — evanesced in the murk.

But that was just a speck. In its frantic plunge out of the Black Hills and down Rapid Canyon, the water also washed away 1,500 homes and left hundreds of empty hulks.

And it swept to their death Gerry and Jane Smith, Ken's parents.

They were among the 237 killed in the worst flood this region ever recorded. A half dozen are still missing.

NORMAL annual rainfall around Rapid City is 18 inches. In some parts of the area, on this tragic night of June 9 alone, 14 inches splattered the land in a couple of hours and made crushing walls out of rivulets.

NOW LESS than two months later, Rapid City has gotten itself together. Rapid Creek is again a tranquil, narrow brook winding through town. They still talk about that night, like a dream. They see the signs of it, all around them, as a reality.

In one parking lot are gathered hundreds of smashed steel torsos that on June 9 were operable automobiles. From many of them dead bodies were removed.

Young people have come in from all over the country to sweep the silt from the streets in a voluntary program. A million dollars was raised for the disaster fund. HUD trailers to house the homeless are spotted in patches throughout this rolling city which leads to a natural vacationland.

High on Hangman's Hill, or Skyline Drive, around which the city grew in a "U," Ken Smith, who was rescued from his perch on the pole at 4 a.m., strives for normalcy, too. He has taken over the curio store which his father built and ran in Dinosaur Park. With an anticipated Small Business Administration loan at 1 per cent, he hopes eventually to get his old body shop started again, too. He is 20 years old.

"You can't," he says, "mope about old things."

ALONE, he's running the family business. It's down 25 per cent, Ken estimates. Just as it's down all over this western part of South Dakota, where tourism is the No. 1 industry. People from the Midwest, the main trough for the vacationland of the Black Hills, read about the floods and were scared away.

Mount Rushmore, the gigantic stone protrusion out of which an obsessed sculptor named Gutzon Borglum carved the heads of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Theodore Roosevelt and Abraham Lincoln, is 22 miles southwest of Rapid City and normally caters to 25,000 people a day. Now 17,000 on the average filter through.

People are tremulous. They check into a motel in Keystone, at the base of the mountain, where Battle and Grizzly Creeks intersect, and if it starts raining they'll leave in the middle of the night. Twenty-six people were lost here. A scenic railway ends with twisted steel in the debris of Battle Creek.

YET KEN SMITH'S future remains in the Black Hills. He has rented a house above Canyon Lake (whose dam burst) for his younger brother Paul, 17, and his sister, Susan, who's home for the summer from Arizona State University. HUD money pays the rent for a year.

The economic effects of the flood are murky. Ken has to find out how much mortgage remains, how much government relief is available. Only 20 homes in all of Rapid City carried flood insurance and in the Rapid Canyon area, where the Smiths lived, the homes ranged in price up to $100,000. (Jim and Irene Kendall had sunk their life savings into their place, which vanished. They think they're lucky. They're alive. And Jim, a schoolteacher, owes only $2,000 on it.)

KEN remembers that while the floodwaters were rising, he was out "joy-riding," showing off his new pickup truck to his sister. They drove the Rim Rock highway up Rapid Canyon to look at the water — it was raining heavily — then down past their house. The folks were parked outside in their four-wheel drive Bronco. With them were Mr. Smith's brother Eldon, a state senator, his wife and daughter, visiting from central South Dakota.

"We thought they were leaving," says Ken, "but they had just returned home. They weren't worried. They invited the Magners next door over for a drink."

That's the last he saw of them. Paul came home later and got across a creek bridge 30 yards from the house but couldn't get any closer. A National Guardsman threw him a rope and pulled him to high ground. The Smiths were marooned in their house. A wall of water laden with debris crashed into it and swept all five to their deaths. The force also carried away the family's 1972 Cadillac, Susan's Mustang, his uncle's new Ford LTD, the Bronco and an International truck, all parked at the house.

ALL THAT remains on this corner is a concrete foundation, mud encrusted, and bits of rubbish. A twisted golf cart lies alongside. "That's not ours," says Ken.

He spots a leather tag a foot away. Picks it up. Reads it. "Gerald Smith."

"I guess it was dad's," he says. He throws the tag away. Ken points out where the Bronco was lodged in the stream between two trees. It was totaled, but after the insurance company settled, Ken bought it as salvage for $300. He figures he can get it in shape by fall.

The day of the funeral, Ken got some phone calls. "A lot of people were trying to get the business from us," he says. "It made me sick."

On June 21, he opened the Dinosaur Park store again to visitors coming into Rapid City who want to buy mementoes of the Black Hills.

Dear Dr. Lamb — There's really no way to explain all this in a few words, but it's driving me crazy. Please help me if you can.

About 1½ years ago I went on a diet. With a great deal of difficulty I went from 140 pounds to about 110 pounds in approximately two months (I'm now 19 years old, 5 feet 4½ inches tall.) I realize now that I lost too much and too fast because I stopped menstruating. After about four or five months without a period I went to my doctor. He finally started giving me estrogen and birth control pills, and I got my period back.

However, I gained weight too. Now I weigh 115 to 119 pounds and I really like my weight. But it's all I can do to keep from gaining more. While I was on the medication, I exercised a lot, but I haven't the time now.

I can't eat nearly as much as I should without gaining. I seem to hold fluids badly now and I'm afraid I'll lose my period again if I keep this up. It's already pretty irregular, but it was like that before I lost weight.

Please, help me, Dr. Lamb. Do you think it is possible that I have some sort of abnormal metabolism that keeps me from being slim? I know this probably sounds vain and foolish but I'm able to wear cute clothes now and the boys notice me a lot more. I'd hate to gain any more weight, but I'm afraid of what will happen if I don't. Thank you for even giving me a shoulder to cry on.

Dear Reader — No you are not vain or foolish, only normal. Concerning your periods, it is common for young girls — and some not so young — to have this problem and sometimes it doesn't mean too much. It can occur regardless of what diet you eat, but starvation diets can affect one's sexual functions.

Any normal young person could prevent fat deposits by sticking to a 1,500-calorie diet if they are active at all. It must be slow but it would be sure and safe. You can get all the essential nutrients in a 1,500-calorie diet, including proteins, vitamins and minerals. Such a diet should not affect your periods.

Some people naturally tend to gain fat and it is hereditary. Looking at cattle, beef cattle tend to be beefy while dairy cattle are fine boned, with small muscles and hard to fatten. By breeding different characteristics can be developed, and man is no exception.

Now if a person has a hormone problem, obesity and menstrual irregularities may persist. A low thyroid condition will lower the metabolism and affect menstruation. But most people with weight problems turn out to have normal thyroids. You should ask your doctor to refer you to an endocrinologist and let him evaluate the combination of menstrual problems and weight problems.

Female hormones and birth control pills (which also contain female hormones) cause retention of salt and water. It would help if you didn't need to use them.

How an attic fan can take some of the load off your air conditioning.

If you've been up in your attic on a summer day, you know how hot it gets. All that heat up there is what makes it so tough to cool the downstairs—even with air conditioning.

Well, here's a hint—install an attic fan. It will pull that hot, dead air out of your attic. In fact, as you can see in the diagram, it can reduce your attic temperature by as much as 35 degrees.

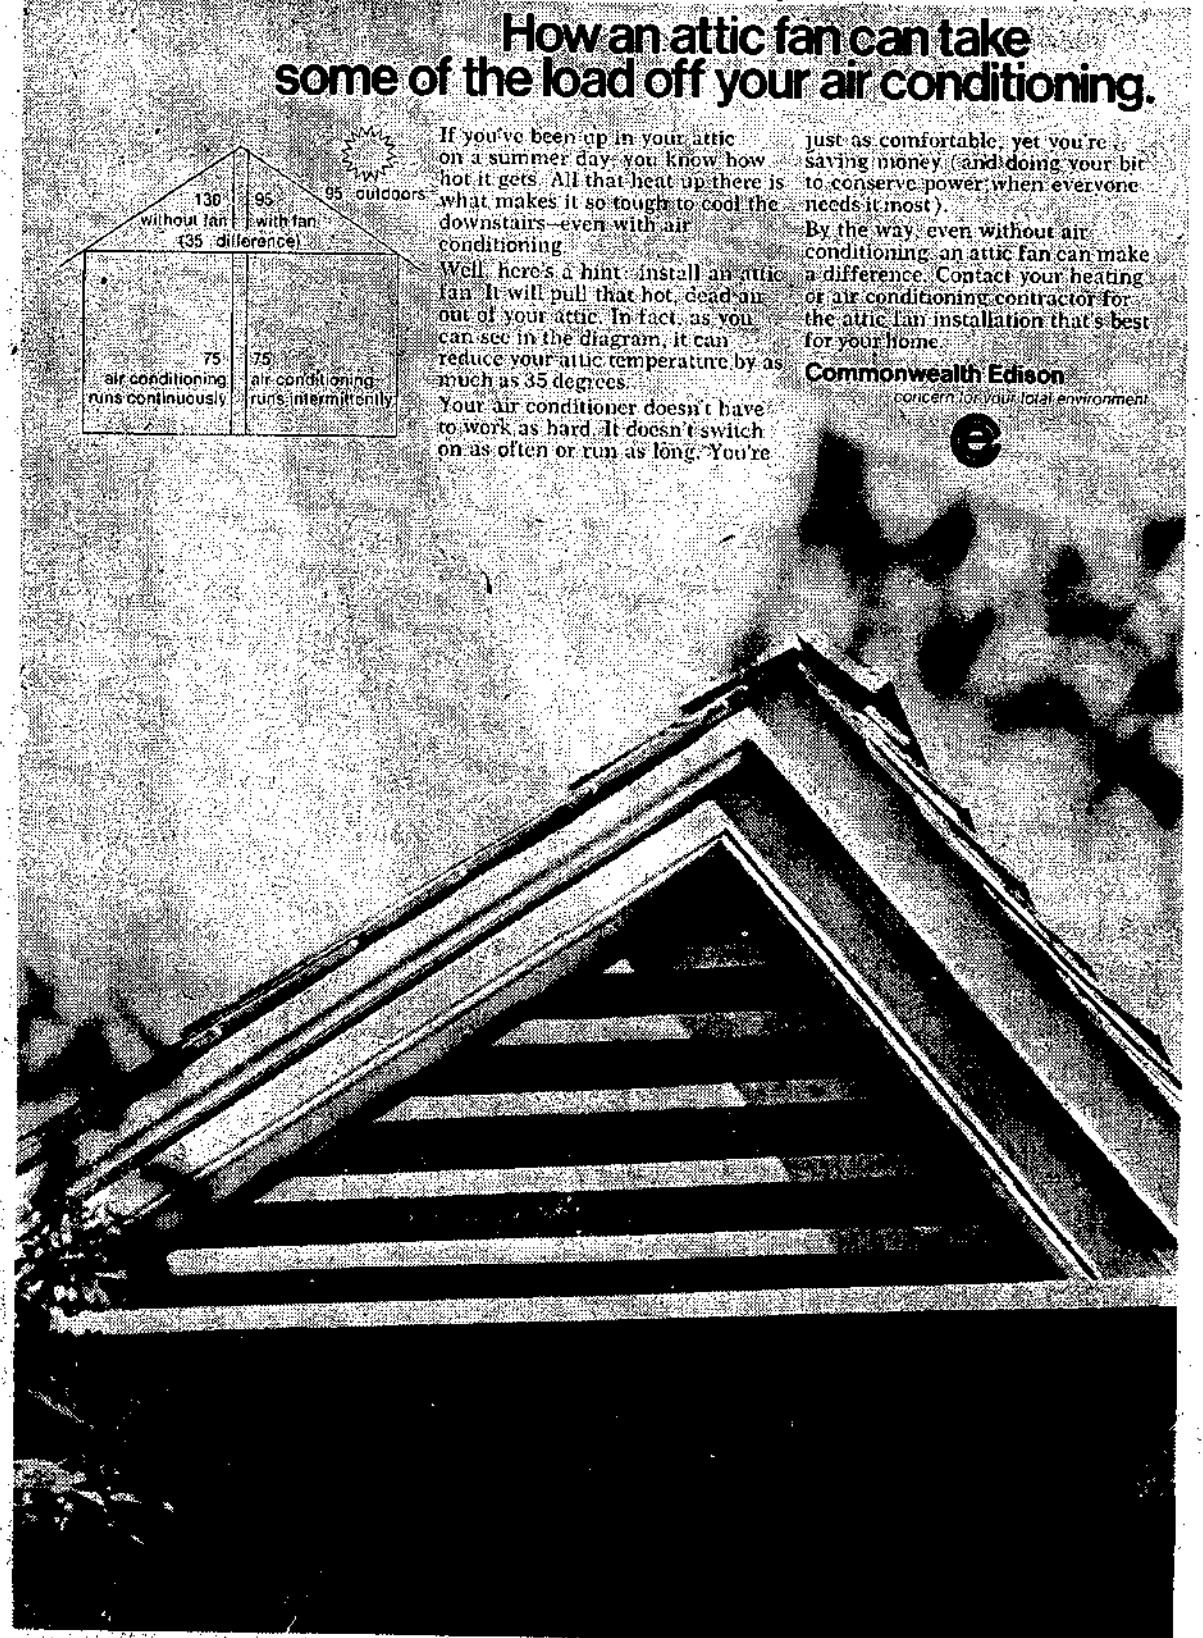

Your air conditioner doesn't have to work as hard. It doesn't switch on as often or run as long. You're just as comfortable, yet you're saving money (and doing your bit to conserve power when everyone needs it most).

By the way, even without air conditioning, an attic fan can make a difference. Contact your heating or air conditioning contractor for the attic fan installation that's best for your home.

MORE THAN 4,000 companies across the nation offer retail stores and businesses a variety of security services, including guard, roving patrol, armed car escort, central station alarm and investigation. Here Jim Fletcher, of Illinois Counties Detective and Patrol Agency, makes his rounds by car.

Industrial Security Field Booming

(Editor's note: Major crime has increased 120 per cent across the United States in the last 10 years. With the rise in violence has come an increased concern for personal safety and industrial security.)

An increasing number of businesses have initiated their own forces or have hired security guards from contract detective agencies, and store detectives patrol local shops in an effort to cut shoplifting losses.

In a two-part series the Herald examines the problems faced by local businesses in protecting their plants, the men they hire to safeguard their premises and the problems plaguing an industry that grew 150 per cent in the 1960s.

by CAROL RHYNE

"In today's world, industrial security is the No. 1 factor in survival," one security manager of a local discount house said.

Shoplifting in neighborhood department stores and employee theft in manufacturing plants account for some of the biggest losses suffered by stores and businesses. The need for businesses to protect their property, including their ideas from competitors, has led to a boom in the private industrial and retail security industry that blossomed after World War II.

The private security industry is a $3.3 billion-a-year business with more than 4,000 companies across the country offering guards for hire.

In the last decade, the number of security workers employed by private contract services doubled. Currently, some 36 per cent of security personnel, including public and private police and government guards, are employed by private industry.

WITHIN the private sector, there are a variety of types of security services. These include guards, roving patrols on foot or by car, armored car escorts, central station alarms and investigations. Some services are provided for a fee to companies by contract security firms, while in-house guard forces are not for hire and provide services solely for the companies that employ them.

Most private security personnel have no peace officer powers, and their authority is limited to protection of their employers' property. In some cases, a guard may be deputized and given limited public police authority. Usually private guards, no matter what their authority, operate at a specific geographic location.

A good security system is especially crucial in plants which manufacture a small, highly resalable product. "We are constantly evaluating our protection systems to reduce the possibility of theft," said Harry Croon, security chief for Ampex Corp. in Elk Grove Village. "Ampex has plants producing finished goods (the firm makes stereo tapes) which could easily be unloaded, and we must have an effective guard force and not just an usher at the door."

Light has been praised as the cheapest form of security, but for insurance reasons, many companies must have a man on the premises at all times in addition to lights and burglar alarms. According to Croon, Ampex utilizes burglar alarms, closed circuit television and electronic motion detection systems in all parts of the buildings in addition to guards at every door.

CROON said the company hired its guards from an outside firm when it first moved to Elk Grove Village in 1966. The firm established its own security force in 1970: "We prefer our own guards because we think they are more involved in the company and its people and are therefore more efficient and reliable."

"We feel that we're unique in that we use young men as guards instead of retired persons," he said. "Most of our guards are going to college to become law enforcement officers or industrial security managers."

Wayne Lemke, a security manager for a chain discount store, said the main purpose for a retail security manager is to stop theft, though he also is trained in firefighting and the state safety codes.

He said private security personnel are responsible for protecting a company's property, maintaining its policies and enforcing the state laws. "Security guards are not policemen; they are private citizens," Lemke said. "However, because of the nature of the job, there must be an interaction between security guards and police."

"The security industry is growing because policemen need help," he said. "Taxpayers can't hire the hundreds and hundreds of policemen needed, so industry has to protect itself and hire its own private police force."

Lemke said he sees the security industry becoming more important every year and feels the opportunities in the field are growing.

ALONG WITH THE rapid growth of the security industry have come charges, from both inside and outside the field, that many guards hired to protect businesses are undereducated, undertrained and underpaid.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

My name is Beau. I'm an eight month old, orange and white male Brittany Spaniel born last Thanksgiving Day. Last January my master chose me from all my brothers and sisters to go live with him and his wife and their 5 children in Lake Zurich. I was very proud! For the past 7 months I've had the time of my life. But now I'm growing faster than the kids. My master says maybe he's being unfair to me. So we sat down and had a "master to dog" talk. He told me of my ancestry... of how my mother loves hunting with her master... and how I am AKC registered and what it means... that I've had all my shots and never been sick a day in my short life... of why I love to run and play in a BIG yard... and that I am the riskiest, most lovable dog he has ever owned. So we agreed, in choked voices, that if there is a family somewhere that has a lot of room for me to romp and play and maybe a possibility to be taught hunting, I would be able to enjoy my life to its fullest and we all would be happy. If anyone would like to help us out, call 438-8003 for further details. Resume furnished on request. P.S. You have to have a big box of chocolate cookies!

Elk Grove Leads 3-Team Race In Paddock Olympics

THE HERALD

Wednesday, August 2, 1972

Section 4 — 1

Elk Grove Park District, as it did just one year ago, jumped into a commanding lead after the first day of action in the 6th Annual Paddock Olympics.

The threat of rain all day Tuesday didn't dim Elk Grove's performances as the leaders ran up 198 team points to challenging Schaumburg's 130 and Arlington Heights' 113.

With exactly half of the schedule completed, the standings have developed into a three-way dogfight among those who have surpassed the century-point mark.

A deadlock for fourth exists between Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, both owners of 39 points while Mount Prospect and Salt Creek are right behind with 38 and 37, respectively.

Palatine, Hanover Park and Rolling Meadows are bunched in a tie for eighth with 33 apiece while Hoffman Estates trails the 11-team field with 29.

Competition was limited to the standing long jump, 50 and 100-yard dashes, jump rope and team relay in the opening day festivities, but Elk Grove stormed the top five point-scoring positions to gain the favorite's role upon entering tomorrow's schedule.

Pacing Elk Grove's blistering first day accomplishments was 13-year-old Cindy Antonik who captured the standing long jump for the fifth year in succession and toppled many of the boys' marks along the way.

Cindy came back to land honors in the 100-yard dash to emerge as one of the Olympics' rare one-day double winners.

Garnering both gold medals in the team relay events, Elk Grove counted 20 of its 198 points on the wings of Rudden, Walsh, Guendling, Gracheck, Walsh and Ramirez for the boys and Kropski, Darish, Deegan, Kropski, Czarnecki and Walsh for the girls.

Also adding to Elk Grove's monstrous advantage were Pangie in the 12-year-old boys long jump, Anderson in the 11-year-old girls jump rope event and Ryan and Walsh in the girls 50-yard dash finals.

Results of the boys' 50-yard championships were not available, but will be included with tomorrow's meet summary.

Schaumburg still remains in striking range behind Mary Meyer's winning effort in the girls eight-year-old long jump, Becky Carver's first-place feat for the 10 year-olds and Mike Netzel's gold medal jump for the 11-year-old boys.

Carol Couture landed a blue ribbon in the jump rope test for 10 year-olds and Carol Macakowski matched her teammate's winning effort with a first-place romp in the 50-yard dash. Hugh Hanson further speeded Schaumburg's total with a victory in the 11-year-old boys 100-yard sprint.

Defending champion Arlington can't be counted out of the race either and because of the performances of winners Lori Smithgaul in the 9-girls jump rope, Leslie Ahr in the 11-girls long jump, Brian Roy and Brian Locker in the eight and 13-boys long jump and Menas in the 12-girls 100-dash, it could still very easily rally to catch Elk Grove.

Other individual champions after Tuesday's competition included Mount Prospect's Kathy Horstmen in the 9-girls long jump, Gina Neri for the 12-girls long jump from Wheeling, David Beyer for the 8-boys out of Rolling Meadows, and Bob Altieri of Wheeling for the 10-boys in the same event.

Eight-year-old Christeen Koclaris of Buffalo Grove, 12-year-old Karen Scheids of Salt Creek and 13-year-old Betty Prosecek of Wheeling all wore crowns after the jump rope challenge.

Salt Creek's Andrea Danatoni, Hanover Park's Peggy Burr and Angela Nakis were all gold medal victors in the 9, 10 and 12-year-old girls 50-yard dash, respectively.

Spencer York of Buffalo Grove, Kirby of Hanover Park, Danatoni of Salt Creek, Ann Heviel of Rolling Meadows and Pruseck of Wheeling conquered in their respective classes in the enduring 100-yard dash competition.

Tennis singles will kickoff tomorrow's final day of events at 9:30 a.m. with softball throw, kickball, free-throw shooting and tug-of-war capping another spectacular episode in the Paddock Olympics — the tournament of champions for area park districts.

The mammoth team trophy presentation will follow immediately after the final tabulations have been made.

Paddock Patrol

by Jim Cook, TURF EDITOR

FRIDAY WAS AN anniversary.

It marked the second month that I've diligently followed the Pled Piper out to Arlington Park — the second month that I've listened, learned, absorbed and memorized the habits, tips, suggestions and cautions from the established turf editors in the press box.

It was time to graduate, cut the apron strings. It was time to make my own selections and repel the comments of "you like that three-legged nag?" or "ya know, they don't pay off if the horse finishes last."

Bravely and boldly, I journeyed to our backyard playground, hid in seclusion in the Classic Club and began looking over the card that would either distinguish me as a promising turf handicapper or handicapped turf failure.

I think I'll start out by making excuses. As you can readily see, my selections for Thursday's races aren't included at the end of this column.

I'm too young to make revenge-seeking enemies. Maybe two months isn't long enough to learn the horse-hair ropes. It seems that every other turf expert has 20 years behind him, not eight weeks.

But, enthusiastically — maybe too enthusiastically — I began handicapping the races, observing all the rules of thumb, cannon and hock.

I eliminated fillies that appeared equal in condition with colts, scratched the youngsters over the established, shied away from mounts carrying over 120 pounds, obeyed the changing class factors, circled the better jockeys, on and on — everything I was taught by manuals and teachers.

Well, apparently not everything. I forgot to pick enough winners.

I had trouble laying off races that didn't look good to me. I had trouble narrowing the field to one horse. I hate betting half the field. The likelihood of a six-way deadheat in a 12-horse field is about one-in-a-lot.

Someone once told me that the definition of gambling is betting your paycheck when the rent is due. Well, the rent was due, but my paycheck was safely tucked away in the bank — minus 18 dollars.

With the essentials — Daily Racing Form, my own special recipe of a speed and pace chart, recent workouts, green sheet, red sheet, program and scratch paper spread neatly in front of me, I went to the task of dulling my pencils.

The first race was a cinch. Lief T. looked the class of the field from my calculations. Quick, what are his odds? Woops, 10/242 other people agree with me. He's even money. Who cares? I won two bucks and my confidence soared.

The second was wide open — no clear-cut favorite. I narrowed to three and couldn't split 'em. Table's Girl wasn't one of them. It paid $11.20.

I'm back to even and having a ball. Only eight starters in the third and I like two 6-1 shots, Persian Art and Duty. If I bet only one, the other's gonna win. I got cocky and bet Persian Art to win and Duty to place (finish second).

Duty won by a neck and returned $14.80. Guess who was second in the photo? Persian Art needed only about 10 more yards to overtake him. I still cashed for $7.20, but I could have had $20.80 the other way.

I consoled myself with the success of my handicapping. Confidence turned to over-confidence. My picks ran like they were handcuffed to the gate over the last six races. The only thing I had to cheer about was the person celebrating a birthday at the next table.

Now, even with my apron back on, I still can't figure where I went wrong. I should have left after the third. Even a Hawthorne-type power failure would have been welcome. I couldn't have been any more in the dark.

Back to the non-betting drawing board. Back to school with the experts. Just think though. What a great gesture. Part of my 18 dollars will go to our beautiful state. Maybe I should really go gung-ho and re-cycle my tickets.

New York invader Kittiwake has been assigned the highweight of 122 pounds for Saturday's 39th running of the $50,000-added Matron Stakes, the one-mile and eighth turf event for 3-year-olds and upward for fillies and mares.

Mrs. S. L. (Betty) Gilmartin's local favorite Barely Even appears to be in good shape with 115 pounds as designated by Arlington Park Racing Secretary and Handicapper John Gantz.

The 3-year-old filly has captured 11 of 16 lifetime starts, but will have some barriers to clear Saturday. Barely Even has never run on the grass, a mile and one-eighth or beaten older company.

Her stiffest competition is expected to come from Canadian-bred Belle Geste who worked a mile between races Monday in 1:36.4 with the fractions in :23.1, :46.4 and 1:11.1. In an earlier work at Fort Erie, the 4-year-old churned a 1:35.2 — eclipsing the track mark by a fifth of a second. She'll carry 117 pounds.

The Matron was inaugurated in 1930 when 3-year-old Valenciennes whipped Bearing Over for top honors. Since then, some classy members of the distaff set have accounted for the lucrative Matron.

Risque turned the trick in 1931, Blue Delight in 1942, Askmanow in '43, But Why Not in '47, Sickle's Image in '51, Tosmah in '64, Old Hat in '65, Pink Pigman in '69 and Pattee Canyon in '70.

Godwin Paces Newcomers Golf

Betty Godwin was the top shooter in the first flight of the Arlington Heights Ladies Newcomers Golf League at Arlington Country Club last week.

Ms. Godwin recorded both low gross of 52 and low net of 35 and also parred two holes. Norma Jones also shot par twice while Connie Malecki, Dottie Fisher, Eloise Harrison and Bernice Dunn each carded one par. Weekly event — low gross after tossing out the two worst holes for each lady — ended in a three-way tie among Ms. Godwin, Ms. Jones and Ms. Dunn.

In the second flight, Roxanne Banet had low gross of 65 and low net of 38. Sig Dion had a birdie on the par-three sixth hole. Gladys Barnes was the winner of the weekly event.

Barbara Hirsch led the third flight with 63 for low gross and 36 for low net. Gail Borvig had the only par hole and Ms. Hirsch was the weekly event winner.

Area Wrestlers Challenge New York's Stars Tonight

Hersey's two wrestling aces, fresh off impressive performances in the summer National Junior Tournament, will again take the mats locally tonight along with two other Herald area stars.

The occasion will be the second of three all-star dual meets against some of New York's finest preps at Glenbrook South High School. Starting ceremonies will be at 7:45 p.m. and wrestling at 8:00.

The area group will include Brad Smith, Tad DeLuca and Bob Vercruysse of Hersey and Mike Beard of Wheeling, all familiar names as top performers in the regular winter season. Smith and DeLuca, who finished first and second respectively in their weight classes in the state meet last February, also have been prominent in a series of big summer attractions.

Their latest achievements were a second place for DeLuca at 165 pounds and third for Smith at 143 in the National meet last weekend in Iowa City, Ia. Smith also finished second in a Greco-Roman tournament with five wins and a tie in six matches.

The National meet included top performers from two previous Illinois state events this summer that included most of the top finishers from the state meet last winter. The freestyle championships were held at Hersey last month with DeLuca winning the top prize in his class and Smith runner-up after losing for the first time since January, 1970.

Smith was the only area participant in the first of the three duals against New York last night at East Moline High. In tonight's competition Beard will wrestle at 123 pounds, Vercruysse at 178 and DeLuca and Smith again at 165 and 143.

Smith and DeLuca will again be in action Thursday night in the final dual at Wheaton College. It's a grueling week for Smith, the only area boy in all three all-star events.

The New York wrestlers, who also competed in the national tourney (sponsored by the United States Wrestling Federation) in Iowa City, will tour Chicago this Friday. From 4:30 to 9:30 p.m. that night, wrestlers from both states and Illinois coaches will have a picnic at Decoma Day Camp in Northbrook.

Some of the other top Illinois matmen who will compete at Glenbrook South tonight will be Dan Cliffe of DeKalb, two-time state champ and USWF national champ; Tim Cysewski of Glenbrook South, another state champ; Joe Amore of Glenbrook South, USWF national champ; and Mark Tiffany of Waukegan, state and national title holder.

Smith and Amore are headed for an interesting rematch. It was Amore who finally broke Smith's long string in the state freestyle tourney just a week after Smith had beaten the same boy.

PAUL SPLITTEROFF, who was a baseball and basketball star at Arlington High School and now ranks as one of the American League's top left-handers, pitched against the Chicago White Sox last week for Kansas City. Herald photographer Jim Frost recorded the drama in pictures. See page four in sports.

MAKING THE TURN at second base is Palatine's John Ericson, who has just stolen the bag and is about to continue to third on a throwing error.

Logan Square fielder is Jim Bucaro. Ericson did not score and the Lions went on to capture the second game Sunday, 5-3, after winning the first

CATCHING UP IN Illinois: Over 130,000 chinook salmon and lake trout have been released into Lake Michigan by fisheries biologists from the Illinois Department of Conservation.

The three-inch salmon smolt were released into the lake at three locations after an initial imprinting procedure. The imprinting was done by placing the smolt in cages in the areas where they were to be released to get them accustomed to the water conditions.

"Hopefully they will return to this area at the end of their life cycle and produce some good fishing for our Illinois anglers," said Henry N. Barkhausen, Director of the Illinois Department of Conservation. 23,676 salmon were released during April and May and this group is expected to return to the Illinois portion of the lake in three to five years. At that time biologists will be able to determine just how successfully future Illinois stocking programs in Lake Michigan can be engineered.

The salmon were released at three locations along the Illinois shoreline: 6,741 near Winnetka, 5,500 at Illinois Beach State Park, and 11,435 near Diversey South Harbor in Chicago.

"These are the first chinooks Illinois has stocked in the big lake that were hatched and reared at the Spring Grove Hatchery. Al Lipnot, chief fisheries biologist for the Department, reports that there are still about 20,000 coho salmon at the hatchery which will be imprinted and released in March and April of 1973.

In addition to the salmon released, the biologists also stocked 110,000 lake trout off the North Avenue Beach in Chicago. The five-inch yearlings were received from Federal hatcheries as Illinois' annual allotment from the Great Lakes Fishery Commission program.

"Lake trout generally stay pretty close to where they are released," Lipnot said. "No imprinting of this species is necessary. They should produce a good lake trout fishery in a couple of years." Lipnot said that the left pectoral fin of the salmon had been clipped off by biologists prior to their being stocked. The department will depend on anglers to tell them of catches of these marked fish in ensuing years so complete studies can be made.

Less than a month after it was set, the chinook salmon record was broken when Thomas Boyle, Algonquin, landed a 31 pound seven ounce chinook that broke the old record by more than two pounds.

Boyle took his fish off the Waukegan shoreline using a Spoonplug. The record fish was 39 inches long and had a girth of 27 inches. The old record was 29 pounds, five ounces and was set by Ronald Johnson of Chicago early in July.

Another fish record was broken downstate, this one for green sunfish. Kenneth Collier, Sr., of Salem, Ill., yanked a two pounder out of one of those prolific Marion county farm ponds. He was using a yellow Scorpion, single spin, lure and broke the old record by 12 ounces. The fish was 11 1/2 inches long and had a girth of 12 1/2 inches.

DEVOTEES OF THE Hennepin canal will be glad to learn that pools 26 and 27 have been reopened after major surgery and rehabilitation work. The pools, just west of Geneseo about seven miles, were closed for four months. Included in the repairs was the construction of new concrete headwalls for the lock gates, renovation of installation of emergency spillways, construction of footbridges and the repair of butterfly valves in the locks. The two pools cover about five miles of the 98.8 mile canal, which has a total of 33 locks.

Upon filling, plans call for the stocking of fingerling largemouth bass and black crappie. Channel catfish will also be stocked after the initial fish planting. The breeder bass will be stocked next spring in time for a good spawn.

The Hennepin Canal has been so neglected for so many years that it breaks your heart to think of what the canal could be offering the state if funds and control had been available to Illinois during the years of abandonment of this cross-state waterway. But things are looking up. Long range plans, if carried out, will eventually develop both the Hennepin and Mississippi waterways into great boating and fishing waters for mid-state Illinois.

DATES FOR UPLAND game hunting have been approved by the Illinois Department of Conservation's Advisory Board.

The season for cock pheasants, Hungarian partridge, quail and rabbits will run from Nov. 11 this year through Jan. 15, 1973. Starting and closing times each day will be the times according to the Illinois Standard Shooting Timetable.

Since there is approximately 12 minutes difference between sunrise and sunset from one side of Illinois to the other, the state felt it was necessary to issue a standard time for starting and ending shooting each day to eliminate any confusion or debate as to whether the first bird was dropped before or after sunrise or sunset. (A copy of the official Timetable is available from the Department of Conservation.)

The bag limit for cock pheasant is two, with a possession limit of four. Hunters will be allowed six Hungarian partridge per day, possession 12. The bag limit for quail is eight with 16 in possession. Rabbit hunters will be allowed five per day, 10 possession.

The dove season will commence at noon (CST), Sept. 1, and continue through Nov. 9. Hours are from noon until legal closing time, with a daily bag limit of 12 birds. Woodcock and Wilson's snipe season will run from October 15 to December 15, regular shooting hours, limit five woodcocks; eight Wilson's snipe.

AN ANNUAL BREEDING population count has established that there was a favorable increase in pheasants and rabbits throughout Illinois in 1972, quail remained about the same and doves showed a slight decrease.

The pheasant population is believed to be 25 to 30 per cent up in hens. Biologists report that the overall population is approaching the 1962-1964 high. Counts also showed 3.2 hens per cock.

Southern Illinois showed a 20 to 30 per cent increase in rabbits, while middle and northern Illinois had slight decreases. The rabbit population, however, is still well below the state's 14-year (1956-1969) average.

Quail populations are about the same as a year ago, but the dove population appears to be 5 to 10 per cent off.

PONY "B" LEAGUE

Cubs 000 002 3-7-5-4
Sox 000 000 2-6-6-2
In a game between the first-place teams in both leagues the Sox won a thriller on Mark Anderson's double in the last inning with the bases loaded. The Sox rallied for two runs in the last of the seventh but it fell short. Mike Clark added a double for the Cubs. Bob Gurtiz picked up the win and Jack McCann took the loss.

COLT LEAGUE

Tigers 300 300 6-4
Gary Pengrahl fashioned a four-hitter to gain the victory. Mark Mierlo doubled for the losers and Bruce Sanchez got two hits. For the Tigers, Steve Kengott doubled and Pengrahl added two hits.

MAJOR LEAGUE

Just Dogs
by Dave Terrill

Breakthrough — From the newsletter of the American Humane Association issued in June comes word that there may be a breakthrough in a cure for heartworm disease in dogs.

High school student Kim Christy, in Charleston, S.C., working under the supervision of Dr. Norman L. Garlick, chairman of the department of Laboratory Animal Medicine, University of South Carolina, has been working on this problem as a science project and has possibly uncovered one of the most important animal diseases discoveries in recent years.

A special oil formulation applied to the back of the neck of dogs with heartworm disease eliminates all larvae of the heartworm in the majority of affected animals within five to six days without producing anoxic shock. With monthly applications of the drug during the mosquito season, and if previous experience with injectable and oral administration of the drug holds true, the article goes on to state the probable eradication of this disease in dogs is predicted.

With the larvae eliminated, there can be no transmission of the disease by mosquitoes and the adult heartworms can be permitted to remain until they die a natural death, or they can be otherwise eliminated.

There are many people today who are critical of our high-schoolers — they should stop and take a second look. Most of these young people are a pretty serious and concerned group — one sure proved the point, and dogs may be the better for it.

Busy show time — Weekends during the summer are filled with dog shows, obedience trials and field trials. To give you an idea, here is just a partial list of what is coming up.

Sunday, Aug. 6, the Midwest Boxer Club will have a "Sanctioned B" Puppy Match at Ringwood, Ill. The location is 4915 Ringwood Drive. Junior Showmanship will begin at noon, with regular judging starting at 1 p.m. For information call RE 7-1323.

Sunday, Aug. 6, the Chicagoland Dalmation Club will hold its annual summer fun match at Colonial Coach Kennels; Rte. 176, Wauconda, Ill. Judging includes conformation, obedience, junior showmanship and ladies handling. Registration from 10 - 11:30, with judging starting at noon. For information call 625-2555.

Sunday, Aug. 13, Northwest Obedience Club will hold its 12th annual tracking test at Twin Ponds Hunt Club, Algonquin. The test will start at 7 a.m. If you wanted to enter and don't have your entry in, forget it. Entries closed at noon August 1.

Sunday, Aug. 13, Park Shore Kennel Club will hold its fourth fun match at the Northbrook Sports Complex, 1730 Pfingsten Road, Northbrook. Judging begins at 10 a.m. For information call 272-1813.

Sunday, August 20, the Northwest Obedience Club will hold its 15th annual obedience trial at Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights. Entries for this one close at noon Tuesday, Aug. 8. For information fast, you had better call the show superintendent, Roy Jones, 219-925-0525.

Barks & Bays — Remember, a hot, closed car can kill a dog. If you take the family hound along, keep the windows open — not an inch or so, but really open — while you go in to the store to shop.

Drenk, Maywold Dragaway Winners

UNION GROVE, Wis. (UPI) — Jerry Drenk of Arlington Heights Sunday afternoon won the modified eliminator competition at the Great Lakes Dragaway with a speed of 121.80 miles per hour in an elapsed time of 11.24 seconds.

Unit stock eliminator champ was Darryl Crouch of Chicago with a speed of 109.08 m.p.h. in 12.38 seconds and overall stock eliminator winner was Jay Maywold of Des Plaines with a speed of 106.72 m.p.h. in 12.92 seconds.

Heidi Lepey of River Grove won the powder puff event with a speed of 106.25 m.p.h. in 14.04 seconds.

Olympic Feats Of 1928

(One of a series on extraordinary happenings in each of the 16 modern Olympic Games.)

AMSTERDAM, 1928 — The most exciting track personality at Amsterdam was the Canadian schoolboy Percy Williams, who took the 100-meter in 10.8 seconds and the 200 in 21.8 seconds.

A student at Vancouver College, Williams had hitchhiked his way across Canada to compete in the Canadian championships and Olympic try-outs at Toronto and had then worked as a waiter in the city to cover his accommodation and expenses.

Prior to this celebration of the Olympic Games, the great Paavo Nurmi (Finland) had never negotiated a hurdle or crossed a water jump in track competition.

petition. He was a complete novice at steeplechasing.

Yet, just for the novelty, he entered for the steeplechase at Amsterdam and despite falling into every ditch, he won his heat and finished a very creditable second in the final to his countryman, Toivo Loukola. This was Nurmi's last Olympic appearance and he duly collected another gold medal in the 10,000-meter.

For the first time women's events in track and field were included in the Olympic program. The first Olympic champions were Elizabeth Robinson (USA) in the 100-meter, Lina Radke (Germany) in the 800-meter, Helena Konopacka (Poland) in the discus, Ethel Catherwood (Canada) in the high-jump.

For the first time, the Olympic flame was lit in Olympia, Greece, and carried to the site of the Games. Runners bore the torch through Greece, Yugoslavia, Austria and Germany on its way to the Netherlands.

Marshall, Wilson Capture Summer Golf Tournaments

The action in the Northern Illinois Mens Amateur Golf Association's (NIMAGA) summer golf tournaments for 16-18 year olds picked up again last week. Two tournaments were played, one at Old Orchard and the other at Arlington Park.

The Old Orchard course presented a challenge to the boys but respectable scores were turned in. Mike Marshall, Buffalo Grove, posted a 78 for first place followed by Nick Zambale, Barrington, with a 79. Mount Prospect's Jack Patterson took third with an 84 and Jeff Etienne, Hoffman Estates, carded 85 for fourth.

The 10-11 year old flight was headed by Kevin Wilson, Arlington Heights, with an 87. Rob Benson, Lincolnshire, shot a 107 and two Mount Prospect entries, Mark Fassnacht and Cole Whitney took third and fourth with scores of 112 and 113 respectively.

Rain at the start of the Arlington Park Tourney didn't dampen the spirits of the young golfers and some new names were added to the top scorers. Nick Zambale shot a fine 65 for the top spot. Buffalo Grove's Mike Marshall had a 70; Dan Krolack, also Buffalo Grove, 71; and Jack Patterson, 74.

The 10-11 year olds was again headed by Kevin Wilson who carded a 79. Paul Budris, Prospect Heights, took second with an 86 followed closely by Tom von Berg, another Arlington entry, with 87. Cole Whitney posted a 91 for the fourth place trophy.

One tournament is left for these young men. It will be held August 7 at Buffalo Grove Golf Course.

Rebels Drop Two; Busy Diamond Schedule Ahead

by LARRY EVERHART

The Northwest Rebels, despite dropping two of three games over the weekend, still had a 14-5-1 record to carry into this week's action. This area team for ages 19 and over lost a single game Saturday at New Trier, then returned home to split a doubleheader Sunday with North Park College.

Player-coach Frank May said the squad has continued to play good baseball and has experienced no letdowns. The schedule has been light for the past two weeks but gets much heavier now with 11 games in the next week and a half. Off days will be very rare the rest of the way.

May remarked that the club has been having financial difficulties and that help would be greatly appreciated from any potential sponsors. He said that some original sponsors have not lived up to promises but vowed that "we will not let this team die. Too many people have put in too much work and money. We will definitely continue to operate."

On the bright side, he said that the team has received a second invitation to join a league next year — the Greater Midwest League which includes, among others, the outstanding Midlothian White Sox. This league is much tougher competition than the Central States League which previously asked the Rebels to become a member. The team will make a decision soon.

The Rebels have been establishing themselves as tough competition and as a team which always shows for games. This has made it much easier to schedule opponents.

"At the beginning of the season it was hard to find teams to play," May said, "but lately it has been entirely different. Ten different teams asked to play us on the same date. We can't play too many games at home (Harper College) because of the money, but we are very happy to play as many games as we can."

Of special local interest in the next few days is a five-game series against the Arlington Heights American Legion team, all at Recreation Park in Arlington. The first of these contests was slated for Tuesday and the others for Thursday and Friday at 6:00, Sunday at 1:30 and Monday at 6:00.

This will be a warmup for the state tournament for the Arlington Legion club, which as host post has been directly seeded into the state finals.

Getting back to the Rebels' weekend games, pitching continued to be the strong suit as it has been all season. Northwest got three more complete games from Scott Day, Ray Gross and Rick Peekel though only Gross had a victory to show for his efforts.

Day did not walk a batter and struck out four while allowing six hits in a 3-2 loss to New Trier Saturday. The Rebels collected eight hits but could score only in the fourth inning when Wally Wiener signaled, Day walked and Bob Andreas and Mike Pettenuzzo each hit run-producing singles.

But the hosts had already scored three runs in the first two innings, and they proved to be just enough.

SCORE BY INNINGS

New Trier 120 000 x-3-4-0

Gross turned in a six-hit, 4-1 victory in the first game of a Sunday doubleheader at Harper. The Rebels needed only three hits to win, two of them coming in a three-run rally in the third.

The bases were loaded in that inning when Kim Beley singled and Mark Frase and Steve Smith walked. Steve Koch singled in the first run, another scored on an error and the third on a sacrifice fly by Pettenuzzo. This put the hosts on top 3-1.

They added an insurance tally in the fifth when Smith got the only other hit and eventually scored on a fielder's choice.

SCORE BY INNINGS

North Park 010 000 0-1-6-0
Northwest 003 010 0-4-3-0

The Rebels were shut out for the first time all season, 3-0, in the second game although Peekel pitched well. He allowed six hits, three walks and struck out four.

Four hits were all the hosts could muster and they were never bunched into a rally.

North Park scored in the first inning on a walk and two singles and added two more in the final frame on another pass and two more hits.

SCORE BY INNINGS

Northwest 000 000 0-0-4-0

Besides the above-mentioned games against Arlington Heights, the Rebels will be home for a doubleheader against Oak Lawn this Saturday starting at 1 p.m. Next week they will play five road games in five days.

Portrait Of A Big-Leaguer

Tension is reflected in the dugout.

Photos By Jim Frost

It's a very select few of the world's most talented baseball players who ever make it to the major leagues.

Paul Splittorff, formerly of Arlington Heights, is one of those few who knows what it feels like to be in the big show. He knows first-hand the tension, the excitement, the determination to win — all of which are depicted on this page by Herald photographer Jim Frost.

Splittorff, who until his graduation in 1964 was a highly-regarded baseball and basketball star at Arlington High School, has steadily and diligently climbed to the heights of being a regular on the pitching staff of the Kansas City Royals. This week he had the most victories on the staff with nine and a fine earned-run average of 3.18 though still in his first full year in the major leagues.

These were some of the scenes when Paul pitched in the opener of a four-game series at White Sox Park last week.

In a disappointing moment, Splittorff waits for a relief pitcher.

eastern and all the conferences that send teams to the bowl games each year. Many of the athletes, shown at the heights of their college football careers, went on to become top stars in professional football.

The opening contest is the 1965 clash between Notre Dame and Purdue. Notre Dame's Ken Ivan broke a tie late in the final period by kicking a field goal, but Bob Griese's passing led to a game-winning touchdown for Purdue.

"College Football's Greatest Games" will be broadcast every Wednesday at 10:30 p.m. as part of WSNS-TV's nightly variety sports series, "Action Sports 44."

Meyer Reveals He Will Not Run For State Seat

by KEN KOZAK

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has finally revealed that he will not be an independent candidate for a 3rd district seat in the Illinois State Legislature this fall.

Meyer also said he has not yet decided if he will endorse the regular Republican candidates, Donald L. Totten of Schaumburg and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights, against whom he ran his unsuccessful maverick candidacy in the March primary.

Apparently the decision not to run was made over the past several months, but Meyer did not announce it until last weekend when he conferred with "Republicans from different areas," Meyer refused to reveal the identities of the people he talked with over the weekend, but it is probable that they included the area mayors who backed his unsuccessful primary bid.

IN THE LAST few months, Meyer said, he has "taken on extra personal work with the feeling that I wouldn't be campaigning in September and October. If I had made it in March I wouldn't have taken on that extra work."

In March Meyer finished third in the primary behind Totten and Macdonald. In that contest, his first foray beyond local politics, Meyer pulled about 25 per cent of the vote running without the endorsement of Republican township political organizations.

Meyer said he does not know yet if he will endorse Totten or Macdonald.

"I haven't been asked to yet," he said, "and I don't know if I will or won't. I have had no contact with (Republican) township leaders with the exception of Bernie Peterson." Peterson is Republican committeeman for Palatine Township.

Meyer feels his endorsement will be sought, and expects the matter to come up shortly when he meets with Palatine Township leaders on the subject of dissolving Palatine Township governing agencies.

REGARDING HIS political future, Meyer said he will "take things as they come," as far as any future candidacies are concerned.

He said he would measure any future political move "by evaluating my chances and what I can do for the people around me, whether or not I have organizational support."

Meyer said he entered the last primary because there were no incumbents and because he wanted to make party leaders aware of the fact that local mayors "want to be consulted as to who is running."

He feels the party has ignored local officials too much in past slatemaking and his candidacy in the primary served as a warning to the organization that they ought to give more thought to the opinions of city and village leaders when candidates are picked.

State Competition Begins Saturday

Seventeen drum and bugle corps will compete for over $4,000 in prize money at the annual Illinois Drum and Bugle Corps Association competition.

Preliminary competition will begin at 9 a.m., Saturday, at Elk Grove High School, 500 W. Elk Grove Blvd.

Final competition starts at 7:30 p.m. The following corps will compete: Imperials, Skokie; Racine Scouts, Racine, Wis.; Black Knights, Belleville; Cavaliers, Chicago; Viscounts, McHenry; Thunderbolts, Cedarburg, Wis.; Knights, Kewanee; Southern Rebels, New Orleans, La.; Imperial Cadets, Skokie; Imperials of St. Patrick, Milwaukee; Falcons, Springfield; Royals, Waterloo, Iowa; Marauders, Roseville, Mich.; Crusaders, Ottawa; White Tornadoes, Moline; Gay Blades, Evanston; and Scorpions, Chicago.

SEVENTY-FIVE eye shields were purchased for the firemen Bill Clark attaches a set of visors to one of the department's helmets as John Serbec looks on. $731 donation from the village Kiwanis Club. Here, Fire Chief Allen Hulett has said some of the firemen have sustained minor eye injuries while fighting fires, and the shields will help protect their eyes from debris, wind and rain.

Low-Cost Housing Referendum Out

"We have talked about having a referendum on low-income housing, but decided it was not the best way to approach the problem," Cathy Duoba, Elk Grove Village housing commission chairman, said Tuesday.

In a statement earlier this week, Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase called for a referendum in each suburban community if the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) continued to push for a court order requiring development of low-income housing in the suburbs.

"Earlier this year such a referendum was discussed by the housing commission, and at that time we decided we would not favor a referendum because it would be too radical a departure from established procedures," Mrs. Duoba said.

She said that no other housing development was ever taken to the people for a vote, and the committee thought this housing should not be handled any differently.

THE VILLAGE BOARD of trustees earlier has said it was not sympathetic to low-income housing unless it was considered on an area-wide basis.

Blase also said a referendum would show that the ACLU was "singularly alone" in its drive to force Cook and DuPage County suburbs to accept 60,000 units of low-income housing under a "fair share" plan. He said he believed that 90 per cent of the people would turn down any low-income housing proposed in a referendum.

"They (ACLU) must realize the only way to go with this problem is with gradualism and education of suburbia as to why low-income housing makes sense and what it really involves," Blase said.

Mrs. Duoba said she agrees that the most practical approach was a volunteer effort and challenged Blase to work toward this goal and "no use the fear of low-income housing for political gain."

Village Trustee Robert Durning said he mentioned the idea of a referendum on low-income housing back in January when the village board met with the housing commission.

"At that time I said if there was a referendum held in Elk Grove Village, it would be overwhelmingly turned down by the people," he said. "However I think it is senseless to spend the time and the money on a referendum when we already know the outcome."

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Jack Anderson, offering humble apologies, retracted his report that Sen. Thomas Eagleton had been arrested several times for drunken and reckless driving. After a 45-minute meeting with Eagleton, Anderson conceded his report had damaged the Missouri senator's short-lived vice presidential candidacy, and said he could not verify his charges.

Sen. George McGovern is reported considering six prime candidates in his search for a running mate to replace Larry O'Brien, Sargent Shriver, Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey, Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie, Wisconsin Sen. Gaylord Nelson and Idaho Sen. Frank Church. Sen. Edward Kennedy repeated his rejection of the second spot on the Democratic ticket.

In the first legislative test of one of McGovern's principal campaign issues, the Senate defeated his proposal to cut the defense budget by $4 billion. The vote was 59 to 33.

The House refused for the second time in a week to work out a compromise with the Senate over differing bills that would increase the minimum wage.

The House Rules Committee took away from the Judiciary Committee and sent to the House floor a proposed constitutional amendment to ban racial busing. The rules committee declined to take similar action to dislodge from the judiciary panel President Nixon's legislation proposing a one-year moratorium on new court busing orders.

The World

President Nixon's special peace envoy, Henry Kissinger, conferred privately in Paris for the 15th time with North Vietnamese negotiators, the White House announced. Both U.S. and North Vietnamese peace delegations kept a complete silence about the session.

Diplomatic reports reaching Britain said an elite unit of the Egyptian army attempted to overthrow President Anwar Sadat two months ago. Diplomats said about 1,000 commandos took part in the abortive rebellion May 25.

An eight-member "family," including three children, asked for asylum in Algeria after hijacking a Delta Airlines jetliner from Florida to Algier and collecting a record million-dollar ransom.

Boris Spassky accepted challenger Bobby Fischer's offer of a draw after 29 moves in the ninth game of their world

Plan To Revise Building Code

Elk Grove Village officials are drawing up final recommendations this week for revising the local building code before submitting it to the village board of trustees next week, Tom Rettenbacher, building commissioner, said.

Rettenbacher said the building department, fire department and village manager's office were working on the final revised draft of the proposed building code changes which will be presented to the board Aug. 8.

The village building code is revised every five years, and talks about the present proposed changes have been going on for a year, he said. Rettenbacher added that the village held talks in May with local builders, developers, architects and engineers to hear their ideas on proposed code changes.

The village subscribes to the Building Officials' and Code Administration (BOCA) International for its basic code. Rettenbacher said Elk Grove Village, as many other municipalities, writes in exceptions or amendments to the BOCA code to fit the regulations to its particular needs.

THE BOCA code is a performance-oriented code in that it doesn't tell builders exact specifications for buildings but what the building should be able to do, Rettenbacher said.

The Elk Grove Village Association of Industry and Commerce has criticized some of the proposed changes in the present code as being "too stringent and restrictive" and has asked the village to adopt the basic BOCA code without adding exceptions.

Rettenbacher said since talks with builders, there have been some alterations in the proposed building code changes, such as for sprinkler systems.

The original proposal declared that all buildings 10,000 square feet or larger would have a sprinkler system, but the BOCA code gives allowances for buildings with easy access and for certain types of construction. Rettenbacher said the village may want to go with the BOCA code on this point.

There was another proposal to require a sprinkler system in multi-family buildings more than five stories high. BOCA's recommendation is based on height and area of the building and takes into account the type of construction.

Residential builders also were opposed to requiring masonry construction for multiple-family dwellings, he said. Rettenbacher said the builders wanted to be able to use frame construction with possibly brick facing.

"THE BUILDERS were opposed to demanding fire walls be masonry-type construction saying requiring masonry was discrimination against carpenters and was unduly restrictive," Rettenbacher said. "However I feel for added protection and safety, masonry fire walls are well worth their cost."

Rettenbacher said the One and Two Family Dwelling Code drawn up by the four nationally recognized building code associations also will be part of the proposal sent to the board of trustees.

ALTHOUGH THE FARE was 10 cents more for a shuttle train as usual. Area businessmen showed little concern over the rate increase, but were displeased with the possibility of service cutbacks by the rail line.

Negotiations Parley Set

by WANDALYN RICE

Teachers in High School Dist. 211 have been urged to attend a meeting at 7 p.m. Aug. 22 to show their support for the position taken by their bargaining group in salary negotiations with the board of education.

At the same time, the board has sent a letter to the teachers outlining their position on the 1972-73 negotiations, which have been going on since February.

Talks between the Dist. 211 Education Association and the board are currently stalled on whether to include a number of "nonmonetary" issues in the contract.

The teachers will be asked at the meeting whether they believe the association should fight to get the "nonmonetary" issues, including provisions on class size, evaluation procedures and curriculum planning, included in the contract.

The meeting will be in the Palatine Fire Hall, 117 W. Slade, Palatine.

THE MEETING, which will come just days before the scheduled opening of school, will not include a vote to authorize the association to call a teachers' strike, according to Doug Verdonck, association president. "We want to get the feeling of our teachers on the nonmonetary issues," he said.

An association newsletter mailed this week calls on the teachers to attend the meeting if they "care about the quality of education in Dist. 211" and indicates the association bargaining team will be guided by whatever decisions are made at that time.

A letter from Robert Seger, head of the board's negotiating team, also went to teachers in the district this week. In it Seger outlines the board position that it will not put specific guarantees on class size, teacher evaluation or policymaking in the contract. The letter states the board wants to proceed to discuss salaries for next year.

Seger said yesterday the letter was sent because, "Up to this point the teachers have not heard a word from the board of education and we don't think that is good. They have gotten a couple of letters from the association and we think that is a biased view."

NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN the two sides have been stalled for some time on what the teachers are now calling the "contract versus policy" issue. The teachers have asked that a number of guarantees on class size, evaluation and other things be placed in contract language, but the board has refused, saying the items should instead be placed in the board policy manual.

In the association newsletter association officials explain they want the guarantees in the contract because violations would be subject to a district grievance procedure and "the law will enforce a contract but will not enforce board policy."

Seger said the board will not consider placing the guarantees in the contract precisely because it will open the items for grievance. Instead, he said the board is willing to set up faculty-administration committees on any problem to try to work out a solution.

Seger added that he does not believe the board's position will change, even if teachers at the Aug. 22 meeting uphold the association's position. "The board's position is very strong," he said.

The two sides have not begun to discuss possible salary increases for the 1972-73 year, but both sides have presented proposals.

'Ho Hums' Greet C&NW Fare Hike

by DOUG RAY

Everyone knew about the rate hike, but few were concerned. What's a dime to suburban commuters?

Bob Webb, a bespectacled accountant, leaned against a railing awaiting the 8:38 a.m. Chicago and North Western (C&NW) shuttle yesterday. Along with hundreds of suburban commuters, he had paid an extra dime for the Chicago round trip.

"I basically don't object to the rate increase if they provide the same service," he said. "The cost of everything is going up."

Frank Cerza of Rolling Meadows agreed as he sat inside the station bidding time before the train's arrival. He defended the 5 1/4 per cent fare increase which went into effect yesterday.

"If they need the money, then that's the way it is," Cerza said. "Just because they're government regulated is no reason why they can't increase fares."

THE HORDE of businessmen who daily ride the C&NW showed little distress over the extra ticket costs. They lauded the C&NW service and said they are willing to pay for it.

Richard Morris came to Arlington Heights from New York and says he appreciates the service more than most of his fellow commuters. Chicago has the best rail commutation to and from the suburbs," he contends.

"They're cleaner and run more often than New York's rail network. I hope they can somehow make this line pay for itself."

And Lowell Christy, who has been a regular at the Arlington Heights stop since 1954, "back in the days of steam engines," shrugged his shoulders when asked about the jump in fares. He will stay with the rail line but hopes they "don't overdo a good thing" by continuing to spiral the cost of commuting by rail.

COMMUTERS AREN'T disgruntled about the added cost, but they are concerned over the possibility of the railroad cutting its service to the suburbs.

For commuters such as Larry March of Arlington Heights a service cutback would be critical. "I have no choice but to ride the train. My wife needs the car," he said. "The train now is convenient and worth the price."

An elderly man at the Arlington Heights station yesterday morning said he recalls when it cost 35 cents to ride the C&NW to Chicago. "But that was years ago," he added.

Today the price one-way from Arlington Heights is $1.40. Palatine commuters pay $1.50 one-way.

As the train screeched to a halt in front of the waiting commuters, two green-clad conductors opened the doors and escorted passengers up the steps.

"No we haven't heard a word of grumbling about the price," said one of the conductors. "But I'm sure they don't like it either."

Navy Housing Plan May Scrap Park

The Department of the Navy is planning the construction of 165 units of federal government housing at the Arlington Heights Nike Site, the Herald learned yesterday.

Plans for the site are a revival of a proposal made four years ago by Navy officials, and come at a time when much of the federal site was hoped to be turned into a recreational area by local authorities.

The proposed housing at the Arlington Heights Nike Site would be for Navy personnel at the Glenview Naval Air Station.

Of the 165 units, 145 would be two-story row-tow housing with five units to a row. These units would house enlisted men, according to Comdr. Karl Mueller, public works officer at the Glenview Naval Air Station. The remaining 20 units would be duplexes for Navy officers.

MUELLER SAID the Navy hopes to break ground for the project in April, 1973, and have the units ready for occupancy in April, 1974.

The Navy will not have to seek approval of the Arlington Heights Park Commission or Village Board for the project, although the development will be within the corporate boundaries of Arlington Heights. Federal authority supersedes local controls.

The land to be developed for housing is in a horseshoe shape along Central and New Wilke roads, with the legs of the horseshoe extending east.

Authorization to construct the housing is pending in the U.S. Senate and a vote on the measure is expected Thursday.

The Military Construction Authorization Act approving the housing passed the U.S. House on July 20 by a vote of 371 to 17.

The House Bill authorizing the construction specifies that the average cost of houses in each project not exceed $24,000. This figure includes land acquisition, development and utilities. The bill further states no single unit could exceed $42,000.

DISCLOSURE OF the Navy's plans may have dealt a severe blow to plans to turn 98 acres (including the Navy's 51 acres) of the 137 acre Nike site into a regional park.

Mayors and park district officials from Palatine, Elk Grove, Wheeling and Schaumburg townships had met with Sen. Charles Percy in January and received his endorsement of the regional park concept.

"We won't have a regional park if this goes through," said Thomas Thornton, Arlington Heights director of parks and recreation. "That (the Navy property) would have been the beginning — the part we would get first, since nothing is out there now."

The development also will affect Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15. Projected population of the development is 600, of which 110 would be elementary school-age children. All of these children would attend Dist. 15 schools.

JOSEPH KISZKA, deputy superintendent of Dist. 15, said he has been in contact with Mueller to discuss the impact the project will have on Dist. 15. No commitment has been made by the Navy for a financial or land contribution to the district. Kiszka said he plans to look into Public Laws 874 and 815 providing funds and land to federally impacted school

District Budget Ready For Public Inspection

The 1972-73 budget for High School Dist. 211 is ready for public inspection at the district's administration building at 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine, and a public hearing and adoption of it is scheduled for Sept. 14.

The budget, with total expenditures in the two largest tax funds of nearly $12.5 million, will probably be refined before it is adopted, district Business Mgr. James Shelton said.

In the education fund, the largest of the district's tax funds, the budget calls for spending $10,421,590, about $108,590 more than projected revenue. Slater said he expects the projected deficit to disappear as further changes are made in the budget.

Counted in the revenue for this year is $345,000 left over from last year's education fund budget.

THE BUDGET provides for teachers now in the district to receive an increment for additional experience, but no further increase in pay. The board of education is still bargaining with the Dist. 211 Education Association on possible salary increases for the coming year.

Slater said that if no agreement with the teachers is reached before Sept. 14, the scheduled adoption date, "We would have a couple of alternatives. Probably we would adopt the amount called for in the board's most recent offer and if the financial arrangements changed we would have to amend the budget."

The budget calls for expenditures and revenue in the building fund to exactly balance at $2,038,500 for the coming year. In addition, the district will have $640,244 available in a working cash fund that can make interest-free loans to the education and building funds.

The preliminary budget does not call for using the working cash fund to make any loans, however.

Navy's Dependent Housing Plan Dates Back To 1965

Plans for Navy dependent housing on sections of the Arlington Heights Nike site are not new.

The idea of Navy housing in the area dates back to 1965 when the Navy went to the Army and asked for land on the site to build houses.

When the first disclosures of the proposed government housing reached the community in the fall of 1966, reaction was heavily against the plan.

In Arlington Heights, substantial opposition to the plan came from residents who viewed the approach of government housing for Navy families as a threat to local property values.

The Arlington Heights Village Board and Arlington Heights Park District Board went on record as opposing the proposed Naval development. They were joined in their opposition by several local civic groups.

LEADING THE opposition was Thomas Thornton, superintendent of parks and recreation in Arlington Heights, who said the land could better be used for recreational purposes.

Since 1964 the park district had been eyeing the Nike site with the hope of acquiring the land and constructing a community golf course or large recreation area.

In December of 1964 park district officials were led to believe the Army would declare 100 acres surplus and offer them for sale at 50 per cent of the appraised value.

Intent on acquiring the land, the park district board requested authorization to issue $325,000 in bonds for acquisition of property in the January 18, 1965 referendum.

Junior College Dist. 301, now Harper College Dist. 512, also expressed an interest in the property in 1965 but later abandoned its interest.

Since military branches have first choice on federal land declared surplus, the Navy's request preempted requests from both the park district and junior college.

Initial Navy plans called for a $3 million townhouse and duplex housing project with 150 units. In March of 1968 the Navy nearly doubled its plans and announced its intent to construct 250 units.

THE PUBLIC OUTCRY mounted but the Navy refused to abandon its plans. In August of 1968 it appeared the project might be discarded and the Glenview Naval Air Station closed after a Navy attack plane crashed into suburban Glenview, killing a 13-year old girl.

Despite demands from Glenview residents that the base be closed, the Navy announced the Glenview station was a vi-

But Programs Remain Inadequate

America's War On Hunger Expands

A recent report from the Department of Agriculture reveals that about 11.5 million Americans now are getting food stamps from the government.

Except for a few extremely poor people, these stamps aren't given away free. Recipients are charged according to their ability to pay. But even those who pay top scale for food stamps get a bargain.

They can use the stamps at any participating grocery store to buy food worth far more than they paid for the stamps.

In addition to the 11.5 million Americans getting stamps, about 3.5 million are receiving packages of food distributed by the Agriculture Department. Each of the nation's 3,000 counties has the right to choose which program it prefers to come under.

The two food distribution programs together are supplementing the diets of 15 million hungry people. That is an all-time high and it represents an increase of about 8 million persons since 1969.

BOTH PRESIDENT Nixon and his Democratic challenger, Sen. George S. McGovern, are likely to claim campaign credit for this rapid expansion of the war against hunger in America. And both can make a case.

The increase took place under Nixon's administration. But it was forced largely by McGovern's special Senate Committee on Hunger.

Until McGovern's committee got on their backs, bureaucrats in the Agriculture Department tended to view food distribution programs primarily as a way of aiding farmers by getting rid of commodity surpluses. Feeding the hungry was, at best, a secondary consideration. Now it has become a primary objective.

While Nixon and McGovern debate who's entitled to credit for improvement of food programs, they may also exchange accusations about who's to blame for the fact that the programs still are grossly inadequate to the need.

THE LATEST Census Bureau report on family incomes shows that about 25.6 million Americans are living below the official "poverty line." It seems logical to conclude that if we have more than 25 million poor people, and only 15 million are getting food assistance, some 10 million are going hungry, unheeded and unhelped.

Efforts to expand existing food programs to reach these people haven't gotten very far because of the assumption, which has prevailed widely for the past two years, that Congress soon would enact a welfare reform bill that would give poor families cash grants and eliminate the need for food stamps.

But it now appears that welfare reform is so deeply mired in political controversy it has little chance of enactment this year.

Meanwhile, those 10 million poor people who are left out of existing food programs will just have to stay hungry.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E. Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970.

with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Stick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with string.

Plan Board Paves Way For Land Trade For Road

The Wheeling Plan Commission Thursday night waived the preliminary plat for a subdivision of village land needed for a trade that would facilitate the realignment of Wheeling Road.

The village is negotiating a trade involving two similar triangles of land. The village land would be traded for a nearby triangle needed for the new Wheeling Road. In order to trade this land, the village needs to subdivide the property it owns along the road.

Wheeling Road will eventually connect with McHenry Road at Dundee Road, creating a single intersection.

The preliminary plat for the subdivision was waived because the land requires only a two-lot subdivision, requires no engineering and would be effected for the village good. The final subdivision plat will be presented at the next plan commission meeting.

THE COMMISSION also approved the final plat of the Chelsea Cove Land Development, pending the correction of several deficiencies in the plat. A statement of credit or bond, a review of the engineering statements, and approval from state agencies are still needed before the plat can be considered, by the village trustees.

The Chelsea Cove plat is only a general subdivision of the land for construction of some 500 condominiums, Hollywood Builders, developers of the project, expect to subdivide the property three more times. Final engineering plans for the development will be submitted with the last subdivision plat.

Because of legal technicalities in the discussion of final plats, the plan commission requested that Village Atty. Paul Hamer be present at meetings for consideration of final plats. "We have asked for him to be here several times," said commission member Herb Lortz.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said the village attorney was available to the plan commission, but that he "would prefer coming only at your specific request."

Commission member Wilfred Sommer asked that the matter be brought up for discussion as an agenda item at the next commission meeting.

Beekeeper Doesn't Buy Bees

Beekeeper Anthony Schneider doesn't buy his bees. He prefers to capture his colonies when they swarm in the spring, and so far he has filled 29 hives in Wheeling, Huntley and Wilmette.

If he wanted to, Schneider said he could order his bees through the mail. "A three-pound bee colony would cost about $7," he said. "That's about 3,500 bees to the pound."

But Schneider, who has been keeping bees as a hobby for 10 years, prefers to do things himself. "I was born and raised on a farm, and my parents raised bees," the 66-year-old beekeeper said.

"It kind of gets in your blood."

Even though he likes his bees, Schneider said beekeepers never really become friendly with their bees. "I don't think you have any kind of relationship with them," he said. "I don't think they know you at all."

The retired Standard Oil truck driver works slowly and calmly with his bees. His movements are deliberate and easy as he walks among his hives, checking the progress of his colonies. He rarely wears a veil over his face and only resorts to a smoker when he wants to calm down the bees.

"AS A RULE, they're not crabby," Schneider said of his bees. "But their moods change. If you scare them, if you work fast and excite them, they'll attack you. But if you work slow with them, they're nice to you."

Schneider spends about an hour each week checking on the 12 hives he keeps in his nephew's backyard, two houses west of the Wheeling Post Office. He also has colonies in Huntley, and even keeps a few hives behind his home in Wilmette.

Some of his colonies are strong and produce a lot of honey, and others are weak. "It's all up to the queen," he explained. "If the queen is a good layer, the bees will work. If she isn't, they just don't have the incentive to work."

All in all, Schneider's bees rewarded him with 1,900 pounds of honey last year. He gives away most of it, but if the bees are productive he often sells it to people in the neighborhood.

Aside from the honey, Schneider said beekeeping has brought him closer to nature. He said he is more observant of changes in natural things, such as when the flowers are blooming. And he has also learned to study the habits of his bees closely.

FOR EXAMPLE, he knows that bees don't fly around a lot when the weather is cool and cloudy, but become active when the sun comes out. He says that bees like dark-colored comb best, and claims that their favorite flower is sweet clover.

Schneider is full of other facts and figures about bees. He says that if a queen is a good layer, she'll lay 600 to 2,000 eggs a day in the early spring.

His knowledge of bees makes him confident working with them. Although he is stung occasionally, he said he is never hurt unless it is his fault.

"I've been stung 25 to 30 times at once," he said. "But it was through my own fault. I was catching a swarm up in a tree and I had no veil or anything. The box slipped, and they all came down on top of me."

Catching a swarm usually is not difficult, Schneider said. "Say there's a

After a 45-minute meeting with Eagleton, Anderson conceded his report had damaged the Missouri senator's short-lived vice presidential candidacy, and said he could not verify his charges.

Sen. George McGovern is reported considering six prime candidates in his search for a running mate to replace Eagleton. Insiders say the list includes Larry O'Brien, Sargent Shriver, Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucroy, Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie, Wisconsin Sen. Gaylord Nelson and Idaho Sen. Frank Church. Sen. Edward Kennedy repeated his rejection of the second spot on the Democratic ticket.

In the first legislative test of one of McGovern's principal campaign issues, the Senate defeated his proposal to cut the defense budget by $4 billion. The vote was 59 to 33.

The House refused for the second time in a week to work out a compromise with the Senate over differing bills that would increase the minimum wage.

The House Rules Committee took away from the Judiciary Committee and sent to the House floor a proposed constitutional amendment to ban racial busing. The rules committee declined to take similar action to dialogue from the judiciary panel President Nixon's legislation proposing a one-year moratorium on new court busing orders.

The World

President Nixon's special peace envoy, Henry Kissinger, conferred privately in Paris for the 15th time with North Vietnamese negotiators, the White House announced. Both U.S. and North Vietnamese peace delegations kept a complete silence about the session.

Diplomatic reports reaching Britain said an elite unit of the Egyptian army attempted to overthrow President Anwar Sadat two months ago. Diplomats said about 1,000 commandos took part in the abortive rebellion May 25.

An eight-member "family," including three children, asked for asylum in Algeria after hijacking a Delta Airlines jetliner from Florida to Algier and collecting a record million-dollar ransom.

The War

U.S. Navy planes bombed a shipyard in North Vietnam's major port city of Haiphong for the first time, and the allies' Bien Hoa airbase, outside Saigon received its heaviest Communist shelling of the war. The base houses 2,250 Americans.

Boys' Football Registration Set Saturday

Boys in the Buffalo Grove-Wheeling area — get out your cleats and start getting in shape. Registration for the new Buffalo Grove Boys Tackle Football program begins Saturday and the first game in Sunday, Sept. 10.

Registration for the program, open to all boys who will be entering the fifth through the eighth grades in the fall, will be Saturday, Aug. 5 and Saturday, Aug. 12 from noon to 3 p.m. in the Emmerich Park office, 150 Raupp Blvd.

The $20 (participation) fee will not be required until a boy is placed on one of the two tackle teams. The lightweight team will consist of boys weighing 110 pounds and under. The heavyweight team is for boys weighing over 110 pounds.

All equipment except shoes and mouthguards will be provided by the Buffalo Grove Boys Football Association.

Dick Porter, president of the 12-man group, said an eight game schedule is planned for the two teams. In addition, following the regular season play, the teams will have a chance to travel to Georgia, Florida or Alabama to compete against a team there in a bowl game, he said.

The Buffalo Grove Boys Football Association teams will compete in the Northern Illinois Junior Football Traveling League. Most Northwest suburbs have teams that are members of the league.

All home games will be played at Wheeling High School until the Buffalo Grove High School is finished, Porter said. The first game is against Palatine High School.

Youth Bitten; Police Search For Stray Dog

Cook County Sheriff's Police are seeking a brown and black German Shepherd that bit a Buffalo Grove youth Monday afternoon.

Police said the dog must be found soon or the youth, Lonny Rueckert, 450 Sussex, will have to undergo a series of painful rabies shots.

Rueckert was bitten on the right arm about 12:45 p.m. Monday. The incident occurred two blocks north of Hintz Road off of Schoenbeck Road, police said.

The dog was described as medium size, with a black back and brown sides. The dog was not believed to be wearing any collar or tags.

Sheriff's police and men from the Department of Rabies Control have been searching the area since the reported injury, but have not found the animal. One policeman said the dog is thought to be a stray, and may be dangerous to other persons.

Anyone with information about the dog, or anyone who has seen it in the area, should phone the Cook County Sheriff's Police Communication Center, 453-1000.

Even though Rueckert may begin the shots today, the series can be stopped if the dog is located.

The Market

The stock market scored a substantial gain on the New York Stock Exchange after five consecutive losing sessions. Trading was fairly active. The Dow Jones average gained 5.72 to 930.46. Advances outnumbered declines, 893 to 488 among the 1,743 issues crossing the tape. Turnover totaled 15,500,000 shares. Prices were higher in fairly active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

ALTHOUGH THE FARE was 10 cents more for a round trip ticket from Arlington Heights to Chicago yesterday, commuters swarmed the morning shuttle train as usual. Area businessmen showed little concern over the rate increase, but were displeased with the possibility of service cutbacks by the rail line.

Navy Housing Plan May Scrap Park

The Department of the Navy is planning the construction of 165 units of federal government housing at the Arlington Heights Nike Site, the Herald learned yesterday.

Plans for the site are a revival of a proposal made four years ago by Navy officials, and come at a time when much of the federal site was hoped to be turned into a recreational area by local authorities.

The proposed housing at the Arlington Heights Nike Site would be for Navy personnel at the Glenview Naval Air Station.

The project would cost an estimated $4 million and would entail construction of 165 four-bedroom units at the northwest corner of the site on 41 of the 51 acres held by the Navy.

Of the 165 units, 145 would be two-story row-type housing with five units to a row. These units would house enlisted men, according to Comdr. Karl Mueller, public works officer at the Glenview Naval Air Station. The remaining 20 units would be duplexes for Navy officers.

MUELLER SAID the Navy hopes to break ground for the project in April, 1973, and have the units ready for occupancy in April, 1974.

The Navy will not have to seek approval of the Arlington Heights Plan Commission or Village Board for the project, although the development will be within the corporate boundaries of Arlington Heights. Federal authority supersedes local controls.

The land to be developed for housing is in a horseshoe shape along Central and New Wilke roads, with the legs of the horseshoe extending east.

Authorization to construct the housing is pending in the U.S. Senate and a vote on the measure is expected Thursday.

The Military Construction Authorization Act approving the housing passed the U.S. House on July 20 by a vote of 371 to 17.

The House Bill authorizing the construction specifies that the average cost of houses in each project not exceed $24,000. This figure includes land acquisition, development and utilities. The bill further states no single unit could exceed $42,000.

DISCLOSURE OF the Navy's plans may have dealt a severe blow to plans to turn 98 acres (including the Navy's 51 acres) of the 137 acre Nike site into a regional park.

Mayors and park district officials from Palatine, Elk Grove, Wheeling and Schaumburg townships had met with Sen. Charles Percy in January and received his endorsement of the regional park concept.

"We won't have a regional park if this goes through," said Thomas Thornton, Arlington Heights director of parks and recreation. "That (the Navy property) would have been the beginning — the part we would get first, since nothing is out there now."

The development also will affect Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15. Projected population of the development is 600, of which 110 would be elementary school-age children. All of these children would attend Dist. 15 schools.

JOSEPH KISZKA, deputy superintendent of Dist. 15, said he has been in contact with Mueller to discuss the impact the project will have on Dist. 15. No commitment has been made by the Navy for a financial or land contribution to the district. Kiszka said he plans to look into Public Laws 874 and 815 providing funds and land to federally impacted school districts.

Following final approval of the Military Construction Authorization Act, the 1973 Military Construction Appropriations Act will be sent to the appropriations committee of the house and senate. This act appropriates the funds for the authorized military construction projects.

Meyer Says He Won't Run In Third District

by KEN KOZAK

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has finally revealed that he will not be an independent candidate for a 3rd district seat in the Illinois State Legislature this fall.

Meyer also said he has not yet decided if he will endorse the regular Republican candidates, Donald L. Totten of Schaumburg and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights, against whom he ran his unsuccessful maverick candidacy in the March primary.

Apparently the decision not to run was made over the past several months, but Meyer did not announce it until last weekend when he conferred with "Republicans from different areas." Meyer refused to reveal the identities of the people he talked with over the weekend, but it is probable that they included the area mayors who backed his unsuccessful primary bid.

"I talked with people over the weekend," he said, "and told them I had taken on too many commitments" to take on a candidacy in November.

IN THE LAST few months, Meyer said, he has "taken on extra personal work with the feeling that I wouldn't be campaigning in September and October. If I had made it in March I wouldn't have taken on that extra work."

In March Meyer finished third in the primary behind Totten and Macdonald. In that contest, his first foray beyond local politics, Meyer pulled about 25 per cent of the vote running without the endorsement of Republican township political organizations.

Meyer said he does not know yet if he will endorse Totten or Macdonald.

'Ho Hums' Greet C&NW Fare Hike

by DOUG RAY

Everyone knew about the rate hike, but few were concerned. What's a dime to suburban commuters?

Bob Webb, a bespectacled accountant, leaned against a railing awaiting the 8:38 a.m. Chicago and North Western (C&NW) shuttle yesterday. Along with hundreds of suburban commuters, he had paid an extra dime for the Chicago round trip.

"I basically don't object to the rate increase if they provide the same service," he said. "The cost of everything is going up."

Frank Cerza of Rolling Meadows agreed as he sat inside the station biding time before the train's arrival. He defended the 5 1/2 per cent fare increase which went into effect yesterday.

"If they need the money, then that's the way it is," Cerza said. "Just because they're government regulated is no reason why they can't increase fares."

THE HORDE OF businessmen who daily ride the C&NW showed little distress over the extra ticket costs. They lauded the C&NW service and said they are willing to pay for it.

Richard Morris came to Arlington Heights from New York and says he appreciates the service more than most of his fellow commuters. Chicago has the best rail commutation to and from the suburbs," he contends.

"They're cleaner and run more often than New York's rail network. I hope they can somehow make this line pay for itself."

And Lowell Christy, who has been a regular at the Arlington Heights stop since 1954, "back in the days of steam engines," shrugged his shoulders when asked about the jump in fares. He will stay with the rail line but hopes they "don't overdo a good thing" by continuing to spiral the cost of commuting by rail.

using to spiral the cost of commuting by rail.

COMMUTERS AREN'T disgruntled about the added cost, but they are concerned over the possibility of the railroad cutting its service to the suburbs.

For commuters such as Larry March of Arlington Heights a service cutback would be critical. "I have no choice but to ride the train. My wife needs the car," he said. "The train now is convenient and worth the price."

An elderly man at the Arlington Heights station yesterday morning said he recalls when it cost 55 cents to ride the C&NW to Chicago. "But that was years ago," he added.

Today the price one-way from Arlington Heights is $1.40. Palatine commuters pay $1.50 one-way.

As the train screeched to a halt in front of the waiting commuters, two green-clad conductors opened the doors and escorted passengers up the steps.

"No we haven't heard a word of grumbling about the price," said one of the conductors. "But I'm sure they don't like it either."

STRONG BEE COLONIES produce more honey and are therefore built up with extra hive boxes. Anthony Schneider winters his bees with two hive boxes, harvesting the top boxes for honey. Each colony has its own character or smell, and bees seldom wander into the wrong hive box. The bee colonies will stay in their hives and will follow them wherever the beekeeper moves them.

Keeping Bees Is A Honey Of A Hobby

swarm on that bush," he said pointing across the yard. "The old queen comes out, and if it's a good size swarm there'll be about 5,000 of them. They hang there just like a big baseball. I knock them into a cardboard box or something. Then I put them down in front of the hive, and nine times out of 10 they'll go right in."

ONCE A SWARM makes its home in a hive, the colony will rarely leave unless the beekeeper moves the bees out of it. Schneider said beekeepers take advantage of this by renting their hives to farmers and fruit growers during the blossoming season.

"They pay as high as $15 for a colony during the blossoming season," he said.

The hives come in layers with the individual comb cells inside. The bees use the bottom layers of the hive to raise their young, and the beekeeper harvests the top boxes for honey. According to Schneider, each hive box holds between 60 and 85 pounds of honey.

"Some people winter their bees with three hive boxes," Schneider said. "I've been wintering with two, and I've had pretty good luck with that. They need about 60 pounds of honey for themselves to last through the winter."

There are several ways to harvest the full honey comb. Schneider dons his veil and white protective suit, lifts the comb cells out of the hive box and brushes the bees off the comb. Then he hands the cell to his daughter, Barbara, who puts it in a closed box.

"THE MODERN way is the blower," he said. "You set the hive on end and blow the bees out. Actually, the blower is more efficient."

Once the comb is out of the hive, Schneider slices the cappings off the honey cells and puts the comb in a centrifugal extractor. As the comb spins around, the honey is drawn out of the cells.

When Schneider first put his hives in Wheeling, the area was country. "Now it's getting built up just like every place else," he said.

If the area becomes too developed, Schneider said he would move his bees, because they might become a nuisance with a lot of people around. However, he said development doesn't bother the bees at all, because they travel as far as five miles to get their nectar.

"They'll find what they need," he said. "In fact, there are people in Chicago who keep bees on their rooftops."

Judo Club To Give A Demonstration

A free demonstration by the Northwest Suburban YMCA Judo Club will begin at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Community Pool in Chamber of Commerce Park.

The Wheeling Park District is sponsoring the demonstration to see if there is enough local interest to add a judo class to the park district's fall program.

Club coach Ernie Hauser and some of the club members will demonstrate various techniques of the sport. If weather is bad, the demonstration will be at the indoor Neptune's Pool adjacent to Wheeling High School.

Amvets Plan Picnic, Cornfest For Sunday

The Buffalo Grove Amvets of Albert Emmerich Memorial Post No. 255 will have their annual installation picnic and cornfest Sunday, Aug. 6.

The picnic, which will begin at 2 p.m., will be on the park grounds directly behind the Wheeling Amvet Post on Milwaukee Avenue in Wheeling.

The Amvets and Amvet auxiliary will install officers for 1972-73.

There will be games and prizes for children and free corn for everyone.

Rain Clouds Had A Silver Lining—Prevented Drought

The silver lining in all those rain clouds over Buffalo Grove this summer is that nature has prevented a possible water shortage in the village.

Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg told the board of trustees at a workshop session Monday night that improvements will have to be made in the Buffalo Grove water system within the next year, however, enough water for a rapidly expanding population.

Basing his recommendation on an $8,000 study of the village's water system conducted by a Chicago engineering firm, Seaberg said three improvements should be completed no later than next summer:

—The expansion of the water reservoir at Well No. 2 from 1/2 million gallons to

1 1/2 million gallons

—The construction of a 12-inch water main along Dundee Road from Golfview Terrace to Crofton Lane

The proposed widening of Dundee Road will determine when this project can be started —The deepening of Well No. 1 because of a decreasing water table there.

SEABERG ALSO recommended the board investigate a method of charging developers to help pay for the water system improvements their projects necessitate.

Currently, developers pay tap-on fees when they apply for building permits, just prior to starting construction. In the case of a developer who is planning a four-year development, for example, this means funds for water system improvements sometimes are not available until the last phase of construction begins.

"Right now the money we have in hand for the work we have to do is 24 months behind the need," Seaberg said.

"We can't phase-build a water system," Trustee Jim Shirley added.

Village Pres Gary Armstrong suggested a meeting of all developers planning to build projects in the village in the near future, "to work out financing that would be equitable for all."

IN OTHER business, the board agreed to accept an easement granted by Levitt & Sons, Inc., to provide a walkway between two lots on Twisted Oak Lane to allow access to Arlington Heights Road

Teachers Urged To Attend Parley On Negotiations

by WANDALYN RICE

Teachers in High School Dist. 211 have been urged to attend a meeting at 7 p.m. Aug. 23 to show their support for the position taken by their bargaining group in salary negotiations with the board of education.

At the same time, the board has sent a letter to the teachers outlining their position on the 1972-73 negotiations, which have been going on since February.

Talks between the Dist. 211 Education Association and the board are currently stalled on whether to include a number of "nonmonetary" issues in the contract.

The teachers will be asked at the meeting whether they believe the association should fight to get the "nonmonetary" issues, including provisions on class size, evaluation procedures and curriculum planning, included in the contract.

The meeting will be in the Palatine Fire Hall, 117 W. Slade, Palatine.

THE MEETING, which will come just days before the scheduled opening of school, will not include a vote to authorize the association to call a teachers' strike, according to Doug Verdonck, association president. "We want to get the feeling of our teachers on the nonmonetary issues," he said.

An association newsletter mailed this week calls on the teachers to attend the meeting if they "care about the quality of education in Dist. 211" and indicates the association bargaining team will be guided by whatever decisions are made at that time.

A letter from Robert Seger, head of the board's negotiating team, also went to teachers in the district this week. In it Seger outlines the board position that it will not put specific guarantees on class size, teacher evaluation or policy-making in the contract. The letter states the board wants to proceed to discuss salaries for next year.

Seger said yesterday the letter was sent because, "Up to this point the teachers have not heard a word from the board of education and we don't think that is good. They have gotten a couple of letters from the association and we think that is a biased view."

NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN the two sides have been stalled for some time on what the teachers are now calling the "contract versus policy" issue. The teachers have asked that a number of guarantees on class size, evaluation and other things be placed in contract language, but the board has refused, saying the items should instead be placed in the board policy manual.

In the association newsletter association officials explain they want the guarantees in the contract because violations would be subject to a district grievance procedure and "the law will enforce a contract but will not enforce board policy."

Seger said the board will not consider placing the guarantees in the contract precisely because it will open the items for grievance. Instead, he said the board is willing to set up faculty-administration committees on any problem to try to work out a solution.

Seger added that he does not believe the board's position will change, even if teachers at the Aug. 22 meeting uphold the association's position. "The board's position is very strong," he said.

The two sides have not begun to discuss possible salary increases for the 1972-73 year, but both sides have presented proposals.

The board has proposed freezing the base pay and paying teachers now in the

ALTHOUGH THE FARE was 10 cents more for a shuttle train as usual. Area businessmen showed little concern over the rate increase, but were displeased with the possibility of service cutbacks by the rail line.

'Ho Hums' Greet C&NW Fare Hike

by DOUG RAY

Everyone knew about the rate hike, but few were concerned. What's a dime to suburban commuters?

Bob Webb, a bespectacled accountant, leaned against a railing awaiting the 8:38 a.m. Chicago and North Western (C&NW) shuttle yesterday. Along with hundreds of suburban commuters, he had paid an extra dime for the Chicago round trip.

"I basically don't object to the rate increase if they provide the same service," he said. "The cost of everything is going up."

Frank Cerza of Rolling Meadows agreed as he sat inside the station bidding time before the train's arrival. He defended the 5 1/2 per cent fare increase which went into effect yesterday.

"If they need the money, then that's the way it is," Cerza said. "Just because they're government regulated is no reason why they can't increase fares."

THE HORDE OF businessmen who daily ride the C&NW showed little distress over the extra ticket costs. They lauded the C&NW service and said they are willing to pay for it.

Richard Morris came to Arlington Heights from New York and says he appreciates the service more than most of his fellow commuters. Chicago has the best rail commutation to and from the suburbs," he contends.

"They're cleaner and run more often than New York's rail network. I hope they can somehow make this line pay for itself."

And Lowell Christy, who has been a regular at the Arlington Heights stop since 1954, "back in the days of steam engines," shrugged his shoulders when asked about the jump in fares. He will stay with the rail line but hopes they "don't overdo a good thing" by continuing to spiral the cost of commuting by rail.

"I certainly won't abandon the train and driver," said Bryan Coughlin of Palatine. "There's nothing you can do about the rates. Nobody likes it but did you ever try to park in the loop?"

COMMUTERS AREN'T disgruntled about the added cost, but they are concerned over the possibility of the railroad cutting its service to the suburbs.

For commuters such as Larry March of Arlington Heights a service cutback would be critical. "I have no choice but to ride the train. My wife needs the car," he said. "The train now is convenient and worth the price."

An elderly man at the Arlington Heights station yesterday morning said he recalls when it cost 55 cents to ride the C&NW to Chicago. "But that was years ago," he added.

Today the price one-way from Arlington Heights is $1.40. Palatine commuters pay $1.50 one-way.

As the train screeched to a halt in front of the waiting commuters, two green-clad conductors opened the doors and escorted passengers up the steps.

"No we haven't heard a word of grumbling about the price," said one of the conductors. "But I'm sure they don't like it either."

Fare Rises 12% Over Two Years

A ride on the Chicago and North Western Ry. from Arlington Heights to Chicago costs 20 cents more than it did two years ago. Palatine's rate is 15 cents higher.

The rate hike represents a 12 1/2 per cent increase by the railway during the past two years.

Last year's increase jumped Arlington Heights rates from $1.20 for the one-way ticket to $1.35. At the same time Palatine's fare went from $1.35 to $1.40.

The rate hike, which went into effect yesterday, increased the Arlington Heights fare another 5 cents and the Palatine fare 10 cents.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Jack Anderson, offering humble apologies, retracted his report that Sen. Thomas Eagleton had been arrested several times for drunken and reckless driving. After a 45-minute meeting with Eagleton, Anderson conceded his report had damaged the Missouri senator's short-lived vice presidential candidacy, and said he could not verify his charges.

Sen. George McGovern is reported considering six prime candidates in his search for a running mate to replace Larry O'Brien, Sargent Shriver, Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey, Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie, Wisconsin Sen. Gaylord Nelson and Idaho Sen. Frank Church. Sen. Edward Kennedy repeated his rejection of the second spot on the Democratic ticket.

In the first legislative test of one of McGovern's principal campaign issues, the Senate defeated his proposal to cut the defense budget by $4 billion. The vote was 59 to 33.

The House refused for the second time in a week to work out a compromise with the Senate over differing bills that would increase the minimum wage.

The House Rules Committee took away from the Judiciary Committee and sent to the House floor a proposed constitutional amendment to ban racial busing. The rules committee declined to take similar action to dislodge from the judiciary panel President Nixon's legislation proposing a one-year moratorium on new court busing orders.

LWV Petition Still 400 Signatures Short

The Palatine League of Women Voters (LWV) has obtained some 1,300 signatures on precedent-setting petitions asking that voters decide in November whether to retain Palatine Township government.

This leaves the league about 400 votes short of the number required to get the question on the Nov. 7 general election ballot, but league members are confident of obtaining the required figure of 1,710 signatures.

The 1,300 signatures have been obtained in canvassing during the past three weeks. An additional three weeks remain until the Aug. 21 deadline of submitting petitions to place an item on the November ballot.

Alice DeViney, an LWV member and leader in the effort to dissolve the township government, said the league is attempting to obtain 2,000 signatures.

She said little difficulty has been encountered in circulating petitions.

Most persons approached by canvassers "will sign with the idea that they would like to see it on the ballot and would like more information, pro or con, by the election date," she said.

"WE'VE FOUND that most people aren't too aware of their relationship with township government and it takes quite a bit of explaining," Mrs. DeViney added.

Palatine Township Supt. Howard I. Olsen has said he opposes the effort to eliminate the township government, but said he did not know if the township board of auditors would take any formal stand on the issue.

League of Women Voters chapters in Maine, Niles and Northfield townships also are challenging township governments, which can be merged or dissolved under provisions of the Illinois constitution.

The main contention of the LWV is that the necessity of township governments has been declining over the years, and many of the township's duties have been taken over by other levels of government.

MRS. DEVINEY said details concerning the handling of functions currently performed by the township would be determined prior to the November election.

She said she was not certain whether the LWV's position would be upheld by voters, but said "it wouldn't do any harm by presenting the issue to the people. I hope we will win, but it will be the voters' choice."

Panel Delays Arlington Crest Zoning Ruling

The Palatine Plan Commission last night postponed making a recommendation on the possible rezoning of the Arlington Crest subdivision because of continued uncertainty over tax assessments.

Arlington Crest residents, who oppose a change in zoning, had maintained at an earlier public hearing that their taxes would go up if their property were rezoned from R-1 to R-2.

Both classifications are for single-family residential districts but specified different lot and width requirements.

Verification of the opinion that taxes would be increased was to be sought from the Cook County assessors office in advance of last night's meeting, but Eveline Stenzel, president of the Arlington Crest Civic Association, said she had been unable to obtain the opinion in writing.

Instead, she played a tape recording of a telephone conversation with an unidentified official in the assessor's office, who made what plan commission members considered conflicting statements on the matter.

Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun also had written Cook County Assessor P.J. Culbertson about the question, but his letter, dated June 28, has not yet been answered.

Plan Commission Chairman Thomas A. Moody Jr. directed Miss Stenzel to make another effort to get a statement in writing for the Sept. 19 meeting. He also said he would request Braun to attend the meeting to clarify the village's position on the rezoning attempt.

The village board had initiated the effort to rezone the subdivision to avoid holding public hearings for variances each time an Arlington Crest property owner wanted to build.

There were nine residents who attended the meeting.

district the increments called for in the present contract. The teachers have proposed a small raise in the base and increases in the distance between steps for experienced teachers.

SEGER SAID HE hopes the two sides will begin discussing the financial issues in the contract because "we're not really that far apart on those issues."

Verdonck said he still hopes the two sides can resolve the issues between them before the beginning of school, but added that he expects teachers to return to classes on time whether or not the contract is settled.

Meetings between the two teams are scheduled for Thursday and Friday nights. Negotiation sessions are closed to the public.

Meyer Announces He Won't Run For State Legislature

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has finally revealed that he will not be an independent candidate for a 3rd district seat in the Illinois State Legislature this fall.

Meyer also said he has not yet decided if he will endorse the regular Republican candidates, Donald L. Totten of Schaumburg and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights, against whom he ran his unsuccessful maverick candidacy in the March primary.

Apparently the decision not to run was made over the past several months, but Meyer did not announce it until last weekend when he conferred with "Republicans from different areas." Meyer refused to reveal the identities of the people he talked with over the weekend, but it is probable that they included the area mayors who backed his unsuccessful primary bid.

"I talked with people over the weekend," he said, "and told them I had taken on too many commitments" to take on a candidacy in November.

IN THE LAST few months, Meyer said, he has "taken on extra personal work with the feeling that I wouldn't be campaigning in September and October. If I had made it in March I wouldn't have taken on that extra work."

In March Meyer finished third in the primary behind Totten and Macdonald. In that contest, his first foray beyond local politics, Meyer pulled about 25 percent of the vote running without the endorsement of Republican township political organizations.

Meyer said he does not know yet if he will endorse Totten or Macdonald.

"I haven't been asked to yet," he said. "And I don't know if I will or won't. I have had no contact with (Republican) township leaders with the exception of Bernie Peterson." Peterson is Republican committee chairman for Palatine Township.

Meyer feels his endorsement will be sought, and expects the matter to come up shortly when he meets with Palatine Township leaders on the subject of dissolving Palatine Township governing agencies.

REGARDING HIS political future, Meyer said he will "take things as they come," as far as any future candidacies are concerned.

"IF YOU CAN drive a car, you can fly a plane," Mrs. Marion Jayne told reporters as she explained the control panel in 1969. She's still flying high with her daughter Patricia after they finished fifth in the 26th annual Powder Puff Derby last month.

Mrs. Jayne, Daughter 5th In Powder Puff Race

The Inverness mother-daughter duo of Marion and Patricia Jayne, 1918 W. Banbury Rd., flew into fifth place in the 26th annual Powder Puff Derby recently.

Flying a Piper Comanche twin-engine plane, Mrs. Jayne and Patricia raced from San Carlos, Calif., to Toms River, N. J., a distance of 2,616 miles, in a three-day period.

Other special awards given to the Jaynes included the highest score by a mother-daughter team, highest score for their class of airplane (285 to 450 horsepower), and fifth place for the Champion spark plug award.

Mimi Stitt, another Inverness resident, flew in the competition with Highland Park resident Pat Friedman. The Stitt-Friedman team placed 75th in a field of 97 planes entered.

Less than one point separated the Jayne duo from fourth place. They were 2,796 points out of first place, with an average speed of more than 214 miles per hour. The Jaynes also finished fifth in the 1971 competition.

FLOOD INSURANCE RATES RECEDE.

If you think you can't afford flood insurance, chances are you're all wet.

Because now the federal government's National Flood Insurance Program - administered by State Farm Fire and Casualty Company in this state - is offering flood and mudslide insurance at sharply lowered rates.

EXAMPLE: A $10,000 policy on a single family home that used to cost $40 per year now costs $25! And rates for other residences, businesses and contents have tumbled too.

For more information, simply contact your insurance agent or broker. He'll quickly tell you whether flood insurance is available in your area and how much it will cost you.

But do it soon. Now that rates have receded, he expects to be flooded.

Navy Housing Plan May Scrap Nike Site Park

The Department of the Navy is planning the construction of 165 units of federal government housing at the Arlington Heights Nike Site, the Herald learned yesterday.

Plans for the site are a revival of a proposal made four years ago by Navy officials, and come at a time when much of the federal site was hoped to be turned into a recreational area by local authorities.

million and would entail construction of 165 four-bedroom units at the northwest corner of the site on 41 of the 51 acres held by the Navy.

Of the 165 units, 145 would be two-story row-type housing with five units to a row. These units would house enlisted men, according to Comdr. Karl Mueller, public works officer at the Glenview Naval Air Station. The remaining 20 units would be duplexes for Navy officers.

MUELLER SAID the Navy hopes to break ground for the project in April, 1973, and have the units ready for occupancy in April, 1974.

The Navy will not have to seek approval of the Arlington Heights Plan Commission or Village Board for the project, although the development will be within the corporate boundaries of Arlington Heights. Federal authority supersedes local controls.

The land to be developed for housing is in a horseshoe shape along Central and New Wilke roads, with the legs of the horseshoe extending east.

Authorization to construct the housing is pending in the U.S. Senate and a vote on the measure is expected Thursday.

The Military Construction Authorization Act approving the housing passed the U.S. House on July 20 by a vote of 371 to 17.

The House Bill authorizing the construction specifies that the average cost of houses in each project not exceed $24,000. This figure includes land acquisition, development and utilities. The bill further states no single unit could exceed $42,000.

DISCLOSURE OF the Navy's plans may have dealt a severe blow to plans to turn 98 acres (including the Navy's 51

Bob Webb, a bespectacled accountant, leaned against a railing awaiting the 8:30 a.m. Chicago and North Western (C&NW) shuttle yesterday. Along with hundreds of suburban commuters, he had paid an extra dime for the Chicago round trip.

"I basically don't object to the rate increase if they provide the same service," he said. "The cost of everything is going up."

Frank Cerza of Rolling Meadows agreed as he sat inside the station bidding time before the train's arrival. He defended the 5 1/2 per cent fare increase which went into effect yesterday.

"If they need the money, then that's the way it is," Cerza said. "Just because they're government regulated is no reason why they can't increase fares."

THE HORDE OF businessmen who daily ride the C&NW showed little distress over the extra ticket costs. They lauded the C&NW service and said they are willing to pay for it.

Richard Morris came to Arlington Heights from New York and says he appreciates the service more than most of his fellow commuters. Chicago has the best rail commutation to and from the suburbs," he contends.

"They're cleaner and run more often than New York's rail network. I hope they can somehow make this line pay for itself."

And Lowell Christy, who has been a regular at the Arlington Heights stop since 1964, "back in the days of steam engines," shrugged his shoulders when asked about the jump in fares. He will stay with the rail line but hopes they "don't overdo a good thing" by continuing to spiral the cost of commuting by rail.

"I certainly won't abandon the train and driver," said Bryan Coughlin of Palatine. "There's nothing you can do about the rates. Nobody likes it but did you ever try to park in the loop?"

COMMUTERS AREN'T disgruntled about the added cost, but they are concerned over the possibility of the railroad cutting its service to the suburbs.

For commuters such as Larry March of Arlington Heights a service cutback would be critical. "I have no choice but to ride the train. My wife needs the car," he said. "The train now is convenient and worth the price."

An elderly man at the Arlington Heights station yesterday morning said he recalls when it cost 55 cents to ride the C&NW to Chicago. "But that was years ago," he added.

Today the price one-way from Arlington Heights is $1.40. Palatine commuters pay $1.50 one-way.

As the train screeched to a halt in front of the waiting commuters, two green-clad conductors opened the doors and escorted passengers up the steps.

"No we haven't heard a word of grumbling about the price," said one of the conductors. "But I'm sure they don't like it either."

Fare Rises 12% Over Two Years

A ride on the Chicago and North Western Ry. from Arlington Heights to Chicago costs 20 cents more than it did two years ago. Palatine's rate is 15 cents higher.

The rate hike represents a 12 1/2 per cent increase by the railway during the past two years.

Last year's increase jumped Arlington Heights rates from $1.20 for the one-way ticket to $1.35. At the same time Palatine's fare went from $1.35 to $1.40.

The rate hike, which went into effect yesterday, increased the Arlington Heights fare another 5 cents and the Palatine fare 10 cents.

Jack Anderson, offering humble apologies, retracted his report that Sen. Thomas Eagleton had been arrested several times for drunken and reckless driving. After a 45-minute meeting with Eagleton, Anderson conceded his report had damaged the Missouri senator's short-lived vice presidential candidacy, and said he could not verify his charges.

Sen. George McGovern is reported considering six prime candidates in his search for a running mate to replace Larry O'Brien, Sargent Shriver, Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey, Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie, Wisconsin Sen. Gaylord Nelson and Idaho Sen. Frank Church. Sen. Edward Kennedy repeated his rejection of the second spot on the Democratic ticket.

In the first legislative test of one of McGovern's principal campaign issues, the Senate defeated his proposal to cut the defense budget by $4 billion. The vote was 59 to 33.

The House refused for the second time in a week to work out a compromise with the Senate over differing bills that would increase the minimum wage.

The House Rules Committee took away from the Judiciary Committee and sent to the House floor a proposed constitutional amendment to ban racial busing. The rules committee declined to take similar action to dialogue from the judiciary panel President Nixon's legislation proposing a one-year moratorium on new court busing orders.

A Cook County Circuit Court judge issued an injunction forbidding the Chicago challenge delegation to the Democratic National Convention from taking part in a party meeting to select the Democratic National Committee members from Illinois.

Meyer Reveals He Will Not Run For State Seat

by KEN KOZAK

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has finally revealed that he will not be an independent candidate for a 3rd district seat in the Illinois State Legislature this fall.

Meyer also said he has not yet decided if he will endorse the regular Republican candidates, Donald L. Totten of Schaumburg and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights, against whom he ran his unsuccessful maverick candidacy in the March primary.

Apparently the decision not to run was made over the past several months, but Meyer did not announce it until last weekend when he conferred with "Republicans from different areas." Meyer refused to reveal the identities of the people he talked with over the weekend, but it is probable that they included the area mayors who backed his unsuccessful primary bid.

"I talked with people over the weekend," he said, "and told them I had taken on too many commitments" to take on a candidacy in November.

IN THE LAST few months, Meyer said, he has "taken on extra personal work with the feeling that I wouldn't be campaigning in September and October. If I had made it in March I wouldn't have taken on that extra work."

In March Meyer finished third in the primary behind Totten and Macdonald. In that contest, his first foray beyond local politics, Meyer pulled about 25 percent of the vote running without the endorsement of Republican township political organizations.

Meyer said he does not know yet if he will endorse Totten or Macdonald.

"I haven't been asked to yet," he said, "and I don't know if I will or won't. I have had no contact with (Republican) township leaders with the exception of Bernie Peterson." Peterson is Republican committeeman for Palatine Township.

Meyer feels his endorsement will be sought, and expects the matter to come up shortly when he meets with Palatine Township leaders on the subject of dissolving Palatine Township governing agencies.

REGARDING HIS political future, Meyer said he will "take things as they come," as far as any future candidacies are concerned.

He said he would measure any future political move "by evaluating my chances and what I can do for the people around me, whether or not I have organizational support."

Meyer said he entered the last primary because there were no incumbents and because he wanted to make party leaders aware of the fact that local mayors "want to be consulted as to who is running."

He feels the party has ignored local officials too much in past slatemaking and his candidacy in the primary served as a warning to the organization that they ought to give more thought to the opinions of city and village leaders when candidates are picked.

THEY AREN'T STREET gang members, but Tom Gray, right, and Ken Schreiner will do their best to look the part Friday and Saturday in the Hersey High School production of "West Side Story." Curtain time will be 8 p.m. both days. Students from Hersey, Wheeling, Elk Grove and Arlington high schools will be in the cast along with three actors from the Des Plaines Theater Guild. Tickets are $2 and may be purchased by calling the school.

Plan Tent Circus At Prospect Plaza

The "John Strong 1868 Tent Circus" will open at the Mount Prospect Plaza Friday with a special showing for about 1,350 children from Chicago's ghettos.

The children will be chaperoned by member of the Chicago Commission for Urban Opportunities (CCUO), a social agency funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO). The CCUO is conducting the trip in cooperation with the Chicago Jaycees, who are sponsoring the circus in conjunction with the Mount Prospect Jaycees.

Following the special showing at 2 p.m., the circus will hold performances for the public Friday through Tuesday. The tent will be set up on the plaza parking lot, at Rand and Central Roads.

The Strong circus, headed by Jim Hargrove, originated in San Diego, Calif. with the city's centennial celebration in 1960. Acts of the one-ring show are patterned after the circuses of the 1860s and 1870s.

Tickets are $2.50 per adult and $1.50 per child. Proceeds will go to both the Chicago and local Jaycees. Performances are Friday at 6 and 8 p.m.; Saturday, at 1 p.m., 4 p.m. and 7 p.m.; Sunday, at 1 p.m. and 4 p.m.; Monday at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. and Tuesday at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m.

The Mount Prospect Plaza Merchants Association are giving free tickets with a $2.50 purchase.

Teichert Raps Forced Housing Idea

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert yesterday said he will resist any efforts to forcibly place low-income housing in the village.

In particular, he was referring to the recent efforts by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) to obtain a court order requiring development of low-income housing in the suburbs.

"We resent any other body telling us how we are to operate within our boundaries unless somebody can prove to me the way we operate is incompatible with the community or the rights that citizens have," Teichert said. "Housing does not fall in that area."

Teichert said he essentially agrees with statements recently issued by Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase in which Blase called for the suburbs to resist forced low-income housing.

HOWEVER, Teichert did not agree with Blase that each community should hold a referendum on the subject, defeat it and thereby assure, through the courts, that low-income housing be excluded.

"I don't want any kind of referendum and I don't want people reacting emotionally," Teichert said. "If a referendum were to be held, Teichert said he would want 'two to three months of debate and campaigning on the issue first.'"

A proponent of the gradual approach to solving the low-income housing need, Teichert said that he can see a forced plan "throwing everything accomplished down the drain."

Basically, he said, people resent being told what they should do by outsiders. "We've been working on housing for 70 years in Mount Prospect," he said, "but low-income housing has only been an issue for a few years. You can't expect results overnight."

He used senior citizen housing efforts as an example of how low-income housing could be and would be accomplished in Mount Prospect.

THE VILLAGE BOARD recently passed a resolution that calls for the seeking of federal funds to build 250 units of low-income housing for the elderly here.

There was no public outcry against, he said, because the community had taken time to study the issue and learn the facts.

He also said that the Housing Coalition of the Leadership Council For Metropolitan Open Communities, of which he is a member, is one of the correct approaches to solving the low-income housing needs of the Chicago metropolitan area.

"I don't want to give up our local control to a federal judge or any judge," Teichert said. He was referring to Judge Richard Austin's recent order that 60,000 units of such housing be placed in the suburban area.

Hunt Driver Whose Auto Struck Three Bicyclists

Illinois State Police are looking for the driver of a white car which struck three Des Plaines youths as they were riding bicycles yesterday on Algonquin Road in unincorporated Mount Prospect.

One of the three youths, Michael Powell, 13, of 1016 Hewitt, Des Plaines, was admitted to Northwest Community Hospital with a possible concussion. The other two, brothers Raymond, 11, and Edward Tynczuk, 14, of 375 Florian Dr., were treated and released.

Patrolman R. Stewart said a fourth boy saw the accident and believed the vehicle involved was a white Chevrolet Nova, possibly a 1963 or 1964 model. No license plate number was remembered by the boy.

The accident took place about 10 a.m. on Algonquin Road, near Linneman Road.

Injured When Hit By Rider Lawn Mower

An Arlington Heights man was injured shortly before 9 a.m. Monday when he was run over by a rider lawnmower at the Old Orchard Country Club in Mount Prospect.

Kirk Hurto, 20, of 126 S. Reuter, was treated at Northwest Community Hospital for leg and arm cuts.

Hurto, who was riding on the mower, was leaning back to see how well the driver, Bill Cochran, 21 S. Dwyer, Arlington Heights, was cutting the grass, when he fell off.

City Upgrades Master Plan For Future Development

For the first time in several years, Rolling Meadows is involved in a detailed upgrading of the city's master plan for future development of unincorporated areas.

A master plan is basically a suggestion for the optimum zoning of unincorporated areas that might in the future be brought within the corporate limits of the city.

All cities and villages in Cook County are required to file a master plan each year with the county clerk's office.

IN RECENT year Rolling Meadows has merely refined previous master plans, with a minimum of revision, according to Mayor Roland Meyer.

But this year "the (city) council and plan commission thought it would be wise to take a long hard look at the unincorporated areas," he said.

A master plan gives a city protection in the sense that it tries to outline what the city feels would be the best possible usage for various pieces of unincorporated land.

Meyer explained that if, for example, the city's plan shows that a certain parcel of land should be zoned commercial in the best interest of the city, a developer would have a more difficult time getting multi-family zoning, for example, from the county.

MOST OF THE city's efforts are being concentrated on planning future use of the area west and northwest of Rolling Meadows. Part of that land is also being included in the master plan for the Village of Palatine, Meyer said.

Meyer said he will meet with Palatine Mayor Jack Moodie in attempt to avoid duplication of master plans for that area. He said there will be "no surprises" in the new master plan.

The city plan commission will meet tonight and will hear reports on the status of the work on the master plan.

The commission also will hear representatives from the Rolling Meadows Park District who will ask that park planning be included on any plan for future annexations and development west of the city.

Steve Person, parks superintendent, said the district will ask plan commissioners to "take into consideration park developments as the community grows west of Rte. 53, and come up with some kind of agreement" on future park planning.

Teachers Urged To Attend

by WANDALYN RICE

Teachers in High School Dist. 211 have been urged to attend a meeting at 7 p.m. Aug. 22 to show their support for the position taken by their bargaining group in salary negotiations with the board of education.

At the same time, the board has sent a letter to the teachers outlining their position on the 1972-73 negotiations, which have been going on since February.

Talks between the Dist. 211 Education Association and the board are currently stalled on whether to include a number of "nonmonetary" issues in the contract.

The teachers will be asked at the meeting whether they believe the association should fight to get the "nonmonetary" issues, including provisions on class size, evaluation procedures and curriculum planning, included in the contract.

The meeting will be in the Palatine Fire Hall, 117 W. Slade, Palatine.

THE MEETING, which will come just days before the scheduled opening of school, will not include a vote to authorize the association to call a teachers' strike, according to Doug Verdonck, association president. "We want to get the feeling of our teachers on the nonmonetary issues," he said.

An association newsletter mailed this week calls on the teachers to attend the meeting if they "care about the quality of education in Dist. 211" and indicates the association bargaining team will be guided by whatever decisions are made at that time.

A letter from Robert Seger, head of the board's negotiating team, also went to teachers in the district this week. In it Seger outlines the board position that it will not put specific guarantees on class size, teacher evaluation or policy-making in the contract. The letter states the board wants to proceed to discuss salaries for next year.

Seger said yesterday the letter was sent because, "Up to this point the teachers have not heard a word from the board of education and we don't think that is good. They have gotten a couple of letters from the association and we think that is a biased view."

NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN the two sides have been stalled for some time on what the teachers are now calling the "contract versus policy" issue. The teachers have asked that a number of guarantees on class size, evaluation and other things be placed in contract language, but the board has refused, saying the items should instead be placed in the board policy manual.

In the association newsletter association officials explain they want the guarantees in the contract because violations would be subject to a district grievance procedure and "the law will enforce a contract but will not enforce board policy."

Seger said the board will not consider placing the guarantees in the contract precisely because it will open the items for grievance. Instead, he said the board is willing to set up faculty-administration committees on any problem to try to work out a solution.

Seger added that he does not believe the board's position will change, even if teachers at the Aug. 22 meeting uphold the association's position. "The board's position is very strong," he said.

The two sides have not begun to discuss possible salary increases for the 1972-73 year, but both sides have presented proposals.

The board has proposed freezing the base pay and paying teachers now in the district the increments called for in the present contract. The teachers have proposed a small raise in the base and increases in the distance between steps for experienced teachers.

Youth Bitten; Police Search For Stray Dog

Cook County Sheriff's Police are seeking a brown and black German Shepherd that bit a Buffalo Grove youth Monday afternoon.

Police said the dog must be found soon or the youth, Lonny Rueckert, 450 Sussex, will have to undergo a series of painful rabies shots.

Rueckert was bitten on the right arm about 12:45 p.m. Monday. The incident occurred two blocks north of Hintz Road off of Schoenbeck Road, Palatine said.

The dog was described as medium size, with a black back and brown sides. The dog was not believed to be wearing any collar or tags.

Sheriff's police and men from the Department of Rabies Control have been searching the area since the reported injury, but have not found the animal. One policeman said the dog is thought to be a stray, and may be dangerous to other persons.

Anyone with information about the dog, or anyone who has seen it in the area, should phone the Cook County Sheriff's Police Communication Center, 458-1000.

Even though Rueckert may begin the shots today, the series can be stopped if the dog is located.

Carnival To Fight Muscular Dystrophy

For the third year, nine-year-old John Knox of Rolling Meadows, and his family, will hold a neighborhood carnival against muscular dystrophy.

The carnival will be held Aug. 5, beginning at 1 p.m., at the Knox home, 4405 Magnolia Dr., Rolling Meadows.

The backyard carnival will try to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America.

Ecology Day Saturday

The 11th monthly ecology day in Rolling Meadows will be held this Saturday, Aug. 5.

The hours will be from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the city garage, 3200 Central Rd. Residents can bring glass, cans and paper for recycling.

Boosters Meet Aug. 9

The Rolling Meadows High School Booster Club will meet Aug. 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school conference room.

Plans for registration day will be discussed. All interested parents are invited to join the new club.

Jaycees' Carnival

Set To Open Today

The Rolling Meadows Jaycees' annual summer carnival opens today, and will run through Sunday evening.

The rides and attractions are located in the parking lot of the Topps Discount store at Kirchhoff Road and Meadow Drive.

The carnival opens today at 6 p.m. and will run today, tomorrow and Friday from 6 to 11 p.m. Hours Saturday and Sunday are 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. acres) of the 137 acre Nike site into a regional park.

Mayors and park district officials from Palatine, Elk Grove, Wheeling and Schaumburg townships had met with Sen. Charles Percy in January and received his endorsement of the regional park concept.

"We won't have a regional park if this goes through," said Thomas Thornton, Arlington Heights director of parks and recreation. "That (the Navy property) would have been the beginning — the part we would get first, since nothing is out there now."

The development also will affect Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15. Projected population of the development is 600, of which 110 would be elementary school-age children. All of these children would attend Dist. 15 schools.

JOSEPH KISZKA, deputy superintendent of Dist. 15, said he has been in contact with Mueller to discuss the impact the project will have on Dist. 15. No commitment has been made by the Navy for a financial or land contribution to the district. Kiszka said he plans to look into Public Laws 874 and 815 providing funds and land to federally impacted school districts.

Following final approval of the Military Construction Authorization Act, the 1973 Military Construction Appropriations Act will be sent to the appropriations committee of the house and senate. This act appropriates the funds for the authorized military construction projects.

Navy Housing Plan Dates To 1965

Plans for Navy dependent housing on sections of the Arlington Heights Nike site are not new.

The idea of Navy housing in the area dates back to 1946 when the Navy went to the Army and asked for land on the site to build houses.

When the first disclosures of the proposed government housing reached the community in the fall of 1965, reaction was heavily against the plan.

In Arlington Heights, substantial opposition to the plan came from residents who viewed the approach of government housing for Navy families as a threat to local property values.

The Arlington Heights Village Board and Arlington Heights Park District Board went on record as opposing the proposed Naval development. They were joined in their opposition by several local civic groups.

LEADING THE opposition was Thomas Thornton, superintendent of parks and recreation in Arlington Heights, who said the land could better be used for recreational purposes.

Since 1964 the park district had been eyeing the Nike site with the hope of acquiring the land and constructing a community golf course or large recreation area.

In December of 1964 park district officials were led to believe the Army would declare 100 acres surplus and offer them for sale at 50 per cent of the appraised value.

Intent on acquiring the land, the park district board requested authorization to issue $255,000 in bonds for acquisition of property in the January 15, 1965 referendum.

Junior College Dist. 361, now Harper College Dist. 512, also expressed an interest in the property in 1965 but later abandoned its interest.

Since military branches have first choice on federal land declared surplus, the Navy's request preempted requests from both the park district and junior college.

Initial Navy plans called for a $3 million townhouse and duplex housing project with 150 units. In March of 1968 the Navy nearly doubled its plans and announced its intent to construct 300 units.

THE PUBLIC OUTCRY mounted but the Navy refused to abandon its plans. In August of 1968 it appeared the project might be discarded and the Glenview Naval Air Station closed after a Navy attack plane crashed into suburban Glenview, killing a 13-year old girl.

Despite demands from Glenview residents that the base be closed, the Navy announced the Glenview station was a vital part of the Navy Air Reserve Program and would remain open.

During this entire period Elk Grove Dist. 59 and Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 were involved in a debate over who would educate the children from the proposed project, which falls within the boundaries of both districts.

Offers and counter offers were made by both districts to educate all the children from the development and attempts were made to change the district boundaries. After several meetings where no agreement could be reached it was decided the development would remain divided between the two districts.

A typhoon in December of 1968 on the Pacific Island of Guam finally succeeded in halting the project. Money appropriated for the Arlington Heights project was instead used to meet emergency Naving housing needs on Guam

FLOOD INSURANCE RATES RECEDE.

If you think you can't afford flood insurance, chances are you're all wet.

Because now the federal government's National Flood Insurance Program—administered by State Farm Fire and Casualty Company in this state—is offering flood and mudslide insurance at sharply lowered rates.

EXAMPLE: A $10,000 policy on a single family home that used to cost $40 per year now costs $25! And rates for other residences, businesses and contents have tumbled too.

For more information, simply contact your insurance agent or broker. He'll quickly tell you whether flood insurance is available in your area and how much it will cost you.

But do it soon. Now that rates have receded, he expects to be flooded.

Meyer Reveals He Will Not Run For State Seat

by KEN KOZAK

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has finally revealed that he will not be an independent candidate for a 3rd district seat in the Illinois State Legislature this fall.

Meyer also said he has not yet decided if he will endorse the regular Republican candidates, Donald L. Totten of Schaumburg and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights, against whom he ran his unsuccessful maverick campaign in the March primary.

Apparently the decision not to run was made over the past several months, but Meyer did not announce it until last weekend when he conferred with "Republicans from different areas." Meyer refused to reveal the identities of the people he talked with over the weekend, but it is probable that they included the area mayors who backed his unsuccessful primary bid.

"I talked with people over the weekend," he said, "and told them I had taken on too many commitments" to take on a candidacy in November.

IN THE LAST few months, Meyer said, he has "taken on extra personal work with the feeling that I wouldn't be campaigning in September and October. If I had made it in March I wouldn't have taken on that extra work."

In March Meyer finished third in the primary behind Totten and Macdonald. In that contest, his first foray beyond local politics, Meyer pulled about 25 per cent of the vote running without the endorsement of Republican township political organizations.

Meyer said he does not know yet if he will endorse Totten or Macdonald.

"I haven't been asked to yet," he said, "and I don't know if I will or won't. I have had no contact with (Republican) township leaders with the exception of Bernie Peterson." Peterson is Republican committeeman for Palatine Township.

Meyer feels his endorsement will be sought, and expects the matter to come up shortly when he meets with Palatine Township leaders on the subject of dissolving Palatine Township governing agencies.

REGARDING HIS political future, Meyer said he will "take things as they come," as far as any future candidacies are concerned.

He said he would measure any future political move "by evaluating my chances and what I can do for the people around me, whether or not I have organizational support."

Meyer said he entered the last primary because there were no incumbents and because he wanted to make party leaders aware of the fact that local mayors "want to be consulted as to who is running."

He feels the party has ignored local officials too much in past slatemaking and his candidacy in the primary served as a warning to the organization that they ought to give more thought to the opinions of city and village leaders when candidates are picked.

Teichert Raps Forced Housing Idea

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert yesterday said he will resist any efforts to forcibly place low-income housing in the village.

In particular, he was referring to the recent efforts by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) to obtain a court order requiring development of low-income housing in the suburbs.

"We resent any other body telling us how we are to operate within our boundaries unless somebody can prove to me the way we operate is incompatible with the community or the rights that citizens have," Teichert said. "Housing does not fall in that area."

Teichert said he essentially agrees with statements recently issued by Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase in which Blase called for the suburbs to resist forced low-income housing.

HOWEVER, Teichert did not agree with Blase that each community should hold a referendum on the subject, defeat it and thereby insure, through the courts, that low-income housing be excluded.

"I don't want any kind of referendum and I don't want people reacting emotionally," Teichert said. "If a referendum were to be held, Teichert said he would want 'two to three months of debate and campaigning on the issue first.'"

A proponent of the gradual approach to solving the low-income housing need, Teichert said that he can see a forced plan throwing "everything accomplished down the drain."

Basically, he said, people resent being told what they should do by outsiders. "We've been working on housing for 70 years in Mount Prospect," he said, "but low-income housing has only been an issue for a few years. You can't expect results overnight."

He used senior citizen housing efforts as an example of how low-income housing could be and would be accomplished in Mount Prospect.

THE VILLAGE BOARD recently passed a resolution that calls for the seeking of federal funds to build 250 units of low-income housing for the elderly here.

There was no public outcry against, he said, because the community had taken time to study the issue and learn the facts.

He also said that the Housing Coalition of the Leadership Council for Metropolitan Open Communities, of which he is a member, is one of the correct approaches to solving the low-income housing needs of the Chicago metropolitan area.

"I don't want to give up our local control to a federal judge or any judge," Teichert said. He was referring to Judge Richard Austin's recent order that 60,000 units of such housing be placed in the suburban area.

Hunt Driver Whose Auto Struck Three Bicyclists

Illinois State Police are looking for the driver of a white car which struck three Des Plaines youths as they were riding bicycles yesterday on Algonquin Road in unincorporated Mount Prospect.

One of the three youths, Michael Powell, 13, of 1016 Hewitt, Des Plaines, was admitted to Northwest Community Hospital with a possible concussion. The other two, brothers Raymond, 11, and Edward Tynczuk, 14, of 375 Florian Dr., were treated and released.

Patrolman R. Stewart said a fourth boy saw the accident and believed the vehicle involved was a white Chevrolet Nova, possibly a 1963 or 1964 model. No license plate number was remembered by the boy.

The accident took place about 10 a.m. on Algonquin Road, near Linneman Road.

Injured When Hit By Rider Lawn Mower

An Arlington Heights man was injured shortly before 9 a.m. Monday when he was run over by a rider lawn mower at the Old Orchard Country Club in Mount Prospect.

Kirk Hurto, 20, of 126 S. Reuter, was treated at Northwest Community Hospital for leg and arm cuts.

Plan Tent Circus At Prospect Plaza

The "John Strong 1880 Tent Circus" will open at the Mount Prospect Plaza Friday with a special showing for about 1,350 children from Chicago's ghettos.

The children will be chaperoned by member of the Chicago Commission for Urban Opportunities (CCUO), a social agency funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO). The CCUO is conducting the trip in cooperation with the Chicago Jaycees, who are sponsoring the circus in conjunction with the Mount Prospect Jaycees.

Following the special showing at 2 p.m., the circus will hold performances for the public Friday through Tuesday. The tent will be set up on the plaza parking lot, at Rand and Central Roads.

The Strong circus, headed by Jim Hargrove, originated in San Diego, Calif. with the city's centennial celebration in 1968. Acts of the one-ring show are patterned after the circuses of the 1880s and 1970s.

Tickets are $2.50 per adult and $1.50 per child. Proceeds will go to both the Chicago and local Jaycees. Performances are Friday at 6 and 8 p.m.; Saturday, at 1 p.m., 4 p.m. and 7 p.m.; Sunday, at 1 p.m. and 4 p.m.; Monday at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. and Tuesday at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m.

The Mount Prospect Plaza Merchants Association are giving free tickets with a $2.50 purchase.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Jack Anderson, offering humble apologies, retracted his report that Sen. Thomas Eagleton had been arrested several times for drunken and reckless driving. After a 45-minute meeting with Eagleton, Anderson conceded his report had damaged the Missouri senator's short-lived vice presidential candidacy, and said he could not verify his charges.

Sen. George McGovern is reported considering six prime candidates in his search for a running mate to replace Eagleton. Insiders say the list includes Larry O'Brien, Sargent Shriver, Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey, Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie, Wisconsin Sen. Gaylord Nelson and Idaho Sen. Frank Church. Sen. Edward Kennedy repeated his rejection of the second spot on the Democratic ticket.

In the first legislative test of one of McGovern's principal campaign issues, the Senate defeated his proposal to cut the defense budget by $4 billion. The vote was 59 to 33.

The House refused for the second time in a week to work out a compromise with the Senate over differing bills that would increase the minimum wage.

The House Rules Committee took away from the Judiciary Committee and sent to the House floor a proposed constitutional amendment to ban racial busing. The rules committee declined to take similar action to dislodge from the Judiciary panel President Nixon's legislation proposing a one-year moratorium on Supreme Court appointing orders.

The State

A Cook County Circuit Court judge issued an injunction forbidding the Chicago challenge delegation to the Democratic National Convention from taking part in a party meeting to select the Democratic National Committee members from Illinois.

President Nixon's special peace envoy, Henry Kissinger, conferred privately in Paris for the 15th time with North Vietnamese negotiators, the White House announced. Both U.S. and North Vietnamese peace delegations kept a complete silence about the session.

Boris Spassky accepted challenger Bobby Fischer's offer of a draw after 29 moves in the ninth game of their world championship chess match, enabling the American to maintain his two-point advantage in the contest.

The War

U.S. Navy planes bombed a shipyard in North Vietnam's major port city of Haiphong for the first time, and the allied Bien Hoa airbase outside Saigon received its heaviest Communist shelling of the war. The base houses 2,250 Americans.

ALTHOUGH THE FARE was 10 cents more for a shuttle train as usual, Area businessmen showed little concern over the rate increase, but were displeased with the possibility of service cutbacks by the rail line.

'Ho Hums' Greet C&NW Fare Hike

by DOUG RAY

Everyone knew about the rate hike, but few were concerned. What's a dime to suburban commuters?

Bob Webb, a bespectacled accountant, leaned against a railing awaiting the 8:30 a.m. Chicago and North Western (C&NW) shuttle yesterday. Along with hundreds of suburban commuters, he had paid an extra dime for the Chicago round trip.

"I basically don't object to the rate increase if they provide the same service," he said. "The cost of everything is going up."

Frank Cerza of Rolling Meadows agreed as he sat inside the station bidding time before the train's arrival. He defended the 5 1/4 per cent fare increase which went into effect yesterday.

"If they need the money, then that's the way it is," Cerza said. "Just because they're government regulated is no reason why they can't increase fares."

THE HORDE of businessmen who daily ride the C&NW showed little distress over the extra ticket costs. They lauded the C&NW service and said they are willing to pay for it.

Richard Morris came to Arlington Heights from New York and says he appreciates the service more than most of his fellow commuters. Chicago has the best rail commutation to and from the suburbs," he contends.

"They're cleaner and run more often than New York's rail network. I hope they can somehow make this line pay for itself."

And Lowell Christy, who has been a regular at the Arlington Heights stop since 1954, "back in the days of steam engines," shrugged his shoulders when asked about the jump in fares. He will stay with the rail line but hopes they "don't overdo a good thing" by continuing to spiral the cost of commuting by rail.

"I certainly won't abandon the train and driver," said Bryan Coughlin of Palatine. "There's nothing you can do about the rates. Nobody likes it but did you ever try to park in the loop?"

COMMUTERS AREN'T disgruntled about the added cost, but they are concerned over the possibility of the railroad cutting it's service to the suburbs.

For commuters such as Larry March of Arlington Heights a service cutback would be critical. "I have no choice but to ride the train. My wife needs the car," he said. "The train now is convenient and worth the price."

An elderly man at the morning Arlington Heights station yesterday said he recalls when it cost 55 cents to ride the C&NW to Chicago. "But that was years ago," he added.

Today the price one-way from Arlington Heights is $1.40. Palatine commuters pay $1.50 one-way.

As the train screeched to a halt in front of the waiting commuters, two green-clad conductors opened the doors and escorted passengers up the steps.

"No we haven't heard a word of grumbling about the price," said one of the conductors. "But I'm sure they don't like it either."

Navy Housing For Nike Site

The Department of the Navy is planning the construction of 165 units of federal government housing at the Arlington Heights Nike Site, the Herald learned yesterday.

Plans for the site are a revival of a proposal made four years ago by Navy officials, and come at a time when much of the federal site was hoped to be turned into a recreational area by local authorities.

The proposed housing at the Arlington Heights Nike Site would be for Navy personnel at the Glenview Naval Air Station.

The project would cost an estimated $4 million and would entail construction of 165 four-bedroom units at the northwest corner of the site on 41 of the 51 acres held by the Navy.

Of the 165 units, 145 would be two-story row-type housing with five units to a row. These units would house enlisted men, according to Comdr Karl Mueller, public works officer at the Glenview Naval Air Station. The remaining 20 units would be duplexes for Navy officers.

MUELLER SAID the Navy hopes to break ground for the project in April, 1973, and have the units ready for occupancy in April, 1974.

The Navy will not have to seek approval of the Arlington Heights Plan Commission or Village Board for the project, although the development will be within the corporate boundaries of Arlington Heights. Federal authority supersedes local controls.

The land to be developed for housing is in a horseshoe shape along Central and New Wilke roads, with the legs of the horseshoe extending east.

Authorization to construct the housing is pending in the U.S. Senate and a vote on the measure is expected Thursday.

The Military Construction Authorization Act approving the housing passed the U.S. House on July 20 by a vote of 371 to 17.

The House Bill authorizing the construction specifies that the average cost of houses in each project not exceed $24,000. This figure includes land acquisition, development and utilities. The bill further states no single unit could exceed $42,000.

DISCLOSURE OF the Navy's plans may have dealt a severe blow to plans to turn 98 acres (including the Navy's 51 acres) of the 137 acre Nike site into a regional park.

Mayors and park district officials from Palatine, Elk Grove, Wheeling and Schaumburg townships had met with Sen. Charles Percy in January and received his endorsement of the regional park concept.

"We won't have a regional park if this goes through," said Thomas Thornton, Arlington Heights director of parks and recreation. "That's (the Navy property) would have been the beginning — the part we would get first, since nothing is out there now."

The development also will affect Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15. Projected population of the development is 600, of which 110 would be elementary school-age children. All of these children would attend Dist. 15 schools.

JOSEPH KISZKA, deputy superintendent of Dist. 15, said he has been in contact with Mueller to discuss the impact the project will have on Dist. 15. No commitment has been made by the Navy for a financial or land contribution to the district. Kiszka said he plans to look into Public Laws 674 and 815 providing funds and land to federally impacted school districts.

Following final approval of the Military Construction Authorization Act, the 1973 Military Construction Appropriations Act will be sent to the appropriations committee of the house and senate. This act appropriates the funds for the authorized military construction projects.

In 1968, Congress appropriated funds for 200 Navy housing units on the Arlington Heights Nike Site. A typhoon on the Pacific Island of Guam necessitated the emergency transfer of funds for reconstruction of Navy housing on Guam, and forestalled the Arlington Heights program.

est in the property in 1965 but later abandoned its interest.

Since military branches have first choice on federal land declared surplus, the Navy's request preempted requests from both the park district and junior college.

Initial Navy plans called for a $3 million townhouse and duplex housing project with 150 units. In March of 1968 the Navy nearly doubled its plans and announced its intent to construct 250 units.

THE PUBLIC OUTCRY mounted but the Navy refused to abandon its plans. In August of 1968 it appeared the project might be discarded and the Glenview Naval Air Station closed after a Navy attack plane crashed into suburban Glenview, killing a 13-year old girl.

Despite demands from Glenview residents that the base be closed, the Navy announced the Glenview station was a vital part of the Navy Air Reserve Program and would remain open.

During this entire period Elk Grove Dist. 59 and Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 were involved in a debate, over who would educate the children from the proposed project, which falls within the boundaries of both districts.

Offers and counter offers were made by both districts to educate all the children from the development and attempts were made to change the district boundaries. After several meetings where no agreement could be reached it was decided the development would remain divided between the two districts.

A typhoon in December of 1968 on the Pacific Island of Guam finally succeeded in halting the project. Money appropriated for the Arlington Heights project was instead used to meet emergency Naving housing needs on Guam.

From The Library

by LAURIE ROSSI

Children participating in the Mount Prospect Public Library's summer reading program have until Aug. 26 to read and check in their books. Those who haven't joined yet must do so by July 31. Participants are reminded that they should bring their books when reporting on them. So a good time to report on a book is, naturally, just before they are turned in at the desk.

If you're a parent of a participant in the lower grades, you might want to make some helpful suggestions. The Caldecott Award books are a good starting point. The Caldecott Award is given every year to the best picture book for children published the previous year.

PROBABLY ONE of the most enjoyable "A Story, a Child," the 1971 winner. The woodcut prints were done in bright blue, green, pink, yellow, purple, and brown. They illustrate the African tale of how Ananse, the spider man, got stories from the sky god for children to enjoy on Earth.

"Baboushka and the Three Kings" is a Russian folk tale, done in four colors, explaining why Russian children wait for Baboushka at Christmastime like American children wait for Santa Claus.

A fable from India cut in wood is the subject of "Once a Mouse," the 1962 winner and story of a beggar who changed a mouse to a tiger to get him out of danger, only to be doublecrossed by the thankless tiger.

If you want to expose your children to Chaucer early, you can with "Canterbury and the Fox," an adaptation from the "Canterbury Tales."

MY FAVORITE Caldecott winner of those I've seen so far is "Always Room for One More," which won in 1966. The illustrator, Nonny Hogrogian, won again this year for "One Snow Day." "Always Room for One More" is done in cross-hatching with purple pastel. The illustrations are extremely effective and quite different from anything I've ever seen.

The story is an old Scottish nursery tale about a man who always welcomed anyone into his house, until it finally collapsed from too many guests. Hogrogian's 1972 winner is done in a completely different style. It is a cumulative Armenian folk tale about a fox who lost his tail and the things he had to do to get it back.

There are three Caldecott winners about snow: "White Snow, Bright Snow," "The Big Snow," and "The Snowy Day."

THE FOURTH BOOK ever to receive the Caldecott Award, which was established in 1938, was "They Were Strong and Good," written and illustrated by Robert Lawson. It is a clever story of his ancestors and the heritage they left him and us. The first winner was "Animals of the Bible." The text was selected from the King James version of the Bible, and the illustrations picture Bible animals corresponding to the text.

Two of my favorites for their story are "Madeline's Rescue," and "Many Moons." "Madeline's Rescue" is the story of a French orphan in Paris who fell into the River Seine and was rescued by a dog. "Many Moons," by James Thurber, is about a princess who wanted the moon and how her father granted her wish by not really giving it to her.

These are some of the books considered by authorities to be the best in picture books for children since 1938.

During the summer the Mount Prospect library is open from 9-9 weekdays and 9-5 Saturdays.

Prospect Hts. Parks Slate Golf Tournéys

The Prospect Heights Park District will sponsor a series of golf tournaments for adults and children later this month at Rob Roy Golf Course, Euclid Avenue and Wheeling Road.

The first will be a women's tournament Friday, Aug. 11, at 11 a.m. Fee for the nine-hole event will be $3. A boys' tournament will follow Friday, Aug. 18. Boys 12 years old and under will tee-off at 11 a.m. and pay a $3 fee for nine holes. Boys 13 and older will tee off at 10 a.m. and pay a $4 fee for 18 holes.

Also, a men's tournament, Saturday, Aug. 19 will begin at 1 p.m. There will be a $7 fee for the 18-hole event.

Persons interested in the tournaments may register at the park district office, 9 N. Elmhurst Rd. any Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Full-Time Park Director Named

A new full-time director has been appointed at the Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple St., Paul Caldwell, assistant park director, said yesterday.

Richard Pyle, 25, a recent graduate of Arkansas Polytechnic, with a degree in park administration, will take over the new post Monday. Pyle has worked on a part-time basis at the Northbrook Park District for the last seven summers. His salary as director will be $8,600.

The post of full-time director was discontinued almost a year ago when Sam Geati, the first director, quit. Since that time, the center has tried to use part-time help, but, according to Caldwell, this system lacks continuity.

According to Caldwell, the post of full-time director was reinstituted to make better use of the center at night. It is hoped that the appointment of the new full-time director will help curb the vandalism that has been occurring lately and "provide more constructive outlets for teens," Caldwell said.

The new director's major responsibility will be to establish new policies for the center and plan special events. Pyle will spend his first week visiting other recreation centers in the area to study their program. "Then he'll reevaluate what we've been doing and determine what is the most efficient use to serve the public," Caldwell said.

Navy Housing Plan May Scrap Nike Site Park

$50,000 In Cash, Checks Stolen

An estimated $50,000 in checks and currency was reported stolen Monday afternoon from Latif Motor Sales Co., 800 E. Northwest Hwy. in Arlington Heights.

Police report that $45,500 worth of checks and $4,500 in currency had been placed in a bank bag for deposit when it was taken from the car dealer's business office during the lunch hour.

The bank bag was later discovered in a Des Plaines mailbox but all the checks and money were missing.

Police are continuing their investigation into the apparent theft.

Bob Webb, a bespectacled accountant, leaned against a railing awaiting the 8:38 a.m. Chicago and North Western (C&NW) shuttle yesterday. Along with hundreds of suburban commuters, he had paid an extra dime for the Chicago round trip.

"I basically don't object to the rate increase if they provide the same service," he said. "The cost of everything is going up."

Frank Cerza, of Rolling Meadows agreed as he sat inside the station bidding time before the train's arrival. He defended the 5 1/2 per cent fare increase which went into effect yesterday.

"If they need the money, then that's the way it is," Cerza said. "Just because they're government regulated is no reason why they can't increase fares."

THE HORDE OF businessmen who daily ride the C&NW showed little distress over the extra ticket costs. They lauded the C&NW service and said they are willing to pay for it.

"Richard Morris came to Arlington Heights from New York and says he appreciates the service more than most of his fellow commuters. Chicago has the best rail commutation to and from the suburbs," he contends.

"They're cleaner and run more often than New York's rail network. I hope they can somehow make this line pay for itself."

And Lowell Christy, who has been a regular at the Arlington Heights stop since 1954, "back in the days of steam engines," shrugged his shoulders when asked about the jump in fares. He will stay with the rail line but hopes they "don't overdo a good thing" by continuing to spiral the cost of commuting by rail.

"I certainly won't abandon the train and driver," said Bryan Coughlin of Palatine. "There's nothing you can do about the rates. Nobody likes it but did you ever try to park in the loop?"

COMMUTERS AREN'T disgruntled about the added cost, but they are concerned over the possibility of the railroad cutting its service to the suburbs.

For commuters such as Larry March of Arlington Heights a service cutback would be critical. "I have no choice but to ride the train. My wife needs the car," he said. "The train now is convenient and worth the price."

An elderly man at the Arlington Heights station yesterday morning said he recalls when it cost 35 cents to ride the C&NW to Chicago. "But that was years ago," he added.

Today the price one-way from Arlington Heights is $1.40. Palatine commuters pay $1.50 one-way.

As the train screeched to a halt in front of the waiting commuters, two green-clad conductors opened the doors and escorted passengers up the steps.

"No we haven't heard a word of grumbling about the price," said one of the conductors. "But I'm sure they don't like it either."

Fare Rises 12% Over Two Years

A ride on the Chicago and North Western Ry. from Arlington Heights to Chicago costs 20 cents more than it did two years ago. Palatine's rate is 15 cents higher.

The rate hike represents a 12 1/4 per cent increase by the railway during the past two years.

Last year's increase jumped Arlington Heights rates from $1.20 for the one-way ticket to $1.35. At the same time Palatine's fare went from $1.35 to $1.40.

The rate hike, which went into effect yesterday, increased the Arlington Heights fare another 5 cents and the Palatine fare 10 cents.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Jack Anderson, offering humble apologies, retracted his report that Sen. Thomas Eagleton had been arrested several times for drunken and reckless driving. After a 45-minute meeting with Eagleton, Anderson conceded his report had damaged the Missouri senator's short-lived vice presidential candidacy, and said he could not verify his charges.

Sen. George McGovern is reported considering six prime candidates in his search for a running mate to replace Larry O'Brien, Sargent Shriver, Wisconsin Gov. Patrick Lucey, Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie, Wisconsin Sen. Gaylord Nelson and Idaho Sen. Frank Church. Sen. Edward Kennedy repeated his rejection of the second spot on the Democratic ticket.

In the first legislative test of one of McGovern's principal campaign issues, the Senate defeated his proposal to cut the defense budget by $4 billion. The vote was 59 to 33.

The House refused for the second time in a week to work out a compromise with the Senate over differing bills that would increase the minimum wage.

The House Rules Committee took away from the Judiciary Committee and sent to the House floor a proposed constitutional amendment to ban racial busing. The rules committee declined to take similar action to dislodge from the judiciary panel President Nixon's legislation proposing a one-year moratorium on new court busing orders.

The State

The World

President Nixon's special peace envoy, Henry Kissinger, conferred privately in Paris for the 15th time with North Vietnamese negotiators, the White House announced. Both U.S. and North Vietnamese peace delegations kept a complete silence about the session.

Boris Spassky accepted challenger Bobby Fischer's offer of a draw after 29 moves in the ninth game of their world championship chess match, enabling the American to maintain his two-point advantage in the contest.

The War

U.S. Navy planes bombed a shipyard in North Vietnam's major port city of Haiphong for the first time, and the allies' Bien Hoa airbase outside Saigon received its heaviest Communist shelling of the war. The base houses 2,250 Americans.

$2.4 Million October Referendum

Park Upgrading Cost: $5.20 Per Year

by CINDY TEW

If preliminary estimates are correct and no additions or subtractions are made to the list of park improvements, the October Arlington Heights Park District referendum would cost each taxpayer about $5.20 per year.

The estimate on the $2.4 million proposed referendum was made by Park District Treasurer Roger Burke, who figured bonds would be paid off after 20 years at a payout of $ per cent.

"The referendum would increase taxes by about 52 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation," said Burke. He also said that as the district's tax base increases, which it has been at a steady rate, the tax rate will drop year by year.

Indications are that changes will be made in the estimated cost of the referendum even before it goes to a citizens evaluation committee Aug. 30.

According to Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation, land purchase figures which account for $62,500 in the present cost list will probably increase. Other cost figures which Thornton says may be revised after consulting with experts are lighting costs and the final cost of the $1.1 million artificial ice rink.

"We could be far off base with the lighting figures, but there probably won't be a lot of changes in the other figures," Thornton said. "I'm quite sure the final cost figure won't get as high as the $2.8 million of the 1968 referendum."

In 1968 a successful referendum was responsible for the building of four swimming pools, three neighborhood centers and improvements at several community parks. The tax increase at that time was about $11 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

THE 1968 REFERENDUM, however, proved to be a lesson in rising costs for park district officials. Many of the improvements that were supposed to be made with the referendum money were cut or revised when costs skyrocketed.

"At that time, costs were going up almost monthly," said Thornton. "Between the time that we got our original cost estimates and were ready to start the work, costs had gone up 20 per cent."

Cuts included a maintenance garage and the lighting of ball diamonds, which are included in the October referendum. Other cuts included a shelter building at Evergreen Park, reduced parking areas and eliminating heated pools.

"To keep from making the same mistake twice, we're adding a $200,000 contingency fund this time," Thornton said. "Costs are still going up."

At the present time, the park district can sell up to $3.35 million worth of bonds

Fencing Repairs Will Cost $1,400

Fencing around tennis courts at Forest View High School will cost $1,400 to repair after the July 14 storm which also damaged the roof of the school.

The Arlington Heights Park District board Monday approved the expenditure for 120 feet of chain link fence along with 36 posts and 180 feet of top railing. The park district which owns the courts will also reinstall 240 feet of fence which is salvageable.

"The funds will come from the account for fencing planned for around the maintenance garage at Pioneer Park," said Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation. "That project will just have to wait."

Cost of the damage to the high school building has not been estimated yet.

Meyer Announces He Won't Run For State Legislature

by KEN KOZAK

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has finally revealed that he will not be an independent candidate for a 3rd district seat in the Illinois State Legislature this fall.

Meyer also said he has not yet decided if he will endorse the regular Republican candidates, Donald L. Totten of Schaumburg and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights, against whom he ran his unsuccessful mayerick candidacy in the March primary.

Apparently the decision not to run was made over the past several months, but Meyer did not announce it until last weekend when he conferred with "Republicans from different areas." Meyer refused to reveal the identities of the people he talked with over the weekend, but it is probable that they included the area mayors who backed his unsuccessful primary bid.

"I talked with people over the weekend," he said, "and told them I had taken on too many commitments" to take on a candidacy in November.

IN THE LAST few months, Meyer said, he has "taken on extra personal work with the feeling that I wouldn't be campaigning in September and October. If I had made it in March I wouldn't have taken on that extra work."

In March Meyer finished third in the primary behind Totten and Macdonald. In that contest, his first foray beyond local politics, Meyer pulled about 25 per cent of the vote running without the endorsement of Republican township political organizations.

Meyer said he does not know yet if he will endorse Totten or Macdonald.

"I haven't been asked to yet," he said, "and I don't know if I will or won't. I have had no contact with (Republican) township leaders with the exception of Bernie Peterson." Peterson is Republican committeeman for Palatine Township.

Meyer feels his endorsement will be sought, and expects the matter to come up shortly when he meets with Palatine Township leaders on the subject of dissolving Palatine Township, governing agencies.

REGARDING HIS political future, Meyer said he will "take things as they come," as far as any future candidacies are concerned.

He said he would measure any future political move "by evaluating my chances and what I can do for the people around me, whether or not I have organizational support."

Meyer said he entered the last primary because there were no incumbents and because he wanted to make party leaders aware of the fact that local mayors "want to be consulted as to who is running."

He feels the party has ignored local officials too much in past slatemaking and his candidacy in the primary served as a warning to the organization that they ought to give more thought to the opinions of city and village leaders when candidates are picked.

Robin's Poodle Judged 'Best'

Robin Karp's Poodle was judged "Best in Show" at Saturday's Sidewalk Days Dog Show in Arlington Heights.

The Arlington Heights girl received a trophy for the show's top honor as well as a trophy for the dog with the best costume.

Other winners in the costume category were: Mary Burns, second; Mary Barnett, third. The largest dog was entered by Randi Levinson. Christine Johanson was second and Donald Johnson third.

Ruth Trimble entered the smallest dog, with Tom Grubb second and Michele Marchand third.

Diane Mikach received the top award for the dog performing tricks category: Robert Andrew was second and Cari Karpisak, third.

Here's Updated Breakdown

A $1.1 million indoor ice skating facility, to be built at Recreation Park, and $447,000 in improvements to neighborhood parks still are the major items on the $2.4 million October Arlington Heights Park District referendum.

At Monday's park board meeting many additions were tentatively added to the final cost, however. The original $1.8 million figure was hiked more than 25 per cent.

Big additions were a theater for $350,000 and more than $100,000 in added park improvements. Another $62,500 was added for land purchases adjacent to Dryden Park, Frontier Park and Greens Park.

Almost all parks in the district will be improved in some way if the referendum passes, according to Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation. Among the few parks that will not be improved are Carefree and Evergreen Parks, which were improved after the 1968 referendum.

ADDITIONS TO the original list of park improvements are:

- $6,000 more for play apparatus at Pioneer Park.
- $2,000 more for paving of walks and lighting at Heritage Park.
- $3,000 more for improvements at Dryden Park.
- $3,000 more for improvement at Rink Park.
- $1,000 more for lighting at Nike Park.
- $2,000 more for paving at Banta Park.
- $1,000 more for paving at Klehm Park.
- $5,000 more for lighting at Raven Park.
- $3,000 more for play apparatus at Forest View Park.
- $1,000 more for play apparatus at Greenbrier Park.

FIVE PARKS, previously left out of the improvement list, also have been added. They are:

- Westgate Park, $6,000 for play apparatus and lighting.
- Berkley School, $30,000 for ball diamonds, play apparatus, paving and lighting.
- Volz Park, $1,000 for lighting.
- Flentie Park, $1,000 for lighting.
- Wilke-Kirchoff Retention Basin, $35,000 for a shelter building, lighting and two softball diamonds.

Other estimated costs in the referendum are: $70,000 for renovation and heating of the Recreation Park pool; $75,000 for a maintenance garage at Frontier Park; $88,125 in architect fees; $15,000 in landscape architect fees; $10,500 in attorney fees and $200,000 in a contingency fund.

park concept.

"We won't have a regional park if this goes through," said Thomas Thornton, Arlington Heights director of parks and recreation. "That (the Navy property) would have been the beginning — the part we would get first, since nothing is out there now."

The development also will affect Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15. Projected population of the development is 600, of which 110 would be elementary school-age children. All of these children would attend Dist. 15 schools.

JOSEPH KISZKA, deputy superintendent of Dist. 15, said he has been in contact with Mueller to discuss the impact the project will have on Dist. 15. No commitment has been made by the Navy for a financial or land contribution to the district. Kiszka said he plans to look into Public Laws 874 and 815 providing funds and land to federally impacted school districts.

Following final approval of the Military Construction Authorization Act, the 1973 Military Construction Appropriations Act will be sent to the appropriations committee of the house and senate. This act appropriates the funds for the authorized military construction projects.

In 1968, Congress appropriated funds for 200 Navy housing units on the Arlington Heights Nike Site. A typhoon on the Pacific island of Guam necessitated the emergency transfer of funds for reconstruction of Navy housing on Guam and forestalled the Arlington Heights program.

Navy's Dependent Housing Plan Dates Back To 1965

Plans for Navy dependent housing on sections of the Arlington Heights Nike site are not new.

The idea of Navy housing in the area dates back to 1965 when the Navy went to the Army and asked for land on the site to build houses.

When the first disclosures of the proposed government housing reached the community in the fall of 1966, reaction was heavily against the plan.

In Arlington Heights, substantial opposition to the plan came from residents who viewed the approach of government housing for Navy families as a threat to local property values.

The Arlington Heights Village Board and Arlington Heights Park District Board went on record as opposing the proposed Naval development. They were joined in their opposition by several local civic groups.

LEADING THE opposition was Thomas Thornton, superintendent of parks and recreation in Arlington Heights, who said the land could better be used for recreational purposes.

Since 1964 the park district had been eyeing the Nike site with the hope of acquiring the land and constructing a community golf course or large recreation area.

In December of 1964 park district officials were led to believe the Army would declare 100 acres surplus and offer them for sale at 50 per cent of the appraised value.

Intent on acquiring the land, the park district board requested authorization to issue $225,000 in bonds for acquisition of property in the January 16, 1965 referendum.

Junior College Dist. 301, now Harper College Dist. 512, also expressed an interest in the property in 1965 but later abandoned its interest.

Since military branches have first choice on federal land declared surplus, the Navy's request preempted requests from both the park district and junior college.

Initial Navy plans called for a $3 million townhouse and duplex housing project with 150 units. In March of 1968 the Navy nearly doubled its plans and announced its intent to construct 250 units.

THE PUBLIC OUTCRY mounted but the Navy refused to abandon its plans. In August of 1968 it appeared the project might be discarded and the Glenview Naval Air Station closed after a Navy attack plane crashed into suburban Glenview, killing a 13-year old girl.

Despite demands from Glenview residents that the base be closed, the Navy announced the Glenview station was a vital part of the Navy Air Reserve Program and would remain open.

During this entire period Elk Grove Dist. 59 and Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 were involved in a debate over who would educate the children from the proposed project, which falls within the boundaries of both districts.

Offers and counter offers were made by both districts to educate all the children from the development and attempts were made to change the district boundaries. After several meetings where no agreement could be reached it was decided the development would remain divided between the two districts.

A typhoon in December of 1968 on the Pacific Island of Guam finally succeeded in halting the project. Money appropriated for the Arlington Heights project was instead used to meet emergency Naving housing needs on Guam.

Behrel Hits Lack Of Cooperation By County Chiefs

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel yesterday said he is disappointed in the lack of cooperation the city has received from county officials in its efforts to solve downtown traffic problems.

Saying he is "very disturbed about the whole picture," Behrel indicated that the city does not know at this point what will become of plans for a River Road overpass at Miner Street and the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks, and for a link-up of Thacker and Dempster streets at the Des Plaines River.

It was disclosed Monday that the Cook County Forest Preserve District has rejected requests for forest preserve land needed to build both projects, which are considered necessary elements of plans for downtown redevelopment.

"I'm sorry to say that I think we could have gotten a little more cooperation out of the forest preserve officials on the whole," Behrel told reporters at his weekly news conference.

"WE'LL TRY to find a solution if there is one," the mayor declared, saying he intends to discuss the matter soon with Richard Beebe, engineer for H.W. Lochner, Inc., which has designed the proposed plans for the overpass and the Thacker-Dempster connection.

Arthur Janura, forest preserve superintendent, Monday said his agency "flatly rejected" a city request for a 33-foot wide strip of forest preserve land between the ends of both River Street and Mill Street near the Des Plaines River.

Officials also turned down a request for a portion of the Northwestern Woods area just east of the river, needed as part of the Thacker-Dempster link-up, saying the project would isolate an additional 1.8-acre section of the forest preserve.

Plans call for a road to be built connecting River and Mill streets, giving Mill Street properties access to River Road. Such access would be needed, officials have said, because present plans for the River Road overpass call for closing

Housing Panel Raises Issue Of Holding Closed Meetings

Members of the Des Plaines Housing Commission spent part of their first session last night raising questions about the need to open all of their meetings to the public.

The panel members also heard Mayor Herbert Behrel urge them to prepare a report to the city council that will be "something meaningful, something we can hang our hats on for the future."

"I would like to see every member of this commission maintain an open mind," the mayor said. "You must listen. You must evaluate everything that is given to you."

Although they took no vote on it, the commissioners indicated by their discussion that they will decide whether or not to study the need here for development of low-income housing.

Behrel, who spoke briefly at the beginning of the session, and then left, said that if the commission decided there is a need for low-income housing here, members will have to explain "not only why you think it is so, but the justification for it."

THE QUESTION OF closing some of the panel's meetings to the public was raised by commission member Edward Sherwood, who said he was "surprised" to see the audience of about 12 persons in attendance.

Opening all meetings to the public could result in "premature criticism, premature judgment" of the commission's activities, Sherwood said. The commission is an official body created through ordinance by city council to advise the council on policy matters.

"I think in the next week there will be subjects for discussion that will be greatly inhibited if we do have an audience," Sherwood said. Commission Chairman Ralph Martin said Sherwood's points were "extremely valid" and the panel members agreed to seek a legal opinion to determine if the commission is subject to the state's open meetings act.

That law requires all local governments such as cities, as well as their "subsidiary bodies" such as committees and commissions, to meet in public. Closed sessions, which still must be held at specified times and places, are allowed only for collective bargaining, discussion of real estate purchase, discussion of pending court action, or personnel matters such as hiring or firing employees.

IN ADDITION TO their decision to seek a legal opinion, the commissioners agreed to conduct their sessions under Robert's Rules of Order and set Wednesday, Aug. 30 at 7 p.m., as their next meeting date.

Also addressing the 7-member commission was Ald. Robert Sherwood (2nd), whose health and welfare committee has handled the low-income housing issue in the city council. He chaired a stormy hearing on a housing proposal last year and later led a successful city council fight to defeat it.

Sherwood said the commission has a "wide open" assignment to study local housing problems and recommend solutions to them. He told the panel members to concentrate on the needs of present Des Plaines residents.

"If we can find a way to take care of our own people in the City of Des Plaines that is our goal, a goal we are looking for," he said.

"I am not here and the city council majority is not here to supply housing for the people of Chicago just so they can save some transportation fare getting to and from their work," Sherwood said.

Planning A College No Small Task

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Planning a campus for a college with no academic departments presents a problem for officials of Oakton Community College. Designing classroom buildings that allow students to experiment with their own learning and are flexible enough to be changed and rearranged each semester is the task of Oakton's educational consultant, Stanton Leggett.

Leggett, president of Stanton Leggett and Associates, Inc., Chicago, was hired by the board of trustees at Oakton last April to devise an overall plan for a permanent campus. Leggett began interviewing students, teachers and administrators asking them their ideas about education. Their opinions together with Oakton's own statement of philosophy will be used to plan a campus that will serve the needs of Oakton students and faculty now and in the years to come, said Leggett.

Individuality and flexibility are two key words in Oakton's philosophy of education that will find their way into the brick and mortar of the permanent campus. A recent study made by college faculty said that the college should provide the student with choices in the way he can learn.

"Oakton attempts to promote an interchange of ideas among the faculty about teaching modes, methods, and approaches. Oakton attempts to create a climate, both physical and psychological, in which both instructor and student feel free to experiment in finding new ways of improving learning," the study said.

ONE EXAMPLE of the school's different approach to education is in its academic organization. Instead of an English department, science or history department, Oakton offers its students "groups" or "clusters" of courses and each contains subjects from many different academic areas.

The differences among the clusters lie in teaching methods. While one cluster may have classes that meet in large lecture groups, another may meet in small study groups. One group may use lectures given by the instructor to supplement information contained in texts, but another group may use slides, film, tapes and guest speakers.

Leggett has suggested a campus layout that will facilitate Oakton's cluster concept. The center of the campus would consist of a library, science laboratories, tools, equipment and other resources shared among all the clusters. Classrooms designed to accompany the teaching methods of each cluster will surround the commons area with snack bars, lounges, administrative offices and study

Education Budget Will Be Reduced

Officials at Maine Township High School Dist. 207 plan to cut education spending by 2.55 per cent in an effort to balance the budget for the 1972-73 school year. The announcement was made Monday night in a progress report to the board of education finance committee by Dist. 207 business manager Harold Markworth.

The $15.55 million in educational expenditures planned for the 1972-73 school year represents a decrease of about $400,000 from last year. Instructional costs, including teacher salaries and instructional supplies, were reduced by almost one per cent; administration costs were dropped six per cent; operating expenses were hiked six per cent and fixed charges were raised by about 13.8 per cent.

The final budget for the 1972-73 school year will not be completed until Aug. 18 when it is scheduled to go on public display at the Dist. 207 administration center and local libraries, said Supt. Richard Short.

Last year's total budget of $21.9 million showed a deficit of about $3.8 million. In an effort to balance the budget this year, the largest decreases are being made in education spending which often accounts for about 75 per cent of total expenditures. The total amount available for educational spending is estimated at $15,554,180 next year and expenditures are $15,552,796 leaving a balance of $1,385 in the educational budget next July.

INSTRUCTIONAL COSTS for next year are budgeted at $11.7 million. The Dist. 207 board of education announced last spring that 27 teaching positions would be eliminated in the coming school year to reduce instructional costs. Of the $11.7 million in instructional costs, $8.97 million has been allocated for teacher salaries next year, a reduction from last year's figure of $9.9 million.

"We hope to spend about the same number of dollars for staffing the classroom this year as last," said Markworth. The reduction in size of the teaching staff and a decrease in the amount of educational supplies used during the year offsets regular pay increment and a 2.25 per cent raise in pay for all teachers approved by the Maine Township Teacher's Association June 9.

The six per cent decrease in administrative costs results from a more efficient data processing system, a decrease in the size of the secretarial staff, and increased mechanization in the office, according to Short.

The increase in operational costs results from a rise in telephone and electricity rates, said Short. Markworth said he plans to investigate the increase in telephone costs. He said that $104,000 had been budgeted for telephone expenditures last year but actual expenditure was $124,000.

Employee medical insurance is the reason for the 13.8 per cent increase in fixed charges, said Short. Premium rates for the Blue Cross-Blue Shield insurance were raised this year due to an increase in claims by district employees, said Short.

Estimated property tax revenue for next year is $8.5 million. The assessed value of Dist. 207 has increased from $694 million last year to $736 million this year resulting in an increase in anticipated tax revenue of $650,000. The increase in assessed valuation is due to an increase in the amount of taxable property in the district, said Markworth. The tax levy remains at $1.63 again this year, the maximum rate approved by public referendum.

GENERAL STATE aid for education spending has increased from $1.7 million last year to $2.1 million this year due to an alteration in the state aid formula by the state legislature and an increase of about 300 in enrollment at Maine High Schools, said Markworth.

In a report to the board of education July 17, Ralph J. Frost, assistant superintendent, said that of the 27 teachers whose jobs had been cut back, only six remain without positions for the coming school year.

Twelve of the 27 have been assigned to meet staffing needs brought about by increased enrollment, or will replace other teachers who have resigned or been granted leaves of absence. Four of the 27 have submitted resignations, two have left the Chicago area, and three have positions with other school districts.

Frost said that it is expected that as other resignations are received, it will be possible for the district to reassign the remaining six.

Gas Station Looted

Items valued at more than $430 were stolen from a west side Des Plaines service station after thieves apparently broke in through a side window early Saturday morning.

Police said the thieves entered Nick's Enco Station, 821 Elmhurst Rd., taking five gallons of gasoline, an adding machine valued at $215, a stereo AM-FM radio valued at $70, a stereo AM-FM radio valued at $100, two batteries valued at $38 and $8 in cash.

Motel Room Robbed

A briefcase and two cameras valued at $300 were reported stolen from a motel room at the Holiday Inn, Mannheim Road and Touhy Avenue Sunday evening.

Richard Messer, 568 Lynn Ct., Glendale Heights, told police the items were taken from his room between 5:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Man Charged With Public Indecency

A Des Plaines man, 35, was arrested by police Saturday for public indecency after the man allegedly exposed himself to two young girls in front of a Des Plaines store.

Clayton Gleich, 1603 Stockton Ave., was arrested at his home by police after they traced his address through a license plate number given by a witness who reportedly saw the incident.

According to reports, the two girls, ages 11 and 12, were waiting for one girl's mother outside K-Mart, 1155 Oakton St., when a man drove up alongside the girls and exposed himself. Gleich, according to police, was identified later by the girls through a photo.

He was released on a $1,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Sept. 9 at 1:30 p.m.

$1,500 Burglary Loss At Apartment Here

Thieves entered a Des Plaines apartment last Friday and stole items and cash valued at more than $1,500.

Robert Proutt, 749 Fifth Ct., told police the thieves stole numerous watches and rings valued at $1,286, a coin collection valued at $80, two cameras valued at $130, $100 worth of clothes and $12 in cash.

According to reports, there were no signs of forcible entry at the apartment.

Model Planes Stolen

Two model airplanes valued at $750 were stolen Friday from the auto of a Nashville, Tenn. man at the Holiday Inn, Mannheim Road and Touhy Avenue, Des Plaines, Friday.

Carl Miller, who told police he was staying at the hotel while attending a model airplane show in Glenview, said the two models were taken from his locked auto between 10:30 p.m. and 12 a.m.

Behrel Hits 'Lack Of Cooperation'

JANURA SAID Monday that privately-owned land west of the forest preserve is available to build the River-Mill connection.

Behrel explained yesterday that the city asked for the 33-foot forest preserve strip because it would have been a "real detriment" for the private owners to give up the needed land. The area is zoned for apartments and is expected eventually to be developed with high-density, high-rise buildings.

"I think that made Mr. Janura a little bit mad. We were asking them for 33 feet and we weren't asking the property owners for a thing," the mayor said.

When asked what he will do next, Behrel replied "I haven't come to that conclusion yet."

The Illinois Division of Highways has rejected a city request for approval of the River Road overpass built by itself, saying the overpass and the Thacker-Dempster link-up are needed in conjunction to help solve traffic bottlenecks downtown.

EVEN THOUGH the state has approved the plans for the projects, and, along with the federal government, would provide 75 percent of construction funds, Behrel said yesterday he does not believe the state will push ahead with the project if the city cannot.

"I can tell you very definitely, they won't pick up the ball if the city gets stuck," he said in response to a question. Behrel was also critical of the forest preserve district's rejection of the Thacker-Dempster plans after the plans had been specifically revised to take into account the objections from forest preserve officials.

"When the forest preserve says 'find an alternate route,' I don't know what they mean," the mayor said. "Why didn't they make any suggestion that would have been helpful?"

Sklodowski To Speak At Meeting

Robert Sklodowski, Republican candidate for Cook County Circuit Court Clerk, will speak at a meeting of the Maine clerk's office at the meeting, to be held in the Maine Republican organization headquarters, 1566 Miner St., Des Plaines, according to a press statement.

A Park Ridge attorney and former assistant attorney general for Illinois, Sklodowski is a graduate of Chicago Kent College of Law. He is former president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and past vice president of the Wheeling Township Republican Organization.

Floyd Fulle, Maine GOP committeeman, has invited all township voters to attend the session and meet Sklodowski, who will oppose incumbent Circuit Court Clerk Matthew Danaher, a Democrat. Fulle said regular meetings of the Maine GOP organization until the November will be open to the public so that voters can meet and discuss the issues with state and county Republican candidates for office.

Lutherans Set Registration

Registration day at Immanuel Lutheran School, 832 Lee St., Des Plaines, will be Aug. 31 from 8:30 a.m. to noon. The first day of classes will be Tuesday, September 5, with an opening chapel service in the church at 8:45.

Regular school hours will be from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., with kindergarten classes, every day from 8:30 to 11:30 and pre-kindergarten classes from 1 until 3 p.m. each Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

For parents who want to register and pay the fees early, the school office will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., August 1 to 4 and 7 to 11.

Illinois law requires that all children who enter school for the first time must have physical and dental examinations, also all fifth graders must have these exams.

Bus service may be provided on a limited basis, so parents who want bus service for their children and have not already been contacted, are asked to call the school office immediately.

If you have any questions, please call the school office, 824-4405.

Youths Charged With Sniffing

Two Des Plaines youths were arrested by police Monday night for allegedly sniffing glue they reportedly poured from a bottle into a soft-drink can.

Daniel Schlessler, 17, of 766 Oakton St., and Jeff Hoke, 17, of 926 Third Ave., were charged with inhaling intoxicating compounds.

According to reports, Patrolman Jack Whetstone stopped the auto driven by Schlessler when the youth reportedly failed to signal when he turned off Thacker street onto Laurel Avenue. Whetstone said he saw Hoke lift a soft-drink can to his face before stopping the vehicle.

Whetstone reportedly smelled a strong odor of glue in the auto while talking to the youths and said he smelled the glue on the pair's breath. The soft-drink can had glue in it and a bottle of contact cement was found on the floor of Schlessler's vehicle, according to reports.

The two youths were released on $1,000 bonds and are scheduled to appear in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Aug. 21 at 11 a.m.

Attends Art Session

Jane Eisefeldt, 641 Sixth Ave., Des Plaines, attended a week-long intensive session of art instruction held July 17-21 at Allerton Park, University of Illinois conference center near Monticello. It was sponsored by the U. of I. Division of University Extension and the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. Jane was sponsored by the Des Plaines Junior Women's Club.

From The Library

Do you ever wonder what library books people are reading and why? Right now, at the Des Plaines Public Library, books about Bobby Fischer and chess head the list; and no wonder, with the news media headlining the world championship match between Bobby and Boris Spassky.

There are trends in books and reading just as there are trends in thought, action and way of living and the news media plays a heavy hand in the game. In this election year, books about national events and political figures are popular, especially the new books such as: "McGovern" by Anson; "Ted Kennedy" by David; "Muskie of Maine" by Nevins; "In the Fullness of Time" by Paul Douglas; and "The Honorable Mr. Mari-gold," biography of Everett Dirksen by his wife.

As the Women's Liberation movement grows, so does the interest in such books as "Feminine Mystique" by Betty Friedan and "The Female Eunuch" by Germaine Greer.

TRANSACTIONAL analysis is fast becoming a household word as thousands of people are joining therapy groups and reading the book, "I'm O.K., you're O.K." by Harris and "Games People Play" by Berne (which inspired such titles as "Games Children Play" by Chapman, "Games Alcoholics Play" by Steiner and "Games Analyst's Play" by Shepard).

When a currently shown movie or play is based on a book, then that book is often requested; earlier works of currently popular authors will also be more popular; or if a well-known author dies, there will be requests for his books.

Keeping in step with fashions, books on the crafts, tie-dyeing and macramé are presently popular. Requests for books on old bottles, depression glass and small antiques grow as those things swiftly become collectors' items. As soon as the unemployment rate goes up, books on how to write a job resume circulate even more briskly.

Reading trends vary according to season, the most notable being in the field of sports but this also applies to hobbies, travel, home decorating, etc. During the first 3½ months of the year, books on income tax circulate. When the speed reading classes (adult education program) are in session, biographies are the most popular. Why? Because the students are asked to read three biographies about each of several people weekly, which adds up to a tall stack of books for the class total.

Well, need we say that book titles on the current best seller lists are most popular of all? There are usually lists of patrons waiting for these books and each patron is called in turn.

The Des Plaines Public Library encourages requests for books which are not on the shelves. If the library does not own the book, the purchase of the book will be considered or the book will be requested through the North Suburban Library System. The patron will be called either when the book comes in or if we cannot obtain the book.

Planning A College No Small Task

areas distributed randomly in the classroom area.

Leggett has also recognized the importance of flexibility in campus buildings, and plans to use demountable partitions as classroom walls where possible. "We cannot forget, that the college is growing, changing, modifying itself continuously," said Leggett. "We are describing the college on its first day of use. From that day on it will change."

THE DEMOUNTABLE partitions will allow a teacher to change the size and shape of a classroom with little effort or cost. Science laboratories will contain portable sink and table units with water, gas and electric units built into the floor.

While planning continues, the board is looking for a suitable site for the campus. According to Board President LeRoy Wauck, the site committee has narrowed its choice to four sites. College President William Koehnline told the Herald that a site probably will be announced at either the Aug. 15 or Sept. 5 board meeting and that the Illinois Junior College Board will discuss the proposed site when it meets in Chicago Sept. 15. Oakton Community College is temporarily located in an industrial complex at 7900 N. Nagle Ave., Morton Grove. Six buildings are leased by the college to house classrooms, offices, a library and cafeteria.

Leggett suggested that the campus site be at least 50 acres in area to accommodate buildings and parking space. According to Leggett, parking is a major problem for the community college since most students will commute to school by car. The number of parking spaces needed for the college goes up in direct proportion to enrollment, he said, whereas building space increases by only half of the enrollment increase.

ENROLLMENT projections show Oakton Community College with the equivalent of 4,000 full-time students by 1980, said Leggett. Enrollment last spring was the equivalent of 1,800 full-time students. The Illinois Junior College Board restricts each community college to 6,000 full-time equivalent students and recommends that when a college reaches that figure, a second campus should be built. Leggett has estimated that when the campus is completed in 1975, the maximum number of students at one time will be 2,360. Based on that figure the Illinois Junior College Board allows Oakton a total of 259,480 square feet of space. "This is not a generous allowance," he said, so educators must plan carefully.

Leggett's preliminary plans show 95,600 square feet of instructional space, 25,900 square feet of student, faculty and administrative space, 24,800 square feet of library space, and 21,550 square feet for building services.

Occupational classes which will use instructional space include the existing programs in data processing, practical nursing, radiologic technology, child care, physical therapy, chemical technology, architectural technology and planned courses in commercial art, registered nursing, mental health technology, police science, food services, electronics, and forestry.

LEGGETT HAS suggested that to cut back on machinery costs expensive equipment used by more than one occupational program be placed in the college commons area with other shared tools. A few occupational programs that use the same tools are woodworking, sheetmetal, electronics, welding, auto mechanics and auto body, said Leggett, and occupational programs related to medicine such as nursing and mental health technology often use the same equipment.

Data processing equipment will be shared between business education students and college office uses. Students studying food science will use school food service facilities as a laboratory. Leggett proposed that a system be developed that will allow students to manage a variety of small eating establishments located throughout the campus.

The Illinois Junior College Board puts physical education at the bottom of the list of instructional priorities, said Leggett, and state financing specifically excludes space for spectator seating. The Junior College Board proposes that Oakton use sports facilities outside the campus when spectator sports are involved and use outdoor sports areas as much as possible.

Indoor spaces Leggett proposed for Oakton are a dance studio, wrestling room, weight room, gymnasium, locker rooms, and team and staff space totaling 21,150 square feet. The college may build an outdoor swimming pool that would use 8,500 square feet of space.

Leggett was hired for a $17,500 fee in April and hopes to have a final report ready for board approval early this fall. When the plan is adopted by the board it will be given to college architects as a guide for building Oakton's permanent campus.

Name Chairman For Bible Week

Maynard P. Venema, chairman of Universal Oil Products Co., Des Plaines, has been named an associate chairman for the 32nd annual interfaith National Bible Week, Nov. 19-26.

Venema is chairman of the board of the National Association of Manufacturers, chairman of the National Industrial Council and past president of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

He is a member of the Northfield Community Church and the Protestant Business Leaders' Foundation. He served in 1969 as an industry chairman for National Bible Week.

A native of Chicago, Venema has an engineering degree from Armour Institute of Technology (now Illinois Institute of Technology) and a degree in law from Georgetown University. He also studied at DePaul University.

Joining Universal Oil Products in 1935, he rose to manager of the Patent Department, to vice president, executive vice president and in 1955, he was elected president. Six years later he became chairman and chief executive officer.

His civic interests include the American Red Cross, as chairman of the Mid-America Chapter. He is president of the lay advisory board of Resurrection Hospital, Chicago, and chairman of the board of trustees of Illinois Institute of Technology. He is a member of the boards of the Chicago Theological Seminary, Adlai Stevenson International Institute and Goodwill Industries.

The Laymen's National Bible Committee, composed of Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and Orthodox members, has sponsored National Bible Week since 1941 when its inaugural radio program was interrupted with the news that Pearl Harbor had been bombed.

Cooperating in sponsoring Bible Week are numerous organizations including the Catholic Biblical Apostolate, U.S. Catholic Conference, the Department of the Laity, Greek Orthodox Archdiocese and the Jewish Committee for National Bible Week.

Man Charged With Police Bribe Attempt

A Des Plaines man was arrested yesterday after he allegedly tried to bribe a Des Plaines police officer with $50 if the patrolman would drop traffic charges against the man.

Charged with attempting to bribe a police officer, driving while under the influence of liquor and driving without a license was Theodore Hatch, 42, of 1488 Thacker St.

According to reports, Hatch was brought to the police station by Patrolman Ken Randolph at 4:30 a.m. after Hatch was arrested on the traffic charges.

Randolph said while he was making out the arrest report, Hatch said "Can't we forget this?" and then threw a $50 bill on the arrest sheet. Hatch then reportedly said to Randolph, "Sell me a book of matches."

Hatch is being held in lieu of a $1,000 bond in the Des Plaines city lockup and is scheduled to appear in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Aug. 24 at 9:30 a.m.

Gala '72 Raises $25,000

A capacity crowd of well over 800 attended the seventh annual Gala, a benefit for Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. The benefit was held July 22 at the Marriott Motor Hotel.

More than $25,000 was raised. Funds from the Gala will be used to aid patients served by the hospital clinics and to provide assistance for other patients unable to pay.

"We are deeply grateful for the sponsors who underwrote the costs of Gala '72, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lotz of Park Ridge and the A. D. Johnson Foundation of Chicago," said Mrs. Martin Bengtson, general chairman. "This means that all proceeds go directly for the project. We are truly grateful for this support."

With Gala '72 more than $150,000 has been raised to aid the hospital and the community it serves. The Gala is a joint project of the Service League, medical staff and Men's Association.

OVER THE YEARS the Gala has been instrumental in providing numerous additional services for hospital patients. In 1971, funds were used to provide a mobile image intensifier which is being used for things such as implanting pacemakers, locating foreign items which children have swallowed and a wide range of other diagnostic uses.

Other projects have included a pediatric intensive care unit, an educational television system and automated laboratory equipment.

The crowd of more than 800 were entertained by comedian Johnny O'Brien and singer Jeanne Steel, and danced to the music of the Hal Kartun Orchestra and the Jimmy Gross Band.

CO-SPONSORS OF GALA '72, above, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lotz, enjoyed the July 22 benefit for Lutheran General Hospital. With the A. D. Johnson Foundation of Chicago, the Lotzs underwrote the Gala, making it possible for all proceeds to go directly to the project. Below, Dr.

Frank Ferraliolo, president of the medical staff, and Mrs. Martin Bengtson, general chairman of the benefit, receive guests. Held in the Grand Ballroom of the Marriott, the affair drew a capacity crowd of more than 800.

Dear Dorothy: I'd like to ask you two questions about cucumbers. Someone told me they were fruit. If so, how come they're called vegetables? Also, do you have a company style recipe for using cucumbers in salad form? My neighbor is kind enough to keep us supplied with cucumbers all summer long. — Mrs. Robert B.

True enough, the cucumber is a fruit, a member of the melon family, but inasmuch as it's always served as a vegetable it's considered one. Here's a different type of dish called Cucumber Shell Surprise. I think it's delicious. First hollow out the cucumber shell, saving the "meat" and dicing it into cubes. Combine the diced cucumber with a little finely grated onion, some chopped tomato and slivers of green pepper. Then mix with sour cream flavored with dill. Be sure everything is thoroughly chilled before spooning back into the shells.

Dear Dorothy: Here's an idea my 12-year-old son came up with. He was having difficulty cutting a pair of jeans to make them into shorts so he tried the small hand grass clippers. He cut the jeans in no time flat. — Mrs. Jesse Spencer

Dear Dorothy: To remove soap residue from faucets, apply white vinegar, let set, then rinse with warm water. — Mrs. C. O.

Dear Dorothy: When cooking out-of-doors, I immediately take the grill off after the food has been cooked and lay it on a piece of newspaper on the grass. It is then covered with more paper over which is poured some water that has had some dishwasher detergent added to it. When ready to wash, you'll find the grease and gunk comes off easily. After the grill is clean and dried, I rub it with cooking oil and cover with a plastic wrapper. — Mrs. J. M.

Elk Grove Leads 3-Team Race In Paddock Olympics

Elk Grove Park District, as it did just one year ago, jumped into a commanding lead after the first day of action in the 6th Annual Paddock Olympics.

The threat of rain all day Tuesday didn't dim Elk Grove's performance as the leaders ran up 198 team points to challenging Schaumburg's 130 and Arlington Heights' 113.

With exactly half of the schedule completed, the standings have developed into a three-way dogfight among those who have surpassed the century-point mark.

A deadlock for fourth exists between Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, both owners of 39 points while Mount Prospect and Salt Creek are right behind with 38 and 37, respectively.

Palatine, Hanover Park and Rolling Meadows are bunched in a tie for eighth with 33 apiece while Hoffman Estates trails the 11-team field with 29.

Competition was limited to the standing long jump, 50 and 100-yard dashes, jump rope and team relay in the opening day festivities, but Elk Grove stormed the top five point-scoring positions to gain the favorite's role upon entering tomorrow's schedule.

Pacing Elk Grove's blistering first day accomplishments was 13-year-old Cindy Antonik who captured the standing long jump for the fifth year in succession and topped many of the boys' marks along the way.

Cindy came back to land honors in the 100-yard dash to emerge as one of the Olympics' rare one-day double winners.

Garnering both gold medals in the team relay events, Elk Grove counted 20 of its 198 points on the wings of Rudden, Walsh, Guendling, Gracheck, Walsh and Ramirez for the boys and Kropski, Darush, Deegan, Kropski, Czarnecki and Walsh for the girls.

Also adding to Elk Grove's monstrous advantage were Pangrie in the 12-year-old boys long jump, Anderson in the 11-year-old girls jump rope event and Ryan and Walsh in the girls 50-yard dash finals.

Results of the boys' 50-dash championships were not available, but will be included with tomorrow's meet summary.

Schaumburg still remains in striking range behind Mary Meyer's winning effort in the girls eight-year-old long jump, Becky Carver's first-place feat for the 10-year-olds and Mike Netzel's gold medal jump for the 11-year-old boys.

Carol Couture landed a blue ribbon in the jump rope test for 16 year-olds and Carol Macaskowski matched her teammate's winning effort with a first-place romp in the 50-yard dash. Hugh Hannon further spiced Schaumburg's total with a victory in the 11-year-old boys 100-yard sprint.

Defending champion Arlington can't be counted out of the race either and because of the performances of winners Lori Smithgaul in the 9-girls jump rope, Leslie Ahr in the 11-girls long jump, Brian Roy and Brian Locker in the eight and 13-boys long jump and Menas in the 12-girls 100-dash, it could still very easily rally to catch Elk Grove.

Other individual champions after Tuesday's competition included Mount Prospect's Kathy Horstman in the 9-girls long jump, Gina Neri for the 12-girls long jump from Wheeling, David Beyer for the 8-boys out of Rolling Meadows, and Bob Altieri of Wheeling for the 10-boys in the same event.

Eight-year-old Christeen Koclaris of Buffalo Grove, 12-year-old Karen Scheids of Salt Creek and 13-year-old Betty Proseck of Wheeling all wore crowns after the jump rope challenge.

Salt Creek's Andrea Danatoni, Hanover Park's Peggy Burr and Angela Nakis were all gold medal victors in the 9, 10 and 12-year-old girls 50-yard dash, respectively.

Spencer York of Buffalo Grove, Kirby of Hanover Park, Danatoni of Salt Creek, Ann Hevici of Rolling Meadows and Pruseck of Wheeling conquered in their respective classes in the enduring 100-yard dash competition.

Tennis singles will kickoff tomorrow's final day of events at 9:30 a.m. with softball throw, kickball, free-throw shooting and tug-of-war capping another spectacular episode in the Paddock Olympics — the tournament of champions for area park districts.

The mammoth team trophy presentation will follow immediately after the final tabulations have been made.

Paddock Patrol

by Jim Cook, TURF EDITOR

FRIDAY WAS AN anniversary. It marked the second month that I've diligently followed the Pied Piper out to Arlington Park — the second month that I've listened, learned, absorbed and memorized the habits, tips, suggestions and cautions from the established turf editors in the press box.

It was time to graduate, cut the apron strings. It was time to make my own selections and repel the comments of "you like that three-legged nag?" or "ya know, they don't pay off if the horse finishes last."

Bravely and boldly, I journeyed to our backyard playground, hid in seclusion in the Classic Club and began looking over the card that would either distinguish me as a promising turf handicapper or handicapped turf failure.

I think I'll start out by making excuses. As you can readily see, my selections for Thursday's races aren't included at the end of this column.

I'm too young to make revenge-seeking enemies. Maybe two months isn't long enough to learn the horse-race ropes. It seems that every other turf expert has 20 years behind him, not eight weeks.

But, enthusiastically — maybe too enthusiastically — I began handicapping the races, observing all the rules of thumb, cannon and hock.

I eliminated fillies that appeared equal in condition with colts, scratched the youngsters over the established, shied away from mounts carrying over 120 pounds, obeyed the changing class factors, circled the better jockeys, on and on — everything I was taught by manuals and teachers.

Well, apparently not everything. I forgot to pick enough winners.

I had trouble laying off races that didn't look good to me. I had trouble narrowing the field to one horse. I hate betting half the field. The likelihood of a six-way deadheat in a 12-horse field is about one-in-a-hundred.

Someone once told me that the definition of gambling is betting your paycheck when the rent is due. Well, the rent was due, but my paycheck was safely tucked away in the bank — minus 18 dollars.

With the essentials — Daily Racing Form, my own special recipe of a speed and pace chart, recent workouts, green sheet, red sheet, program and scratch paper spread neatly in front of me, I went to the task of dulling my pencils.

The first race was a cinch. Lief T. looked the class of the field from my calculations. Quick, what are his odds? Woops, 10,242 other people agree with me. He's even money. Who cares? I won two bucks and my confidence soared.

The second was wide open — no clear-cut favorite. I narrowed to three and couldn't split 'em. Table's Girl wasn't one of them. It paid $11.20.

I'm back to even and having a ball. Only eight starters in the third and I like two 6-1 shots, Persian Art and Duty. If I bet only one, the other's gonna win. I got cocky and bet Persian Art to win and Duty to place (finish second).

Ouch!

Duty won by a neck and returned $14.80. Guess who was second in the photo? Persian Art needed only about 10 more yards to overtake him. I still cashed for $7.20, but I could have had $20.80 the other way.

I consoled myself with the success of my handicapping. Confidence turned to over-confidence. My picks ran like they were handcuffed to the gate over the last six races. The only thing I had to cheer about was the person celebrating a birthday at the next table.

Now, even with my apron back on, I still can't figure where I went wrong. I should have left after the third. Even a Hawthorne-type power failure would have been welcome. I couldn't have been any more in the dark.

Back to the non-betting drawing board. Back to school with the experts. Just think though. What a great gesture. Part of my 18 dollars will go to our beautiful state. Maybe I should really go gung-ho and re-cycle my tickets.

New York invader Kittiwake has been assigned the highweight of 122 pounds for Saturday's 39th running of the $50,000-added Matron Stakes, the one-mile and an eighth turf event for 3-year-olds and upward for fillies and mares.

Mrs. S. L. (Betty) Gilmartin's local favorite Barely Even appears to be in good shape with 115 pounds as designated by Arlington Park Racing Secretary and Handicapper John Gantz.

The 3-year-old filly has captured 11 of 16 lifetime starts, but will have some barriers to clear Saturday. Barely Even has never run on the grass, a mile and one-eighth or beaten older company.

Her stiffest competition is expected to come from Canadian-bred Belle Geste who worked a mile between races Monday in 1:36.4 with the fractions in :23.1, :46.4 and 1:11.1. In an earlier work at Fort Erie, the 4-year-old churned a 1:35.2 — eclipsing the track mark by a fifth of a second. She'll carry 117 pounds.

The Matron was inaugurated in 1930 when 3-year-old Valenciennes whipped Beaming Over for top honors. Since then, some classy members of the distaff set have accounted for the lucrative Matron.

Risque turned the trick in 1931. Blue Delight in 1942. Askmenow in '43. But Why Not in '47. Sickle's Image in '51. Toamah in '64. Old Hat in '66. Pink Pigeon in '69 and Paltee Canyon in '70.

Allens Tops Johnsons; Captures American Title In Mid-Teen Play

Allen's defeated Johnson 6-5 Monday night and won the right to represent the American League in the best-of-three tournament against the National League winner of the Des Plaines Mid-Teen League. The championship series will open Thursday at 6 p.m.

Allen's will not have known its opponent at press time since the National League playoff was held last night. In that match, first-round champion Kunkel took on second-round winner First National. The team that won that game will play Allen's in the tournament.

Allen's took a 6-5 decision from Johnson Monday by scoring all six of its runs within the first three innings. Johnson, which equalled Allen's total of 10 hits, grabbed a short-lived 1-0 lead in the top of the first on singles by Gary Slapke and Andy Richardson and an error by the Allen second baseman, but Allen's answer with a run of its own in the bottom of the inning and five more in short order.

Allen's, which by virtue of this triumph laid claim to both the first- and second-round American League titles, knotted the score at 1-1 when Rick Felde walked, stole second and went to third when the catcher threw the ball into center field trying to nail him, and tallied on John O'Connor's RBI single.

Allen's assumed the lead for good in the second when it scored four runs after two were out. The first came home on Bill Slapke's single and after Felde walked, O'Connor laced a base-clearing triple to deep left-center on which Johnson's left-fielder and center-fielder collided. Fortunately, neither was injured. O'Connor capped the second inning scoring when he came across on Rick Slapke's double.

Johnson trimmed the gap to 5-3 in the third when Ed Schleiter led off with a base hit, Richardson doubled him to third, and Alan Hanson and Doug Dalbke came up with RBIs.

The American League champ scored what turned out to be the decisive tally in the last of third on a successfully-executed double steal after Chris Mielke and Bruce Beam had singled. Mielke scored when Beam drew a throw to second.

Johnson rallied in the sixth when Hanson walked, Ralph Amelio punched a double and Joe Lahay delivered a two-run single, closing the deficit to 6-5. But Allen's winning pitcher Jim Olsen worked his way out of the jam to secure the win. Amelio took the loss.

Jay Jenni, the victor's head coach, was obviously pleased with the team's effort, but pointed out that with Allen's 10 hits, Johnson's three errors and Amelio's three walks, Allen's had 16 base runners and scored only six runs. This means they stranded 10 men in only six times at bat. Jenni indicated he hoped his club would use its opportunities more productively in the tournament finals.

Rotary won the West Major Little League title by coming back for two straight wins after dropping the series opener to A. G. Weber. Rotary, representing the American League, posted 6-5 and 6-1 triumphs after Weber took the first game by a 5-4 score.

Weber's winning pitcher in Game 1 was Andy Nyberg while Curt Peterson took the loss. Craig Field won Game 2 for Rotary over Tony Calabrese, while Bob McFarland outduelled Bob McCann in the third and final series game.

All six of these pitchers worked the distance, and all six tossed one-bitters. Walks, errors and stolen bases played major roles in the scoring.

The next competition awaiting Rotary and A. G. Weber is the city tournament, which matches the first- and second-place finishers of each of Des Plaines' five leagues — Des Plaines Little League Central, Devon-Higgins, Northwest, South and West Major Little Leagues.

UNION GROVE, Wis. (UPI) — Jerry Drenk of Arlington Heights Sunday afternoon won the modified eliminator competition at the Great Lakes Dragaway with a speed of 121.80 miles per hour in an elapsed time of 11.34 seconds.

Unit stock eliminator champ was Darryl Croach of Chicago with a speed of 109.09 m.p.h. in 12.38 seconds and overall stock eliminator winner was Jay Maywold of Des Plaines with a speed of 108.72 m.p.h. in 12.92 seconds.

Heidi Lepey of River Grove won the powder puff event with a speed of 108.25 m.p.h. in 14.04 seconds.

CATCHING UP IN Illinois: Over 130,000 chinook salmon and lake trout have been released into Lake Michigan by fisheries biologists from the Illinois Department of Conservation.

The three-inch salmon smolt were released into the lake at three locations after an initial imprinting procedure. The imprinting was done by placing the smolt in cages in the areas where they were to be released to get them accustomed to the water conditions.

"Hopefully they will return to this area at the end of their life cycle and produce some good fishing for our Illinois anglers," said Henry N. Barkhausen, Director of the Illinois Department of Conservation. 23,676 salmon were released during April and May and this group is expected to return to the Illinois portion of the lake in three to five years. At that time biologists will be able to determine just how successfully future Illinois stocking programs in Lake Michigan can be engineered.

The salmon were released at three locations along the Illinois shoreline: 6,741 near Winnetka, 5,500 at Illinois Beach State Park, and 11,435 near Diversey South Harbor in Chicago.

These are the first chinooks Illinois has stocked in the big lake that were hatched and reared at the Spring Grove Hatchery. Al Lipinot, chief fisheries biologist for the Department, reports that there are still about 30,000 coho salmon at the hatchery which will be imprinted and released in March and April of 1973.

In addition to the salmon released, the biologists also stocked 110,000 lake trout off the North Avenue Beach in Chicago. The five inch yearlings were received from Federal hatcheries as Illinois' annual allotment from the Great Lakes Fishery Commission program.

"Lake trout generally stay pretty close to where they are released," Lipinot said. "No imprinting of this species is necessary. They should produce a good lake trout fishery in a couple of years." Lipinot said that the left pectoral fin of the salmon had been clipped off by biologists prior to their being stocked. The department will depend on anglers to tell them of catches of these marked fish in ensuing years so complete studies can be made.

Less than a month after it was set, the chinook salmon record was broken when Thomas Boyle, Algonquin, landed a 31 pound seven ounce chinook that broke the old record by more than two pounds.

Boyle took his fish off the Waukegan shoreline using a Spoonplug. The record fish was 30 inches long and had a girth of 27 inches. The old record was 29 pounds, five ounces and was set by Ronald Johnson of Chicago early in July.

Another fish record was broken downstate, this one for green sunfish. Kenneth Collier, Sr., of Salem, Ill., yanked a two pounder out of one of those prolific Marion county farm ponds. He was using a yellow Scorpion, single spin, lure and broke the old record by 12 ounces. The fish was 11 1/4 inches long and had a girth of 12 1/2 inches.

DEVOTEES OF THE Hennepin canal will be glad to learn that pools 26 and 27 have been reopened after major surgery and rehabilitation work. The pools, just west of Geneseo about seven miles, were closed for four months. Included in the repairs was the construction of new concrete headwalls for the lock gates, renovation of installation of emergency spillways, construction of footbridges and the repair of butterfly valves in the locks. The two pools cover about five miles of the 96.8 mile canal, which has a total of 33 locks.

Upon filling, plans call for the stocking of fingerling largemouth bass and black crappie. Channel catfish will also be stocked after the initial fish planting. The breeder bass will be stocked next spring in time for a good spawn.

The Hennepin Canal has been so neglected for so many years that it breaks your heart to think of what the canal could be offering the state if funds and control had been available to Illinois during the years of abandonment of this cross-state waterway. But things are looking up. Long range plans, if carried out, will eventually develop both the Hennepin and Mississippi waterways into great boating and fishing waters for mid-state Illinois.

DATES FOR UPLAND game hunting have been approved by the Illinois Department of Conservation's Advisory Board.

The season for cock pheasants, Hungarian partridge, quail and rabbits will run from Nov. 11 this year through Jan. 15, 1973. Starting and closing times each day will be the times according to the Illinois Standard Shooting Timetable.

Since there is approximately 12 minutes difference between sunrise and sunset from one side of Illinois to the other, the state felt it was necessary to issue a standard time for starting and ending shooting each day to eliminate any confusion or debate as to whether the first bird was dropped before or after sunrise or sunset. (A copy of the official Timetable is available from the Department of Conservation.)

The bag limit for cock pheasant is two, with a possession limit of four. Hunters will be allowed six Hungarian partridge per day, possession 12. The bag limit for quail is eight with 16 in possession. Rabbit hunters will be allowed five per day, 10 possession.

The dove season will commence at noon (CST), Sept. 1, and continue through Nov. 9. Hours are from noon until legal closing time, with a daily bag limit of 12 birds. Woodcock and Wilson's Breakthrough — From the newsletter of the American Humane Association issued in June comes word that there may be a breakthrough in a cure for heartworm disease in dogs.

High school student Kim Christy, in Charleston, S.C., working under the supervision of Dr. Norman L. Garlick, chairman of the department of Laboratory Animal Medicine, University of South Carolina, has been working on this problem as a science project and has possibly uncovered one of the most important animal diseases discoveries in recent years.

A special oil formulation applied to the back of the neck of dogs with heartworm disease eliminates all larvae of the heartworm in the majority of affected animals within five to six days without producing anoxic shock. With monthly applications of the drug during the mosquito season, and if previous experience with injectable and oral administration of the drug holds true, the article goes on to state the probable eradication of this disease in dogs is predicted.

With the larvae eliminated, there can be no transmission of the disease by mosquitoes and the adult heartworms can be permitted to remain until they die a natural death, or they can be otherwise eliminated.

There are many people today who are critical of our high-schoolers — they should stop and take a second look. Most of these young people are a pretty serious and concerned group — one sure proved the point, and dogs may be the better for it.

Busy show time — Weekends during the summer are filled with dog shows, obedience trials and field trials. To give you an idea, here is just a partial list of what is coming up. Sunday, Aug. 6, the Midwest Boxer Club will have a "Sanctioned B" Puppy Match at Ringwood, Ill. The location is 4915 Ringwood Drive. Junior Showmanship will begin at noon, with regular judging starting at 1 p.m. For information call RE 7-1323.

Sunday, Aug. 6, the Chicagoland Dalmation Club will hold its annual summer fun match at Colonial Coach Kennels, Rte. 176, Wauconda, Ill. Judging includes conformation, obedience, junior showmanship and ladies handling. Registration from 10 - 11:30, with judging starting at noon. For information call 625-2555.

Sunday, Aug. 13, Northwest Obedience Club will hold its 12th annual tracking test at Twin Ponds Hunt Club, Algonquin. The test will start at 7 a.m. If you wanted to enter and don't have your entry in, forget it. Entries closed at noon August 1.

Sunday, August 13, Park Shoe Kennel Club will hold its fourth fun match at the Northbrook Sports Complex, 1730 Plingson Road, Northbrook. Judging begins at 10 a.m. For information call 272-1813.

Sunday, August 20, the Northwest Obedience Club will hold its 15th annual obedience trial at Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights. Entries for this one close at noon Tuesday, Aug. 8. For information fast, you had better call the show superintendent, Roy Jones, 219-925-0525.

Barks & Bays —

Remember, a hot, closed car can kill a dog. If you take the family hound along, keep the windows open — not an inch or so, but really open — while you go in to the store to shop.
